Detroit Rally In 12th Gives Rowe Victory By 3-2 Score

Goslin's Single Sends In Winning Tally and Evens Series.

Tiger Rejuvenation Cheered by 43,451

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 4.—The Tigers changed their stripes today. Inspired by the lone figure of Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe gallantly repulsing the swirling bats of the enemy in a one-man stand the Tigers turned on the Cardinals in this second game of the World Series, and won by the narrow margin of 3 to 2, in 12 innings.

Down on the diamond, that formed an animated centerpiece for the stand that housed 43,451 fans, the Tigers and Cardinals unfolded a pulsating drama.

On every windup, on every pitched ball after the third inning, those two ball teams courted at once victory and defeat. Then the denouement in the twelfth. A pitch by Southpaw Bill Walker. A vicious swing by Goose Goslin. A single into center field. Charley Gehringer breezed across the plate. And the Tigers had won the ball game.

Tonight it is one-all in the World Series as the teams and the series trappings move into St. Louis for tomorrow's renewal, but today Detroit tasted of the very nectar of World Series warfare and mention of the name of Schoolboy Rowe almost calls for reverence here.

Infield Comes to Life.

Around Rowe the Tigers rallied—the jittery Tigers of yesterday—taking heart from the masterful performance of the rawboned young giant from El Dorado, Ark., who was beating back an enemy that, the day before, had shaken Detroit's confidence to its very foundations. That infield that threw five errors into the proceedings yesterday were four other guys today, clicking in clock-like precision, ruthless in their execution.

Out of the very maw of defeat those Tigers jerked their young pitcher in a ninth inning, which found them with a one-run deficit. Snarling defiance, they turned on their tormentor, "Wild Bill" Halla-

Majority Rule Leads to Clash

Issue in Bargaining Is Disputed by Two at Weirton Hearing.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 4 (AP).—Over a hotly debated question before the National Steel Labor Relations Board—shall "majority rule" be recognized in collective bargaining—a persistent lawyer and a witness wrangled for an hour today in United States District Court.

The witness, William C. Long, employe of the Weirton Steel Co. and organizer for the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, insisted his attitude would be found in whatever decision the labor board made in the issue. He protested to Judge John P. Nields that he would not like to answer the question because his interrogator, Earl Reed, counsel for the Weirton company, was "assuming."

Long's testimony consumed half of the third day of the hearing on the Government's suit for an injunction against the Weirton company to prevent it from violating collective bargaining provisions of the National Recovery Act.

Reed was intent upon eleciting from Long whether "in presenting yourself to the company on occasions to bargain collectively, that you would be representing anybody except the members of your union?"

More Bombs Hurled In Arizona Farm War

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 4 (U.P.).—A reign of terror against alien farmers in the Salt River Valley for the last two months was renewed last night, when five bombs were exploded in the yards and irrigation canals of Japanese farmers, it was learned tonight.

The latest violence to bring about the removal of alien farmers damaged one home.

2,000 Ship Radio Men Set for Strike Tuesday

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Hoyt S. Haddock, president of the American Radio Telegraphists Association, asserted today that 2,000 wireless operators on American ships would go on strike Tuesday.

Their demands, he said, are for abolition of the 12-hour day and duties other than radio operating, for wage increases, vacations with pay, and recognition of the associatio-

Edwards Tells Jury How Girl Died at Lake

Killed by Fall in Boat, Then He 'Blackjacked' Her, He Says.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 4 (AP).—The first witness in his own defense, Robert Allen Edwards took the stand today to deny he had slain Freda McKechnie, his neighborhood sweetheart, and to set up a claim that she was killed accidentally by falling against a boat.

Questioned by Frank McGuigan, chief defense counsel, he told of the swimming party at Harvey's Lake where the State accuses the 21-year-old surveyor of slaying Freda so that he might marry another girl.

"She climbed into a boat and I saw her fall," Edwards testified.

"I ran to her. There wasn't any heart beat. I realized Freda was dead.

"I don't know how to explain it. I was in a panic, in fright. I didn't know what to do.

Hit Her With Blackjack.

"I went to the Sandy Beach Hotel porch. There were some people there. I don't know whether I said anything to them. I got back into the car and thought of the blackjack. I thought if there were some marks on her I would not be likely to be blamed.

"I went back, lifted her body out of the boat. The body bent forward and I struck it on the head with the blackjack.

"I don't know—I didn't know what I was doing, but I towed the body out into the water."

The Commonwealth had contended that Edwards struck the McKechnie girl with the blackjack as they were swimming.

Instructed to continue his account of what happened after he left the victim's body in the lake, Edwards said:

"I went back to my car and dressed. Something drew my attention to Freda's clothes in the car. I put them under a tree.

"I don't know what road I took home, but I somehow remembered to get mother some candy. I took it home, went to mother's room, gave her the candy and went to my own room.

"But I could not sleep; I squirmed and wriggled, then I got up and turned on the light."

A recess interrupted Edwards' testimony and Judge W. A. Valentine ordered a night session to speed completion of the case. Defense

Smile of a Cashier Routs 3 Bank Bandits

Ixonia, Wis., Oct. 4 (AP).—Three men armed with rifles attempted to rob the often harassed State Bank of Ixonia today, but fled when the cashier smiled at their assurance "this is a stickup."

The cashier, Otto Buelter, was safe within the bullet proof teller's cage. The bank has been robbed twice. Another attempt failed.

Heiress Saved, Two Arrested In Kidnap Plot

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—Trapped in the swiftly moving machinery of the Government's new law against kidnaping, two men pleaded guilty and were jailed today within 12 hours after Federal agents frustrated their alleged plot to abduct Betty Bloch, daughter of a Wheeling millionaire, and hold her for $25,000 ransom.

Arraigned before a United States commissioner, the prisoners, Harry Thornton and Thurman Bowen, both of Bridgeport, Ohio, were held for the Federal grand jury under bond of $100,000 each. Officers said both signed confessions.

Federal agents under J. J. Waters, special agent at Pittsburgh, made the arrests. They learned of the plot through a "chance conversation" overheard here several weeks ago.

Miss Bloch cooperated with the officers and was prepared to help lead the men into the trap, the investigators said.

"It was nothing at all," Miss Bloch said after the men were placed in jail. "I am surprised anyone even has heard of it."

The attempted kidnaping came on the eve of Miss Bloch's wedding to Wilmot I Harris, a former National bank examiner, of Washington. Federal agents said she was to have been seized at a bridal party last night, but the men fled, fearing the job "too dangerous" at the brilliantly lighted home of Edgar Leedys, a friend, where the young heiress was the honor guest.

A slim, pretty brunette, Miss Bloch and her fiance will be married "at 4:30 p. m Saturday, as planned," Mr. and Mrs. Jesse A. Bloch, the bride's parents announced.

The two men were arrested after leaving the Leedys home last night.

Kneehigh Bridegroom Takes a Midget Bride

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Merry Midgets gathered at a South Side home tonight for the midnight marriage of Miss Lillian Porter, of Gainesville, Tex., and Chester Keesaer, of Muncie, Ind.

The bride is 26 years old and 28 inches tall; the bridegroom 29, and 30 inches in height. The attendants, Miss Ada Frank and Harry Fish, are but 26 and 27 inches tall, respectively.

Stolen Explosive Found Near Remington Plant

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 4 (AP).—Ten cans of polnol, most destructive explosive known to science, which were stolen from the Remington U. M. C. Reservation, were found today in a swamp at Stratford.

The explosive, object of a city-wide search since its disappearance Monday, was discovered 600 feet north of the reservation.

Hauptmann's Counsel Seeks Delay in Trial

Can't Be Ready Thursday, He Says; Suspect's Maps Show Kidnap Area.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Delay in the trial of Bruno Hauptmann, indicted on a charge of extorting $50,000 ransom, fruitlessly paid by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for his first-born son's return, will be asked by his counsel, James M. Fawcett. The attorney declared today he would resist any attempts to extradite the German alien, former convict for trial in New Jersey in the baby's abduction and death.

His statement followed disclosure by District Attorney Samuel Foley of the Bronx that Hauptmann had in his possession maps of the Lindbergh home territory.

Foley said Hauptmann had portrayed from memory minute details of these maps.

"We will resist," Fawcett said, "any effort the State of New Jersey may make to extradite this defendant.

"There has been such a mass of detail to be sifted that in the short time at our disposal it is difficult to prepare for trial. We are seeking to delay the case only in the interest of justice."

Gives Leads to Officers.

Fawcett reiterated his intention to coperate in every phase of the investigation with authorities, adding:

"I get a mass of information every day. All leads and information are being turned over to officials of the Department of Justice so that they can investigate. We hope by working with them, to obtain true solution of the case."

The Bronx trial is docketed for next Thursday.

Foley said the maps were found in a trunk at the Hauptmann home. Nine English-German dictionaries also were found.

Coupled with this strengthening of the chain of circumstantial evidence linking Hauptmann to the kidnaping, Bronx County officials started drawing the special venire of 150 persons to try the tight-lipped stowaway from Germany.

The day's developments also included a letter to United States

70,000 Vote In Industrial Poll on NRA

Survey Will Determine Attitude on U. S. Supervision.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—A cross section of the business man's attitude on future relations of Government to industry is to be sought by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Characterizing the move as the "first cross section of industry's views upon this vital point," the association tonight mailed the first 5,000 questionnaires to large and small industrialists and, through cooperation of allied organizations, expects to receive between 50,000 and 70,000 replies before November 15.

Recommendations for legislation by Congress in January is the association's ultimate aim.

"The replies received will be used as a guide to the committee in working out a suggested policy for relations between Government and industry," it was stated by James W. Hook, chairman of the association's committee on future relations of Government to industry, in a letter accompanying the questionnaire.

Plan Must Be Ratified.

"This plan in turn will be submitted to members of the National Association of Manufacturers and affiliated and cooperating organizations for their final ratification."

There are 32 "yes or no" questions and 10 general queries in the questionnaire.

The first general question: "Do you believe in the general theory of industrial self-government, under such governmental restraint, as would be necessary to protect the public interest?"

Based on an affirmative answer to the first question, the association asks: "If so, do you believe that any system of industrial self-government is workable in practice?"

Another general question: "Do you believe the code system . . . is the proper method?"

"If you do not believe in industrial self-government through the code system, do you believe it can be accomplished in any other form, and, if so, what form?"

Price Control Issue.

Other questions cover such points as extension of the National industrial recovery act, inclusion of price control features in codes, amendment or substitution of the recovery act, wages, hours, child labor, fair trade practices, control of production, enforcement of the act, and enactment of State industrial control laws.

Under the qquestion "Do you believe that relations between employers and employes should be regulated by Federal law, either in the present recovery act or any similar legislation?" there are eight sub-questions covering the entire field of employer-employe relationship.

"Our committee," said Chairman Hook, "will review every reply in an effort to coordinate the position of industry, a vital necessity if industry is to have any voice in determining the amount and kind of Government regulation of industry."

The legislative recommendations are expected to be drawn at the December session of the Congress of American Industry under the auspices of the association.

Rebels Move On Barracks In Spain Riot

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Madrid, Oct. 4.—Strikers opposed to the new Spanish government tonight stormed the Montana Savoie Barracks, engaging in their first clash with soldiers of the republic. Preliminary reports stated that many were injured.

The fight followed the killing of a guard whose detachment exchanged shots with disorderly demonstrators in the Prosperidad district. Two strikers were wounded in this encounter.

Clash at Prosperidad.

In the clash at Prosperidad, on the outskirts of the city, strikers barricaded themselves in a house. Guards approaching the house were met with a rain of bullets.

Firing from a distance, guards then sprayed the house with shots while a small detachment rushed the building.

Sixty-three persons were arrested, and it was found that 50 of them were armed.

The general strike was called by radical elements as a protest against the centrist and rightest government of Premier Alejandro Lerroux.

The premier and his new ministers indicated they would take a firm stand, and in quarters close to the cabinet it was reported that a decree of martial law had been drawn up, ready for promulgation.

Madrid Is Tense.

While Madrid was tense with the expectation of revolutionary outbursts, disquieting reports were received tonight from Barcelona, capital of autonomous Catalonia. These reports stated that the generality of Catalonia had issued orders that military forces in the region were to obey only the commands of generality officials.

This action was interpreted as a direct challenge to the Madrid government in the event martial law were decreed.

From other regions came reports of sabotage, telephone lines to Asturias being cut down.

Chief of Police Munoz Castellanos said he expected the strike to become generally effective at any moment, but added that his forces were prepared to preserve order and to see that necessary provisions are brought into Madrid.

Troops Held in Readiness.

Meanwhile, troops were being held in readiness for instant action.

The government, forewarned of the extremist movement, had taken elaborate precautions to suppress it, stationing soldiers and assault guards at all vital points.

Just before the strike was called the new premier in an eloquent speech accepting the office from former Premier Ricardo Samper Ibanez, whose government was forced out of office Monday, said:

"I will permit no one to prejudice the interests of the republic by acts disrupting the public peace."

Simultaneously, the executive committee of the left Republican party, most powerful of the political groups opposing Lerroux, declared formally that "the handing over of the republic to its enemies is a monstrous deed which forces us to sever all relationships with everything connected with the regime."

The party announced it would

20th Child Is Added To Latorra Family

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—Now there are enough Latorras for a couple of football teams, or four basket ball quintets with a couple of referees, or 11 games of chess for the long winter evenings.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Latorra, of Franklin Park, feted at the World's Fair last summer as the biggest and healthiest family of Italian origin in the country, announced their twentieth today.

Banks' Victims Will Get Assets In Sale by RFC

End of Receiverships Moved After Attack on Expense.

Dodging Pressure For Full Payment

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

In an apparent effort to avoid further political pressure for payment in full of depositors in closed banks, Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC, yesterday revealed that he and J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, were perfecting a plan to turn the slow or frozen assets of those institutions over to the depositors.

The scheme is applicable to those closed banks to which the RFC has made loans, taking assets as collateral. Under the plan all receiverships of national banks will be speedily ended by offering at public sale all assets of the institutions subject to the RFC loan.

This will open the way for depositors to form themselves into an association to buy the assets and hold them until all or a part of their former value reappears, thus assuring to the depositors any increment in the worth of the assets while at the same time eliminating the costs of receiverships, which in some instances have been heavy.

Applies to Washington.

The plan will apply eventually to practically all Washington banks which are now in receivership, Treasury officials said last night.

The local banks which were placed in the hands of receivers are Departmental Bank, Park Savings, Continental Trust, North Capitol Savings, Brightwood, International Exchange, United States Savings, Woodridge-Langdon Savings, Seventh Street Savings, Chevy Chase Savings, Federal-American National, Commercial National, District National, Potomac Savings and the Northeast Savings Banks.

Mr. Jones said he was ready to make the same arrangements regarding loans to the closed State-chartered banks if the State banking authorities will agree to the plan. There are now 302 National banks with frozen deposits of $158,417,000 in the hands of receivers.

This plan marks the first step by the Federal Government to clean up completely the banking wreckage left in the wake of the depression. Liquidation of the closed banks would wipe out the foundation for the type of agitation which in the last Congress crystallized behind the McLeod bill.

As Mr. Jones outlined the plan, Francis M. Law, president of the American Bankers Association, was sitting beside him. Mr. Law made no comment. He is from Houston, Mr. Jones' home city. The latter agreed to address the bankers at their annual convention here later this month.

Earlier in the day Mr. Law called on President Roosevelt and obtained confirmation of the President's previously tentative acceptance of an invitation to address the bankers' association on October 24 at Constitution Hall. The speech is regarded as highly important, as it is expected to touch on the economic conditions of the country and may forecast what changes, if any, the President proposes to sponsor in the banking law.

Treasury experts have been at work for months on plans altering the Nation's banking system. It is understood that all proposals for the creation of a central bank as a substitute for the Federal Reserve Systems have been abandoned. Instead, changes in the law giving the Federal Reserve Board a closer control over the country's banking system are being considered.

Antagonism Denied.

On leaving the White House, Mr. Law said it was a "mistaken impression" that there is antagonism between the President and the banking community.

"He has not got it in for the bankers, and the bankers haven't got it in for him," Mr. Law siad, with

Vertical Union Raises Conflict In Labor Ranks

Green, Lewis May Lead Opponents; Building Fight Threatens.

San Francisco, Oct. 4 (AP).—Storm clouds generated by two long-smouldering issues began forming at the American Federation of Labor convention here today.

Contention over the question of vertical unions—organization of workers by industries instead of by crafts—developed to the point where Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union, announced he would offer a compromise plan.

The fight that threatened to break up the federation's building trades department remained unsettled.

Delegates said it seemed impossible to prevent both issues from going to the convention floor.

The possibility appeared that William Green, federation president, and John L. Lewis, leader of the United Mine Workers, would be on opposite sides in both issues.

Green committed himself to the position that the building trades department should readmit three large international unions which withdrew

'Intolerants' May Wreck NRA, Policy Mapper Tells Press Club.

A warning that "intolerants" in business and labor organizations are "likely to wreck NRA" was voiced yesterday by Donald R. Richberg, director of the recovery policy-making committee.

In a speech before the National Press Club he assailed groups that seek the aid of the Government, but refuse to give anything in return. He charged they were prone to demand that public officials be the "tools of special interests."

Richberg hinted of an impending departure from price-fixing and production limitation in many NRA codes. He said such provisions were necessary in a few instances, but industrialists who once insisted on price-fixing were beginning to realize it was an "iridescent dream" to seek prosperity by any other method than "sound competition."

New Board Praised.

He praised the new NRA administrative board as composed of men with wide experience who would "inspire confidence" by their "sound judgment."

"Not a man in that group," he remarked, "is convinced he knows how to run the world. That is desirable."

Richberg defended the ruling of the Ntional Labor Relations Board in the Houde Engineering Co. case that the labor organization favored by a majority of employes should speak for all workers in collective bargaining discussions.

"The board," he said, "laid down the theory that when an election by any group, no matter what its size, was held for the purpose of selecting their representatives and when they had chosen by a majority their representatives, those were the men who had been chosen to represent the voters. I would like somebody here to tell me what other method could be followed."

The speaker deplored "the exer-

Mrs. Vanderbilt Waits Help of Titled Friends

Prince Gottfried, Wife Will Sail Tuesday; Brother, Sister of Accused Coming; Marchioness to Act on Attorney's Advice.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Titled friends of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, including the prince whose name was linked with hers, prepared today to come to her aid in the court skirmish for custody of her 10-year-old daughter, Gloria.

Prince Gottfried zu Hohenlohe announced in Langenburg, Germany, that he and his wife would sail for New York next Tuesday. The prince, who was accused by Gloria's nurse of intimacy with the child's mother, said he was "utterly disgusted" at the "horrible slanders."

The former Lady Furness, twin sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt, was packing in Paris, to sail with their brother, Harry Hays Morgan. Lady Furness was formerly Thelma Morgan Converse.

Daughter of a Russian grand duke and wife of a British peer, the Marchioness of Milford-Haven said in London that the testimony of a French maid involving her was "nothing but terrible malicious lies."

"I shall stand by Mrs. Vanderbilt to the bitter end," she declared. "It depends upon my lawyers as to whether I shall go to America."

The stir of three noble households abroad occurred during a lull in the court battle here between Mrs. Vanderbilt and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. Little Gloria now is in the care of Mrs. Whitney, who is as widely known as a sculptress and art patron as she is in society.

Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, mother of Mrs. Vanderbilt, has ranged herself on the Whitney side and will be called as a witness against her daughter when the trial is resumed tomorrow before Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew.

Prince Hohenlohe, in his German castle, said he was engaged to Mrs. Vanderbilt in 1927 and 1928, and he and his wife, Princess Margarete, are "still in close contact with her."

"We are utterly disgusted over the horrible slander hurled at her in the trial," he said. "I often warned Mrs. Vanderbilt of her mother and the nurse. The maid hardly knows me, for I only saw her once or twice in Paris during the two years I was engaged to Mrs. Vanderbilt.

He added that only about a month and a half ago Mrs. Vander-

President Will Take Sequoia On Week-End Angling Cruise

President Roosevelt is planning to make his first overnight cruise down the Potomac this week-end since his return from the "Summer White House" at Hyde Park, it was learned yesterday.

He enjoyed a short trip aboard the Government yacht Sequoia last Sunday, during which he put the finishing touches to his radio speech that night. On this week's voyage, however, he hopes to put aside work in favor of some fishing.

Meantime, Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, announced after a visit to the White House yesterday that the President had agreed to pay a visit to The Hermitage, old home of Andrew Jackson, near Nashville, Tenn., next month.

Stopping off en route to his "other home," at Warm Springs, Ga., which he visits each year for the Thanksgiving season, Mr. Roosevelt will be honor guest at a breakfast or luncheon on either November 15, 16 or 17, Mr. Burns said.

The President probably will make an inspection trip to the Norris and Wheeler dams, now being built by the Tennessee Valley Authority, it was said. These developments are only a short distance from Warm Springs, and the trip may be made by automobile.

Representative Byrns was asked as to his candidacy for the Speakership of the House. He said that had not been discussed with the President, but added: "I think I'm going to be Speaker. Hope, you know, is a great thing."

Rich Indian Held Incompetent; Widow Loses Gift of $500,000

Jackson Barnett, the Nation's wealthiest Indian, was mentally incompetent when he placed his thumb print upon a document by which he transferred to his wife, Anna Laura Barnett, a white woman, $550,000 in 1923, Justice F. D. Letts decided in the District Supreme Court yesterday.

Although Barnett is dead, Justice Lett's ruling will restore to his estate some $200,000 in Liberty bonds, which were deposited here in the Riggs National Bank by Mrs. Barnett shortly after her husband made his gift to her. Numerous relatives are claiming the estate.

Barnett, it was shown, developed a philanthropical frame of mind in February, 1923. He gave $550,000 to the Equitable Trust Co. of New York, which was to pay him $20,000 annually, the balance of the income going to the American Baptist Home Mission Society of New York. On his death, Barnett directed, the society was to be given the entire income.

On the same day he turned over to his wife $550,000 in Loberty bonds with the understanding that she would place $200,000 worth in the Riggs Bank here to be held in trust. The yearly income, up to $7,500, was to be paid the Indian and the balance to his wife. On his death she or her daughter was to be given the principal.

The contracts by which Barnett transferred $1,100,000 were "thumbed" by him, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. In his opinion, Justice Letts said that inasmuch as the New York courts already had ordered the return of the $550,000 deposited in that State to the Secretary of the Interior as administrator, he felt that the same action, based on identical reasons, should be made here.

In asking that the deposit in the Riggs Bank be returned, the Government charged that the Indian was incompetent when he "thumbed" away his money and that the Secretary of the Interior did not have the authority to make the gifts.

Artist Bails Out Man Who Ruined Nightmare

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 4 (AP).—Jonas Lie, president of the National Academy of Design, put up $500 cash bail today for the freedom of John Smiuske, unemployed house painter, who is under a six-month jail sentence for throwing acid on an anonymous artist's lampoon of the New Deal.

"No person has a right to destroy a work of art," Lie commented, but added he hadn't made up his mind whether "The Nightmare of 1934," the picture which Smiuske damaged, was "a work of art."

Missing Ship Captain Hunted.

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—Capt. John E. Fick of the freighter Griffin was being sought today after the Griffin's second officer, Edward B Altman, reported the captain has not been heard from since he left October 1 to cash a $1,000 check for his crew's salaries.

Leaders Move For Permanent Labor Board

Wide Enforcement Power Sought by Congress Backers.

By Robert C. Albright.

Legislation extending the scope of the National Labor Relations Board over labor mediation, clinching and broadening its powers of enforcement, is being discussed quietly in Administration quarters here.

Members of Congress interested in the move already have taken up the matter informally with members of the board, and the subject has been broached at the White House.

One influential Senator is sounding out sentiment preliminary to drafting legislation. He wants to continue the body in more permanent form, and set up a separate system of labor courts, putting legal teeth in the board's decision.

Lasts Until June.

His proposals have met sympathetic response in some Administration quarters. Unless continuing legislation is passed, the mediation body automatically will go out of existence next June, and opinion persists that the White House will have something definite to offer in the way of a broader set-up.

Pleased with accomplishments of the group, it is known the President recently made overtures to President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin, in an effort to continue Lloyd Garrison, Wisconsin university law professor, as head of the body. The President is said to be still dissatisfied with the results of his negotiations. And despite his announced resignation, Garrison still is on the job.

Last night no final decision had been reached on who will succeed him.

Those intent on building up the board's sphere of operation, and invoking new powers to enforce its decisions, point to the body's present limited authority to compel compliance.

The board has power only to recommend that the NRA "lift a Blue Eagle" or to ask the Department of Justice to investigate or prosecute an offender. In no instance to date has the NRA refused to comply with its request.

Labor Courts Proposed.

But there are some members of the Senate who question the continued potency of the Blue Eagle as a weapon. Removal of the eagle from some business establishments fails to provoke the awe it once did, and there are those who believe the time is coming when the threat will not prove effective at all.

It is in this connection that the proposed labor courts are being mentioned as the cog needed to insure the future effectiveness of the set-up. Although the idea is still in the discussion stage, the suggestion has been made that these courts be given labor jurisdiction, with some minor additional functions.

The prevailing view on Capitol Hill is that substantial changes in the NRA set-up will be given the permanence of law at the January session of Congress.

Certain NRA features, notably child-labor provisions and fair practices guarantees in the various codes, must necessarily be continued by Congress even if the original broad mission of the NRA is abandoned, say some who played an important role in drafting the recovery act.

Collective-bargaining guarantees in the act provide one highly controversial issue that may inspire a merry war when Congress resumes. Price-fixing provision written into the codes offer further probability of friction.

Checks Given Out In Wheat Benefit

Prince William Farmers Paid Second Share.

Manassas, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Checks from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration for the second installment of the wheat benefit payments are being distributed to members of the Prince William County (Va.) Wheat Production Control Association from the office of F. D. Cox, county agent.

Notice of approval of payment of 30 cents per bushel as the first installment of benefit payments on the crop recently harvested has been received and these checks are expected to arrive for distribution in the next few days.

The balloting at community meetings over the county up to this time show approximately 95 per cent of corn-hog contract signers to be in favor of a continuance of the corn-hog program in 1935 and for a general combined program in 1936.

MacDonald Hails Roosevelt View

London, Oct. 4.—Prime Minister MacDonald came back to political wars today, declaring President Roosevelt had the right slant on Great Britain's recovery program.

The National Government had used practical methods to solve practical problems, MacDonald said as he returned to his office at No. 10 Downing street, deeply tanned and apparently much improved in health by his Canadian vacation.

"As President Roosevelt remarked so truly and with such keen accuracy of judgment," the prime Minister commented, "no intelligent observers can accuse this country of 'undue orthodoxy' in the present emergency. The policy of the National Government has been to face practical problems in a practical way, and in relation to the new political and economic circumstances which have been especially marked since the end of the war."

Harriman Explanation of Questionnaire No Apology, Says Chamber.

By Raymond Clapper

THE aftermath of President Roosevelt's recent set-to with the United States Chamber of Commerce over its series of questions to him about budgetary and other policies is in an unpublished letter, which Henry I. Harriman, president of the chamber, wrote to the White House.

It explained that the chamber had not meant to issue anything like a questionnaire—that it had merely made public a resolution and a statement. A copy of this resolution was sent to the President, and the fact that it was published before Mr. Roosevelt had a chance to see it was partly responsible for the White House feeling that the chamber was putting it on the spot.

The chamber does not regard the Harriman reply as an apology, but an explanation.

While the letter doesn't go into the matter, it is understood that the statement and questions as finally issued by the chamber were mild compared with what some of the Tory wing wanted. Harriman, president of the chamber and a New England utilities man, is something of a left-winger among big business men. He was an early advocate of the domestic allotment plan incorporated in AAA and helped draft the recovery act. He is said to have had a tempering influence in framing the chamber's original statement.

Neither President Roosevelt nor Donald R. Richberg thinks much of them. They seemed appropriate under the original theory of NRA, which was, for one thing, to abolish destructive competition. But in practice the tendency has been to abolish all competition. It has loaded a policing job on the Federal Government which has proved irritating to business and burdensome to the Administration. It has given some code authorities too much opportunity to play an insider's game.

The feeling is growing within the Administration that the simpler method is to rely more on individual competition, despite some stubborn evils, but without abandoning the deadline against sweatshop competition afforded minimum-wage and maximum-hour provisions.

It is the business of a code authority using its powers to tell a chicken hatchery—in this instance under AAA—what prices it shall charge, or of another code authority telling a lumber manufacturer that he can work his mill only 24 hours a week though he had orders enough to operate full time, that has led the Government out into water over its head.

A friend of Secretary Wallace asked Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic National committee, if the committee would be interested in buying a quantity of the Cabinet officer's book, "New Frontiers," for distribution.

"We haven't any money to spend on books," Michelson, in his most astute mood, replied, "and if we did we would put it into Hoover's book."

The Navy looks forward wtih less apprehension to the coming naval conversations in London than it did to the London naval conference of 1930. The reason is that Admiral William H. Standley, Chief of Naval Operations, is going along as adviser to the Americans. He is the most popular man in the Navy—a blunt, forcible champion of the Navy, and its ranking officer.

The chief naval adviser at the London conference of 1930 was Admiral William V. Pratt. He was too conciliatory in going along with the views of Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of State and head of the American delegation, to please his Navy colleagues. One of them, Admiral Hilary Jones, returned home in disgust midway during the conference. Some naval officers appeared before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee and took issue with Admiral Pratt's compromise position on the cruiser issue at London. He never subscribed to the extreme big navy views of the Navy General Board. Nevertheless, as a reward for his work at London, Herbert Hoover promoted him to be Chief of Naval Operations.

The Navy also feels more reassured this time because it believes that Mr. Roosevelt, once Assistant Secretary of the Navy, is sympathetic. It never felt that way about Mr. Hoover.

Henry Ford, whose crackdown bouts with Gen. Johnson made spectacular, if inconsequential, NRA history, almost ran afoul of code restrictions the other day, this time in connection with his arrangements to broadcast the World Series. After paying $100,000 for broadcasting rights to the baseball owners, Ford leased time on the two big networks. Then other stations, which had been broadcasting World Series games for years, asked permission to pick up the broadcast. Ford was agreeable naturally provided they included his advertising as it went out over the air. But the broadcasting code authority stepped in and reminded all parties that free advertising was prohibited under the code. So Ford had to pay and pay. He finally found himself paying about 200 stations and the whole stunt will cost him somewhere around $350,000, radio experts estimate.

from that branch of the federation several years ago. The department, however, ignored his pleadings and refused readmission. Lewis, who controls 3,000 of the convention's 26,000 votes, said he regarded the building trades row as purely a department matter.

The Mine Workers' president is a strong advocate of vertical unions; believers in craft unions have claimed Green's support.

While most of the delegates spent the afternoon on a sight-seeing cruise, federation leaders met informally in a final attempt to head the building trades squabble away from the convention floor.

Michael J. McDonough, of Oakland, reelected president of the building trades department, said, however, he expected nothing to come of the effort.

Another advocate of hour-shortening and work-spreading, W. F. Axton, head of the Axton-Fisher Tobacco Co., of Louisville, addressed the delegates.

"I sincerely believe," said Axton, "that the best solution of the unemployment problem is the one advanced by your worthy president, William Green, to reduce the hours of labor to the point where all who desire work shall have that opportunity.

"Nowadays, because of machinery, one man can produce ten times as much as he could 50 years ago.

"Therefore, we must have ten times as much purchasing power, for if labor produces ten times as much and can buy back only five times as much, so-called overproduction and unemployment are sure to result."

Howard, the Typographical Union head, said his compromise offer on the vertical union issue "would be in the nature of a flexible platform under which certain industries, like the miners and the rubber workers, where either large factories or plants predominate, would have the vertical or industrial union."

In industries with smaller plants, such as the publishing business, he said, craft unions would be suggested.

The first tangible results of organized labor's drive for the 30-hour week were disclosed today by Frank Feeney, president of the International Elevator Constructors Union.

Feeney said a provisional five-year contract with employers had been signed providing for a six-hour day and a five-day week. This, Feeney said, was the first contract of its kind.

Marshall Field 3d Divorce Rumored; Wife Goes to Reno

Reno, Nev., Oct. 4 (AP).—Rumors of a marital rift in the household of Marshall Field 3d, millionaire grandson of the late Chicago merchant prince, were revived today when it was learned that Mrs. Audrey James Field has established a Nevada residence, presumably for divorce.

Her arrival here was confirmed by a Reno attorney who declined to comment other than to say that his law firm has been "retained."

The first husband of the beautiful English-born daughter of Mrs. "Willie" James, famous London hostess, was the late Dudley Coats, of London.

Field became her second husband in London August 19, 1930, just 15 days after he and his first wife, Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, were divorced here on a charge of desertion. At the time of the divorce, it was reported he had provided a trust fund for the first Mrs. Field which would give her an income of $1,000,000 annually.

Hitler Confidante Lets $1,000 Offer To Harvard Stand

Berlin, Oct. 4 (AP).—Ernst Hanfstaengl, Harvard alumnus and confidante of Reichsfuehrer Hitler, today let stand his $1,000 scholarship offer to his alma mater despite its refusal.

He said he did not consider the matter closed because "that view point expressed in President Conant's letter informing me the Harvard faculty had voted to decline my scholarship will be proved antiquated in the future."

"My offer," he declared, "was meant as a modest proof of my loyalty to Harvard University. It was meant to constitute an additional factor in the important process of intellectual, scientific and human interchange between the United States and Germany, an interchange without which there can be no true understanding and no true progress."

Hanfstaengl offered a scholarship enabling an outstanding Harvard student, "preferably a son of one of my own classmates," to study in Munich in any field of art and science.

Kidnap Case Goes to Jury.

St. Louis, Oct. 4 (AP).—The case of Angelo Rosegrant, on trial for the kidnaping in 1931 of Dr. Isaac D. Kelly, St. Louis, socially prominent physician, went to the jury late today.

70,000 Given 'White-Collar' Jobs by FERA

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration is providing the equivalent of 70,000 white-collar jobs a month in 45 States and contemplates increasing the number, Corrington Gill, assistant administrator, revealed yesterday.

Hundreds of engineers, surveyors, architects, draftsmen, clerical workers, nurses, teachers and others who could not be given jobs in the ordinary set-up of the FERA works division are benefiting by the institution of statistical research projects.

Nearly 600 projects are under way, providing approximately 7,000,000 man-hours of work, the jobs to last from a few months to a year, Gill said.

The projects are conducted by States, cities and counties, but are financed by FERA grants, as are other relief works. New applications are pouring into FERA headquarters, it was said, at the rate of 125 a month.

Many Fields Covered.

The research surveys vary in size from one-man jobs in small rural communities to State-wide unemployment censuses. They include analytical studies of relief rolls, surveys of relief costs, housing studies, traffic counts, industrial and economic surveys, retail price analyses, local taxation studies, sanitation surveys, child welfare surveys and various types of health and recreation studies.

It was recalled yesterday that an ambitious proposal to stage a National unemployment survey was defeated in Congress at the last session after the Republicans accused the Democratic sponsors of trying to provide jobs just before election.

Maryland and Virginia are among the States that have such research projects under way. In Maryland information is being gathered in preparation of a State plan for economic and social security, while in Virginia a rural electrification survey is in progress.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, as early as last spring began advising States to devote more work projects to caring for the white-collar workers, and some of the surveys now in progress are the result of his admonition.

Gill yesterday pointed out that the surveys will make available data on health conditions, educational needs, recreational facilities and the like, for the first time in many communities.

Also, he said, they will provide valuable training for the men and women in research investigations and thereby better equip them for jobs in technical fields.

Depositors to Get Closed-Bank Assets

some feeling. "You know the bankers of the country want recovery as much as anybody, perhaps more than others."

"Are we going to get it?" he was asked.

"I am as sure of that as I am of standing here."

He said he told the President the banks were now in a sound condition, and that business in Texas was "vastly improved," and was again using "black ink on the ledgers."

Mr. Jones' plan for the closed banks does not necessarily mean any additional cash dividends for depositors at this time. Whatever benefit the depositors derive from it will come in the future. Nor does it mean that the RFC will lend any money on assets in excess of what is regarded as the sound value of the latter.

The RFC chairman pointed out that his agency had made 3,189 loans to 2,416 closed banks, aggregating $977,756,000. Of this sum approximately $367,000,000 remains outstanding. The RFC has refused to lend beyond the current, sound value of the assets of a closed bank.

Both Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Jones have been anxious to wind up bank receiverships as quickly as possible and there has been widespread criticism of the costs of receiverships. But until now one obstacle to ending the receiverships was that an outright sale of assets and repayment of the RFC would be necessary and depositors would receive less than if the assets were held for another year or two.

Forces Action.

Under the Jones-O'Connor scheme the receivership may be ended, the RFC loans will remain in force and the depositors will take charge of their assets and hold them as long as they like. The plan virtually forces the depositors to take over the assets, because if they do not some outsider may buy them at the public sale as a speculation.

In the event the depositors do not wish to take possession of the assets of the closed bank, subject to the RFC loan, they may benefit by receiving whatever the purchaser pays for the assets. Moreover, the depositors may increase that sum by bidding up the price.

87 Allegany Farmers Given AAA Payments

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Eighty-seven Allegany County farmers who signed contracts with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration for reduction of wheat production have received the second installment of the payment made by the Government.

The total amount mailed to the farmers is $617.89. The amount to be paid out in Allegany County is small, since the wheat production in this county is at a minimum, compared to other counties, and few farmers signed contracts.

County Farm Agent Ralph F. McHenry said the farmers signed two-year contracts and that another payment will be made within the next few months.

Drought to Put Food Costs Up, AAA Predicts

Crop and Stock Shortage Also Heralds Change in U. S. Diet.

(Associated Press.)

A shift in the customary National diet during the late winter and next spring, because of the drought, was predicted yesterday from within the AAA.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics, in a survey of crops and live stock destruction, concluded also that prices would rise, but that with an adjustment between surplus and deficit areas, there would be no dangerous food shortage.

"The full effect of the drought on retail food prices will not be felt until next spring, when supplies of meats, dairy products and poultry products will be reduced," the bureau said.

Midwest Hit Hardest.

Drought and high temperatures during the summer were reported to have reduced production in Central and Rocky Mountain States that, despite "bountiful production" in Eastern and Far Western States, "consumers will have to make certain shifts in their usual diet because of the scarcity of some foods and the abundance of others."

The bureau said a higher level of food prices "in general" may be expected in addition to the 7.1 per cent general increase during the last three months, but at a slower rate.

Price increases listed for the three-month period were: Meats, 13.6 per cent; dairy products, 4.3 per cent; cereal products, 3.5, and canned fruits and vegetables, 1.5.

Part of these increases, the bureau said, can be attributed to normal seasonal trends.

Situation Summarized.

The bureau summarized the National food supply situation as follows:

1. Carry-over supplies of wheat will bring the total available to 783,000,000 bushels, assuring "an ample supply."

2. "No appreciable reduction" of meat supplies is expected this year, but 1935 supplies, particularly pork, will be smaller than in recent years. The supply for the coming year is estimated at about 12 per cent below the average of recent years.

3. Some reduction in milk production is expected during the winter and spring, resulting in decreasing manufacture of butter and cheese, but not in the supply of fluid milk. Total supplies for the next 12 months were estimated at about 7 per cent under the average.

4. Short poultry feed supplies and high prices will curtail egg production by about 15 per cent and cause the smallest poultry meat supply in 20 years.

5. Supplies of fresh, canned, and dried fruits, fresh and canned vegetables, and fish and fish products will be marketed in about the usual volume.

6. No shortage of rice exists in any producing area.

Price-Fixing End Seen by Richberg

cise of partisanship" in the controversy over application of section 7(a), the collective bargaining clause of the recovery act.

"Now that section," he said, "is a perfectly clear statement of a principle so sound that it not only has been written into our law over and over again, but has been sustained by the highest courts of the country over and over again.

"Yet from the beginning it has been the effort of extremists from both groups to draw the thing apart and distort it into something that in some way was a club in favor of the interests of one group as opposed to the interests of another.

"That is the reason we have had so much difficulty with it in NRA. Every time any interpretation was made, if it was right square down the middle it would not satisfy both sides and each side wanted to twist it a ltitle to make it of special advantage to that side.

"I say that as to extremists because all through this there has been a great body of fair-minded square-acting business men and fair and square-minded labor leaders who have not done that, but have really cooperated."

Richberg declared President Roosevelt paid a tribute to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, retiring NRA administrator, by naming seven men to take his place.

"Gen. Johnson," he added, "said when he took his job at NRA he felt like the man who mounted the guillotine and bet the ax wouldn't drop. I'm betting it will drop on me, but my official head will go with a smile."

Mexican Indians Go to Shrine, But Find Saint's Image Gone

Troops on Guard, Fearing Attempt to Avenge Destruction.

Magdalena, Mexico, Oct. 4 (AP).—Mourning the destruction of a plaster image of San Francisco Xavier, their patron saint, Mexican peons and Indian pilgrims gathered under the trees of Magdalena's plaza.

It was the day for the veneration of San Francisco Xavier, and although the population of the village was swelled by the arrival of several hundred pilgrims overnight, there was no trouble.

War-like Yaqui Indians, who were reported en route here to avenge the destruction of the statue, had not arrived tonight.

Government officials denied there had been any hint of trouble from the Indians, but nevertheless armed soldiers from the recently reinforced federal garrison here kept watch over the pilgrims.

Deprived of the statute and the privilege of performing their ritual of old, the worshipers lingered as if anticipating a miraculous restoration of their saint. San Francisco Xavier was a worker of miracles to the Indians.

The fiesta was in strange contrast to San Francisco's days of former years. Where formerly the pilgrims gave themselves over to three days of joyous celebration and worship, today they sat with bowed heads in the plaza. Many of the women were in mourning.

There was no ringing of the cathedral bells, calling the faithful to worship. The cathedral itself was closed to them, having been converted into a hall for political and labor union meetings.

Tolls at Bridges Are Lifted Today

Removal Expected to Boost Trade in 3 Areas.

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Bridges over the Potomac River at Point of Rocks and Brunswick, Md., will be freed of toll charges tomorrow, according to a letter received today by Delegate Wilbur C. Hall from Henry G. Shirley, State highway commissioner. Commissioner Shirley declared this is the last day on which tolls should be collected, as sufficient funds are now in hand to satisfy the Maryland and Virginia highway commissions' obligation tax on the purchase price of the Brunswick Bridge.

This removal of tolls, long sought by business interests in Loudoun and Frederick Counties, and Brunswick is expected to greatly increase trading among the three areas.

PWA Funds Unlikely For Canal in Florida

The proposed Atlanic-Gulf ship canal across Florida will not receive a Public Works allotment, it became virtually certain yesterday when a special board of Army officers and PWA representatives reported that the project is outside the normal self-liquidating requirements under PWA.

The board said the canal could earn operating and maintenance expenses, but would not retire a bond issue, even at 2 per cent interest, in a reasonable time. The estimated cost of the canal was $143,000,000, and the necessary construction time was placed at six years.

British Laborites Beat Confiscation Program

Southport, England, Oct. 4 (AP).—The British labor conference overwhelmingly defeated today an amendment calling for partial confiscation of capital property in a socialization of industry program. The amendment, submitted on behalf of the Socialist League, was defeated on a card vote of 2,118,000 to 149,000.

The scheme called for compensation to previous owners of an income allowance for a maximum of 25 years, but contained no provisions for capital repayment.

Miss Douglas Dies At Waynesboro Home

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Miss Mary Douglas, daughter of Mrs. E. L. Douglas, of Fry's Spring Road, died yesterday at the home of her brother-in-law, Dr. J. F. Hubbard, in Waynesboro, where she had made her home the last three years.

Miss Douglas was a graduate of the University Hospital Training School for Nurses. Besides her mother, she is survived by five brothers—C. R. and F. E. Douglas, of Richmond; C. W. and A. A. Douglas, of Esmont, and E. E. Douglas, of this city.

Pupils to Build Model Airplanes

Prizes Offered Students in Hyattsville.

The Prince Georges County Exchange Club will sponsor a model airplane contest among the students of the local schools, it has been announced at Hyattsville. Dr. R. A. Vawter, Hyattsville dentist, who is also an aviator, has been appointed chairman of a committee of arrangements.

The contestants, it is expected, will be selected from the manual training classes of the various schools. They will build their own model planes. A prize will be given for the best workmanship.

Power Studies Make Headway

McNinch Tells President Reports Will Be Made in Time for Congress.

Progress in the three studies of the power question now under way by the Federal Power Commission was reported to President Roosevelt yesterday by Frank R. McNinch, chairman.

McNinch declared that the first survey, a compilation of electric rates throughout the Nation, will be ready early next year, in time for presentation to Congress. This report was asked by resolution as the possible basis for legislation.

The other two studies were ordered by the President—the first consisting of a survey of power resources with the view to adoption of a National power policy; the other, an analysis of the structure of holding companies and interstate transmission of power.

Enough material will have been assembled this winter for a partial report on National resources, McNinch said, adding that this study will include recommendations by the commission. The report on holding companies was requested informally by the President several months ago.

Georgia Bloc Of Democrats Hits New Deal

Talmadge Forces Assail 'Spending Orgy'; Cohen Ouster Attempted.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 4 (AP).—The Talmadge-controlled Georgia Democratic convention today criticized some of the policies of the National Administration and attempted to oust Maj. John S. Cohen as National committeeman, but met an immediate statement from Maj. Cohen that he would not surrender his commission.

Maj. Cohen, vice chairman of the National committee, also was given the quick support of Emil Hurja, executive director of the National committee, who said he would serve until 1936, when the next convention meets.

The State convention, made up of a record-breaking 1,800 delegates, more than half of whom were chosen by Gov. Eugene Talmadge, who was renominated, called for a "cessation of this orgy of spending."

In a resolution the convention said that Maj. Cohen, president and editor of the Atlanta Journal, had opposed successful candidates in the recent primary, could not work in harmony with them or their appointees and that it was important for National recoovery that the State have a committeeman who "can and will work in harmony" with State officials. Ryburn G. Clay, Atlanta banker, was named by the convention as committeeman.

Maj. Cohen immediately replied that he had been nominated by the Georgia delegation to the last Democratic National convention, that he had been elected by the convention to serve until 1936 and that he would not deliver his commission to "this partisan convention or any partisan State committee."

He said candidates to the convention had been "hand-picked" by the Governor and that "the sum total of my offending seems to have been my consistent and devoted advocacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt * * * and my vigorous support of the far-reaching and human policies which he has advocated."

Georgia Ouster Attempt Invalid, Farley States

Chairman Farley of the Democratic National committee last night declared invalid the ouster action of the Georgia Democratic convention directed against Maj. John S. Cohen, National committeeman, according to the Associated Press.

Substantiating an earlier statement by Emil Hurja, executive director of the National committee, Farley said:

"Democratic National committeemen are elected for four years at the National conventions. State conventions can not remove a member. In the event of a committeeman's death or resignation, the State Democratic executive committees have authority to choose a successor."

The Democratic chieftain said only the National committee could oust a member and that no meeting of that organization was planned soon.

Hurja said Maj. Cohen was "in until 1936," under rules of the party.

The Georgian is vice chairman of the National committee, and last year when reports were heard that Farley would resign as chairman, Maj. Cohen was mentioned prominently as the probable successor.

Kings Daughters Meet Tuesday in Virgina

Front Royal, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—Mrs. H. H. Bowman, chairman of the credentials committee, said today that cards already received indicate an attendance of more than 125 delegates from all parts of Virginia at the State convention of Kings Daughters here beginning Tuesday night.

Meeting on Tuesday and Wednesday, the convention will have on its program morning business sessions and night meetings devoted to addresses, with the afternoons reserved for social events. On Wednesday there will be a tea at Tanglewood, the home of Mrs. W. J. Kendrick, and an automobile trip over the Skyline Drive from Panorama to Spottswood trail.

Upholsterers on Coast Asked to End Strike

San Francisco, Oct. 4 (AP).—Representatives of 1,500 striking upholsterers—scattered from Seattle to Los Angeles—agreed today to try to get the men back to work pending mediation of their wage dispute with the manufacturers.

Strikers are asking a wage of $1 an hour. The code minimum is 34 cents an hour, and the average paid now was said by the regional labor board to be about 50 cents.

Disney Restrains Firm Use of 'Mickey Mouse'

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—The use of the name of "Mickey Mouse" as a trade-mark for animal cracker packages was under the ban of a Federal court injunction today.

Judge John P. Barnes issued the restraining writ yesterday upon application of Walter E. Disney, cartoonist, who charged that use of the name by the United States Biscuit Co. of America and two subsidiaries violated his copyright on the cartoon character.

Federal Funds To Aid Schools To Keep Open

President Directs That Provision Be Made for Three Months.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt yesterday laid the groundwork for extending Federal financial assistance to schools whose funds have been gravely depleted by the depression.

At a White House conference, Secretary Ickes was directed to draft, with Harry L. Hopkins, the Relief Administrator, a plan to keep schools open for the next three months. Congress and State Legislatures, meeting in January, might provide money to be used in the remainder of the school year in worthy cases, Mr. Ickes indicated.

Mr. Roosevelt wants a minimum program, the Interior Secretary added. He estimated $2,000,000 to $2,500,000 would be needed before January. It would have to come from Relief Administration funds.

State superintendents of education, who have just concluded a meeting here, said $3,000,000 was needed to open schools which could not otherwise start their fall terms. They estimated $25,000,000 was necessary to provide normal terms, and urged that a survey be made to determine by December 1 what the financial requirements of shcools will be for the balance of the school year. Mr. Ickes said an incomplete list of States asking for Federal assistance for schools included Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Georgia, Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota.

In compliance with the expressed wish of the President, Mr. Ickes indicated that costs of schools would be included in some of the Government's huge public works developments. He mentioned specifically the Fort Peck project in Montana, Grand Coulee in Washington, the all-American Canal in California and reclamation developments in Oregon. Transient camps in Arizona were put in the same category.

"The idea of the President," Mr. Ickes said, "is that these projects ought to carry the cost of essential schooling for children. * * * The President feels that we ought to see to it that children receive a proper education in counties which can not increase their budgets."

Treasury to Offer More Discount Bills

With announcement of the offering of $75,000,000 182-day discount bills to refund $50,000,0000 of bills maturing October 10, the Treasury today indicated continuance of its current policy of financing expenditures partly by adding to short-time debt, according to the Associated Press.

The last bill maturity, Wednesday, was similarly handled.

The bills to be offered will be dated October 10. Tenders will be received by the Federal Reserve banks until 2 p. m. October 8.

Campaign Exchanges Find Farley Confident of New Deal Gains.

(Associated Press.)

The two major political parties opened a campaign cross-fire here yesterday, with a Democratic spokesman predicting a heavy Democratic victory in next month's voting and Republicans accusing the New Deal of "coercing" voters.

Postmaster General Farley told reporters at a press conference: "There isn't anything the opposition can do between now and the November elections to change the results. "The people definitely have made up their minds to go along with the President and are supporting candidates advocating the New Deal."

The Republican senatorial-congressional committee at the same time issued a statement asserting the Roosevelt Administration was "blacklisting," "boycotting," and "coercing" farmers, industrialists, and banks into supporting the New Deal through Federal loans, the NRA and the AAA.

"The policy of the New Deal is dictatorial," the Republican statement said. "It is government by compulsion rather than by law. It uses the boycott to beat the manufacturer and businessmen into submission to a political program. It resorts t othe black list to force the distressed farmer to "sign on the dotted line' in order to obtain meager funds to feed starving cattle and to obtain loans on his corn and cotton.

At his press conference Farley predicted the Democrats would lose no strength in the Senate, but, instead, would gain between six and nine seats now held by Republicans. He listed Maryland, West Virginia, Missouri, New Jersey, Ohio and Indiana as virtually in the Democratic column, with the probability of winning in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania. In addition, he said, the Democrats may pick up the Farmer-Laborite seat in Minnesota.

Farley said he would make a statement later about gains the Democrats expect in the House.

Nebraskan Is Accused Of Slaying Daughter

Valentine, Nebr., Oct. 4 (AP).—George Phillips, 60, was held in the county jail here tonight for the fatal shooting of his daughter, Violet, 21, last night.

County Attorney William C. Heelan said he would file first-degree murder charges. Heelan said the girl was slain when she and other members of the family caught Phillips preparing to burn the shack in which Violet and another daughter were sleeping.

California Film Exodus Seen if Sinclair Wins

Miami, Fla., Oct. 4 (AP).—If Florida is "wide enough awake," Joseph M. Schenk, motion picture executive, said here today, "the State may gain a $150,000,000 a year film industry."

Schenk predicted an exodus of the film producing companies from California if Upton Sinclair, Democratic nominee, is elected Governor of that State and puts into effect his tax program.

Priest Predicts Terrific Quake for West Coast

Nanaimbo, British Columbia, Oct. 4 (AP).—An earthquake of major dimensions, which may occur in California late in 1939 or early in 1940, was forecast here today by the Rev. Father Barnard Hubbard, S. J., the "glacier priest."

Father Hubbard, professor of geology at Santa Clara University, California, based his prediction on the existence of the San Andreas drift, which he said slips three times in a century.

Federal College Urged for U. S. Civil Service

Training School Modeled After West Point Is Proposal.

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—A Federal college for training civil service employes, modeled after the West Point Military and Annapolis Naval Academies, was proposed today to the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada.

Bernard Silverstein, president of the Oakland (Calif.) city civil service commission, offered the suggestion to the assembly, which has brought 150 delegates to consider personnel problems in public administration.

The conference also heard a report on selection and management of 12,000 workers employed by the Tennessee Valley Authority in the past 15 months.

Dr. Floyd A. Reeves, director of personnel for the TVA, said professional positions are filled on the basis of applicants' ratings and classifications, while laborers undergo tests for mechanical aptitude and ability to follow printed and oral instructions. A system of transfers, promotions, and demotions enables employes to work into better positions, Dr. Reeves said.

N. B. Mitchell, president of the United States Civil Service Commission, said 6,797 Government positions had been placed under the protection of the civil service laws by the present Administration.

Mitchell cited the gain as a denial of what he termed a "deliberate attempt" by the public press and others to "create the impression that serious inroads have been made into the Federal civil service system."

He also declared statements that the total of civilian employes was now greater than during the World War were inaccurate.

"On November 11, 1918, there were 927,760 persons employed in the civil executive branch of the Federal Government," he said. "On June 30, 1934, there were 661,094 persons employed."

Mitchell said creation of new agencies which because of "their possible temporary nature," were expected from the operating of the competitive system, had resulted in many new employes not being included in the operation of the civil service laws.

V. F. W. Condemns National Sales Tax

Politics Shunned, Division of Wealth Advocated.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 4 (AP).—Condemning any National sales tax plan and refusing to go into politics, the Veterans of Foreign Wars declared their views on public matters in a stormy convention here today.

They denounced communism and demanded winder distribution of wealth, federalization of munition factories and payment of the war debts.

A "political code" proposal that V. F. W. posts as organizations be allowed to support or oppose candidates for Federal office, on the basis of their record on veterans' legislation, was defeated only after a bitter floor fight.

Brother on Trial For Murder, Girl Commits Suicide

Rising at dawn, Osca Furlani took a pistol from her mother's room as her parents slept and shot herself in the breast. She died almost instantly.

The girl's brother, Dominick, admitted in court last Monday he killed his wife because, he said, she wanted to associate with another man. Dominick later turned the pistol on himself and was blinded by the bullet.

U. S. Prepares To Slash Ocean Mail Subsidies

Shipping World's Notables Attend Hearing Called by Farley.

The Government opened a drive yesterday to cut $10,000,000 from its annual outlay of $32,000,000 in ocean-mail subsidies.

Thirty-six ocean and foreign air-mail contractors jammed a hearing by Postmaster General James A. Farley. They were ordered to show cause why their contracts should not be modified or canceled.

The inquiry, ordered by President Roosevelt, will seek to determine whether ship lines have used United States subsidies for new construction, as stipulated by law.

At the first session it was brought out that steamship lines owe the Government $111,366,757 on old Shipping Board loans. James Peacock, director of the Shipping Board Bureau of the Commerce Department, testified that companies had repaid only $23,817,695 on construction, reconditioning and ship sales loans up to June 30, 1934.

He said the old board made loans of $107,593,957 for construction of 31 ships, and that commercial companies had paid back only $12,064,983 of that sum. Reconditioning loans totaled $9,745,181, of which $1,097,994 had been repaid as of June 30, Peacock testified.

John E. Lamiell, director of the international postal service, told the hearing that $119,257,756 had been paid by the Government to mail contractors since 1928. Payments on a poundage basis would have saved the Government $103,722,247 during this period, he said.

Prominent figures of the shipping world attended yesterday's session, including R. Stanley Dollar, of the Dollar Lines.

The foreign air-mail phase of the inquiry will cover four carriers, operating over nine routes.

All contracts awarded prior to June, 1933, will be investigated, with the Postoffice Department required to submit a report within six months.

Virginia Cyclist, 16, Badly Injured by Auto

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.). Struck by an automobile yesterday as he was riding his bicycle on a country road, Welden Woodward, 16, Stafford High School senior, was in a critical condition tonight at the Mary Washington Hospital here.

Policeman Set Free by Judge In Assault Case

Mattingly Rules Against Complainant After Stormy Arguments.

Assault charges against a Third Precinct policeman were dismissed in Police Court yesterday. After four hours of testimony and accusations that James Clark, 27, colored, had been struck "without provocation" by Policeman Howard Pilling, Judge Robert E. Mattingly stopped heated legal arguments to return a verdict of not guilty.

Clark claimed that Pilling approached him near the Washington Auditorium early Sunday morning, September 23. A few words were exchanged and the policeman, Clark said, drew his gun and hit him with the butt. A struggle ensued, it was testified, and the colored man wrenched free, grabbed Pilling's gun and fired its contents into the ground.

Clark said he then ran to his home in the 400 block of Twentieth street northwest and hid in a rear room. The policeman, he charged, smashed the front door and followed him. The scuffle was renewed, Clark said, and after the arrival of additional policemen the pair was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises.

Pilling, however, said he found Clark peeking into dressing room windows of a walking marathon now underway at the auditorium. The policeman was dressed in civilian clothes and assigned to investigate "Peeping Tom" complaints. Pilling said he showed Clark his badge and arrested him.

At a corner patrol box, Pilling said, the colored man wrested free, knocked him against a tree and ran. The policeman said he gave chase and fired two shots into the air. He cornered Clark in the Twentieth street house and a scuffle followed. Passers-by summoned additional policemen.

Mother Dead 10 Minutes Before Birth of Child

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP).—A baby born ten minutes after the death of her mother, Mrs. Ellen Lewis, 35, gave promise today of living a normal life span.

Had Mrs. Lewis lived the baby would have been born in about three weeks. The woman was stricken with a severe headache last Sunday, and Dr. Robert J. McIvor ordered her at once to a hospital, where she died of a brain hemorrhage. The doctor performed a post-mortem cesarian operation.

Grange Joins Protest.

Pioneer Grange, at Masonville, Va., last night added its protest to that of a large list of organizations in Fairfax County, Va., including the county board of supervisors, against the proposed establishment of a District of Columbia welfare rehabilitation center in the county.

The grange was informed that the project calls for the allotment of at least 1½ acres of land on which a small house will be built, for each of 500 white and 500 colored families. It is proposed also to erect a canning factory near the settlements to provide employment for the families for a three-year period. At the end of that time the families would be self-supporting.

Members of the grange stated that such families have not been self-supporting in the past and are not liable to be in the future, and possibly would become a charge on the country.

Woodrow Wilson Jones, colored, of Bailey's Cross Roads, was sentenced to three years in the State penitentiary yesterday in the Circuit Court, on a charge of stealing a calf.

Theodore Roosevelt Lewis, Leonard Jacobs and Augusta Young, also colored, of Bailey's Cross Roads, indicted on the same charge, were found not guilty.

Air Show to See A 'Sure-Hit' Bomb

New Device Is Invention of George Brinkerhoff.

George Brinkerhoff, owner of the College Park (Md.) Airport, will demonstrate today and tomorrow his new aerial "sure-hit" bombing invention. The demonstration will be in connection with the air show to be staged by the Brinkerhoff Airport. The pilot will drop "bombs" on an imaginary enemy located on the field.

Other features of the two-day show will be a balloon ascension, a parachute jump by George DeGrange, of Washington, from 2,000 feet, and a marionette balloon ascension and race.

Norman Rintoul, of Martinsburg, W. Va., will demonstrate stunt flying. Miss Helen Frigo, of Washington, will stage a parachute jump. There will be another parachute jump from 10,000 feet.

"Windy" Broden, of New Orleans, La., will demonstrate one of the new jumping suits, taking a leap from an airplane 2,000 feet off the ground.

'Good Feed' Promised By Byrd to Associates

Winchester, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—"A good feed" with his mother has been promised by Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd to the three companions who have been at the advanced base in the Antarctic with him, a message received here today revealed.

Addresses to Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd, the radiogram from Admiral Byrd stated "Am O. K. again. My work here now finished. Am returning to Little America soon. Told the three fellows here with me that when we get back I am going to bring them to see you for a good feed. Much love."

Reelection Seen As a Certainty By Rep. Smith

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Confident of his reelection, Representative Howard W. Smith told the advisory and county Democratic executive committees last night that he would leave the character of the campaign in Arlington County in their hands.

"I have most encouraging reports from all sections of the Eighth District and, while I have not been in Arlington County of late, I am sure that there is hardly any need for worry," he said.

Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green said it was necessary to advise the voters there is to be an election next month. In this he was supported by Sheriff Howard B. Fields and County Treasurer Charles T. Jesse.

Charles R. Fenwick, chairman of the county committee, announced that a strong committee whose duty will be to get out the vote will be organized in each of the eleven precincts.

Following the meeting, Representative Smith and the two committees attended the monthly meeting of the Arlington County Democratic Club in Odd Felows Hall.

A resolution drafted by I. C. Buchanan proposing the removal of the Commonwealth's attorney as legal adviser to the county board and substituting counsel of the board's own choice, has been referred to the legislative and legal action committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation for study.

It is proposed in the resolution that legislation be enacted by the next General Assembly placing the office of Commonwealth's attorney in Arlington County in a class with the office of Commonwealth's attorney in cities of the first class.

Fixing a goal of 1,000 members, Carlton K. Lewis, president of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Washington-Lee High School, addressed the students yesterday and urged them to have their parents become members of the association.

A special committee has been appointed and the room in both junior and senior departments turning in the largest number of members will be awarded a prize. The contest, Lewis stated, will close next Friday evening.

There will be a recognition service for the Sunday School teachers of Arlington County this evening at 8 o'clock in the Parish Hall of St. George's Episcopal Church at Clarendon. The Rev. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of the Church of the Reformation, of Washington, will speak on "The Ideal Sunday School Teacher."

Confronted with the need of a voting place for Clarendon Precinct No. 1, Claude O. Thomas, secretary of the Arlington County Electoral Board, last night announced he will ask the county board to purchase a temporary building for the purpose.

For the past four years, Thomas stated, it has been necessary to search for a voting place, and in most instances he has been unable to locate one until just before the election. This not only has been an annoyance to the electoral board, but a great inconvenience to the voters, Thomas stated.

Plans looking to the organization of a Boy Scout Troop will feature the meeting of the Boys Columbus Club tonight. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock in the Knights of Columbus clubrooms at 14 Garrison road at Clarendon.

Bethel Chapter, No. 1, Job's Daughters, will hold its monthly meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the Masonic Temple at Clarendon.

T. S. Gibson's Funeral At Winchester Today

Winchester, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow morning for Treadwell Smith Gibson, 65, member of an old and prominent Clarke County family, at his residence on the Millwood road. Mr. Gibson died suddenly of a heart attack.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Estelle Ginn, and by one sister, Mrs. B. S. Morgan, of Clarke County.

Montgomery Democrats Seek Semiannual Tax

Provision for semiannual payment of taxes in Montgomery County, Md., will be advocated in the Democratic county platform, Stedman Prescott, of Rockville, chairman of the Democratic organization committee, announced last night.

Sunrise in the Suburbs

By Clyde H. DuBose.

Prince Georges County Red Cross committeemen (and committee women) are going into a huddle preparatory to calling signals for "the big drive" November 1.

Dr. C. P. Close, of College Park, president of the local chapter, has appointed William A. Duvall, of Branchville, to head the push.

The District of Columbia won't put any rehabilitation camps in Fairfax County—if Fairfax County can help it.

The country board of supervisors has adopted a resolution officially opposing any such intrusion. As far as they are concerned the District will have to find other quarters for its 500 white families and 500 colored families now on relief rolls. Prince Georges County has already shown she feels much the same way about the matter. When Beltsville was mentioned, there was strenuous objection.

There is nothing quite so distinctively southern Maryland as the famous, but fast-disappearing, riding tournaments where brave "knights" ride abroad (a 100-foot stretch) for the honor of poking a lance through a keyring.

In but few other sections of the country is this strange custom even heard of—or given a thought. It was an old English custom which was transplanted in southern Maryland.

University of Maryland frosh were proudly wearing fraternity sorority pledge pins yesterday after 24 hours of acute anxiety.

Alexandria will lose about $13,000 under its new tax assessment. But the city is valued at approximately $17,000,000, so there's still something left from which to collect taxes.

Augusta School Opening Today

3 Out of 12 High Schools Have New Principals; Enrollment Heavy.

Waynesboro, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Augusta County schools will open for an eight-month term tomorrow, with the prospects of the largest enrollment in history. Three of the 12 high schools will have new principals and a number of changes among the 200 teachers have been announced by Supt. A. C. Gilkeson.

The annual meeting of the teachers was held at Beverly Manor School today, with C. J. Heatwole, editor of the Virginia Journal of Education, as speaker. Sergt. Robert Lynn, of the State police, addressed the group on "Safety First." Plans were outlined by Supt. Gilkeson.

At a meeting of the Augusta County Principals' Association yesterday, all officers of the group were reelected. They are J. M. Garber, president; Maurice Collins, vice president, and E. E. May, secretary-treasurer.

Officers chosen for the Athletic and Literary League are E. E. May, president; O. S. Crute vice president, and Wilbur S. Pence, secretary-treasurer.

Principals who will begin the session Friday in new positions include Martin Folkes, Craigsville High; E. E. Cox, at Stuarts Draft High, and O. S. Crute, at Mount Sidney High.

Farm Group Seeking Rail Grain Elevators

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Farmers National Grain Corporation proposed to Joseph Eastman, Federal coordinator of railways, today to take over all railway-owned grain elevators in principal terminal markets, and operate them under lease from the railway companies.

The proposal, announced by C. E. Huff, president of the Farmers Cooperative, was offered as a substitute for recent recommendations of J. A. Little, member of Eastman's staff, that railway elevator facilities be pooled and turned over to a newly formed corporation to operate on a uniform basis for reasons of economy.

Rockville Man Injured As He Walks Into Auto

Frank Burrus, 60, of Rockville, Md., was injured last night when he walked into the side of an automobile operated by Corman Schenk, of Takoma Park, Md., in front of Montgomery County Police Headquarters at Rockville.

The driver did not see Burrus until he felt the impact of his body, he told police. Burrus was taken to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring by the Rockville Rescue Squad. He was treated for cuts on the head and severe shock.

Corley Is Reelected Bridge League's Head

Lieut. Comdr. W. A. Corley, U. S. N., was reelected president of the Washington Bridge League, and was designated head of a committee to bring the National Championship Bridge Tournament of the American Bridge League to Washington in the near future, at a meeting held Wednesday in the Shoreham Hotel.

Other officers chosen are: Harry T. Wensel, vice president, Edith Swanson, secretary, and Edward Swanson, treasurer. Members of the executive committee are Mrs. Martin West, A. Philip Stockvis and M. W. Lake.

Drive on Diphtheria Planned in Rockville

Plans for a drive against diphtheria were discussed at the public health nursing committee for Rockville District yesterday at the courthouse in Rockville, Md.

It was revealed that 16 cases of diphtheria have been reported in the district. The committee will visit the homes of preschool age children and urge their parents to take them to their family physician for inoculation. Those unable to afford a physician will be inoculated at a public health clinic.

Drive Planned By Alexandria Sewing Guild

New Members Are Sought Prior to Display of Work.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

Mrs. Effie L. Baggett, president of the Alexandria Branch of the Needlework Guild of America, has announced a membership drive for next week, and also that the annual display of garments will be held on November 14 in Lee Camp Hall.

Mrs. Baggett states the only requirement for membership is to contribute two new garments, or the amount of money needed to purchase such, for this cause. No used apparel is given out by the guild.

The Needlework Guild of America is celebrating its fiftieth year of service, and the local branch is working to exceed all previous contributions during this anniversary year. All articles of clothing or bedding are received by the members and after the display on November 14, the representatives of all charitable bodies in the city will be given the garments collected for distribution to the poor. Many articles are given to the Alexandria Hospital for charity patients.

The officers of the guild who are conducting the membership drive are Mrs. Baggett, president; Mrs. Llewellyn Dyson, secretary, and Mrs. William A. Moncure, treasurer.

The annual election of officers of the student council of St. Agnes School was held on Wednesday, with Miss Anna Bryant Hill chosen as president, Mrs. Betty Brown-Serman as vice president, Miss Natalie Schoonmaker, secretary, and Miss Margaret Rust, treasurer.

Miss Imogene Shepperson and Miss Grace Richards are eighth grade representatives on the council. Miss Louise Backus is president of the senior and also a member of the student council. Mrs. Burge Caton and Miss Martha Sinclair are faculty advisers to the council.

The enrollment of pupils in the Alexandria public schools shows an increase over last year of 176, the total being 4,958, according to Superintendent T. C. Williams.

Arrangements have been made with the public welfare board to investigate the cases of all students who apply for free textbooks, under the provisions of the indigent school law.

The fifth birthday celebration of the Carlyle Lodge, No. 596, Ladies Society of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was held last night in Carpenters Hall on Prince street. Mrs. Neva Brewer, grand organizer, was guest of honor.

A film will be shown at 3:30 p. m. today in the auditorium of the Virginia Public Service Building, under the auspices of the Better Housing Division, National Emergency Council of the Federal Housing Administration. Bankers, newspaper representatives and others interested are invited.

A class in public speaking will be opened Monday at the adult opportunity school. All those interested have been asked to appear at 7 p. m.

Veterans Prepare To Toss Out Reds At Meeting Today

Two hundred stalwart World War veterans prepared last night to "toss out on their ears" any Communists appearing at a meeting to be held by the veterans today at McPherson Square northwest, at 9:30 a. m.

The veterans, transients from points throughout the country, trekked into Washington newspaper offices yesterday to deny reports that they were affiliated with any Red organizations.

"All we want is a chance to enlist in the veterans' CCC camps, and Gen. Frank T. Hines is handling that for us," said the spokesman of the group. 'We're not asking for payment of the bonus or anything else. Communists have issued circulars supposed to represent our program.

"And, boy! If we catch any Communists hanging around our meeting!"

Carey Freear, 11, was injured last night when he rode his bicycle into an automobile driven by John S. Shinn, 20, of 1863 Mintwood place northwest. The boy, who lives at 1125 Twelfth street northwest, was taken to Children's Hospital. His right leg was broken.

Baltimore M. E. Session Begun; Rives Speaker

400 Ministers and Laymen On Hand for 150th Yearly Meeting.

Baltimore, Oct. 4 (AP).—The 150th annual meeting of the Baltimore conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South opened in the Alpheus W. Wilson Memorial Church here tonight.

The majority of the conference's 300 ministers and 108 lay members were present to hear Dr. J. J. Rives, pastor of the Emory Church, Washington, preach the opening sermon. Among those absent were Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, scheduled to preside, who was detained by illness at his home in Charlotte, N. C.

The first business session of the conference is scheduled for tomorrow morning. Among the more important matters slated to be discussed are:

A move to give women a larger representation on the conference boards, sponsored by the "status of women committee" of the Woman's Missionary Council.

The general conference's new financial plan which allows each church to fix its own budget and decide how much it will contribute into the conference treasury. Hitherto the general conference assessed each local conference which, in turn, assessed the individual churches.

Legislation to limit to four the number of years a presiding elder may serve. The proposed change would require all presiding elders to return to a pastorate, after one term in office, for at least four years before reassuming the elder's duties.

Peery to Campaign To Aid Flannagan

Governor Will Take Stump Probably in November.

Richmond, Oct. 4 (AP).—Gov. Peery, a former member of Congress from the Ninth District, will take the stump for John W. Flannagan, Democrat, seeking reelection to the House of Representatives in the November election.

The Governor today said he had accepted an invitation to speak for the candidacy of Representative Flanagan in the Ninth District. He said the invitation came from the joint Democratic speakers' bureau. The chief executive said he expected his speeches would be made at strategic district points the first week in November.

Home Demonstration Set in Loudoun County

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—The annual achievement day for home demonstration clubs in Loudoun County will be held in the Leesburg High School auditorium on October 16 instead of October 12, the date formerly announced. Miss Matilda Garner, home demonstration agent, reports that Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, will make the principal address at 2 p. m., when her subject will be "A Look at the Farm Home."

Following the line of home improvement the major project for this year's work, the committee announces that exhibits will consist of table linens, reconditioned furniture, canned products and flowers.

Insull's Group Rigged Market, Jurymen Hear

Chief Defendant Took Profit From Ruined Concern, Says U. S.

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—From the books and records of some 75 corporations, the Government today began assembling proof in support of its claim that Samuel Insull's "Corporation Securities Co. of Chicago" was only a weapon with which to take $100,000,000 from investors.

First witnesses were the office managers of brokerage houses. They were asked only to identify their own contributions to the small mountain of ledgers and other records on which the prosecutors rely.

Earlier in the first day of Insull's trial for mail fraud, the erstwhile utilities overlord and 16 business associates, sitting beneath Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's bench, heard charges which left little standing of Insull's reputation as a financier.

Four Allegations.

-that--a

1—That while investors lost about $100,000,000 when the company sank, Insull himself received, in all, more than $28,000,000 from it.

2—That the company was launched as a "simple conspiracy to swindle, cheat and defraud the public."

3—That while issuing stocks and bonds for which investors paid $143,000,000 in all, Insull and the others "rigged the market"—being secretly behind every transaction, in one month, which occurred on the Chicago Stock Exchange and gave the company's stock luster.

4—That Insull and the others drained the company for dividends, even after it was insolvent, and created it in the first place as a way of unloading some troublesome investments and getting in fresh cash at the same time.

Unloading Charge.

Most damaging to Insull's assurance was the Government's assertion that Insull and his son, seeing their companies tottering late in 1931 and early in 1932, unloaded stock in Insull Utility Investments, Inc., on Utility Securities Co., hiding the deals through brokers.

Although he promised proof that every one of the 17 defendants had a share in the scheme, knew the company was flimsy and launched it only because they were in dire need of money, Green focused blame upon Insull himself, and upon Harold L. Stuart.

Insull, his son, Samuel, jr., and his brother, Martin J. Insull, were the members of the executive committee of Corporation Securities, along with Stuart. They were also the finance committee of Insull Utility Investments, which the Government prosecutor charged was used as the customer to keep Insull stocks lively on the stock exchanges.

Mass Arranged On Anniversary

Father Rosensteel Will Mark 50 Years as Church's Rector.

The Right Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, will preside at the solemn high mass which will mark the golden anniversary November 4 of the Rev. Charles Rosensteel, rector of St. John's Catholic Church, Forest Glen, Md. The mass will be celebrated by Father Rosensteel and will begin at 11 a. m.

The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Peter Guilday, orator of the Catholic University. There also will be a banquet in celebration of the golden anniversary and in honor of the long service of Father Rosensteel as chaplain of the Forest Glen Council, Knights of Columbus, which is sponsoring the celebration, and Potomac Council, of Washington. A third-degree initiation will be put on by knights as part of the program.

Erection of a memorial to Archbishop John Carroll, first archbishop of the United States, who was first pastor of the church also, is a part of the plans for the celebration.

Members of the general committee in charge are Louis C. Beall, chairman; John Brennan, vice chairman; A. J. Ganey, secretary; J. Fendal Coughlin, treasurer; the Rev. Dr. Guilday, Grand Knight E. E. Ruppert, Deputy Grand Knight John J. Reed, W. Douglas Wade, Edward P. Powers, Paul Taggart, J. Everett Schrider, George B. Mess, Edward M. Wise, jr., F. A. McCann, Louis A. Alberti, F. Patient Sues Dentist Charging Broken Jaw

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Hearing of a $5,000 damage suit against Dr. F. T. Cassiday, of Fredericksburg, for allegedly breaking the jaw bone of Fred Coleman, a dental patient, was set today for October 24. Coleman claimed an infection resulted from Dr. Cassiday's failure to care properly for the patient's teeth after treatment. Dr. Cassiday denies negligence and declares that the infection was due to natural causes and Coleman's carelessness in seeking suitable treatment.

Competition of U. S. In Business Assailed

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—The National Retail Council in session here today attacked what it said was Government competition with private business, financed with relief funds.

"Various governmental agencies have undertaken the production and distribution of mattresses, bedding, furniture, dresses, dishes, canned goods. This will result in decreased purchasing from private manufacturers and inevitably bring about increased unemployment."

How the New Fort Dupont Park Will Appear

Drive Renewed On Traffic Law Violators Here

Motorists Who Make Turns From Wrong Lanes Are Targets.

Officers and patrolmen on duty with the Traffic Bureau were told yesterday to deal more drastically with motorists who fail to signal properly or keep in the correct lanes for turns. The order came from Inspector B. A. Lamb, chief of the Bureau.

Inspector Lamb's action followed a report by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer that 48 per cent of turns at one intersection during rush hours were made from the wrong lane.

The report by Van Duzer covered the intersections at Pennsylvania avenue and Seventh street, Euclid and Fourteenth streets and Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

The following disclosures with regard to accidents at intersections were made by the report:

At Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, 12 accidents, six caused by making turns from the wrong lanes; Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, 21 accidents, five from the wrong lane; Seventeenth and H streets, seven accidents, four by turns from the wrong lane; Fourteenth and G streets, 21 accidents, five from turns from the wrong lane; Eighth street and Pennsylvania avenue, six accidents, four from turns from the wrong lane.

City Proposed For Conference

Fredericksburg Kiwanis Seeks Mid-Winter District Session.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Indorsement of Fredericksburg as the locale for the mid-winter conference of the Capital district of Kiwanis was voted yesterday by the local Kiwanis Club.

A letter bearing the club's resolution will be presented at the Capital district convention in Richmond next week.

The Rev. E. C. Lancaster was named a member of the program committee for November, and will be chairman of the committee during December. G. Fred Cook is chairman for November and W. B. F. Cole holds the office for the remainder of October.

Medals for the winners of the track events of the summer playground work, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, will be presented at a meeting in the high school auditorium later in the year, it was announced.

Paralysis Hits Nurses; Coast Hospital Closed

Santa Ana, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP).—An outbreak of infantile paralysis among nurses caused the closing of the Orange County Hospital today to all except emergency surgery and accident cases. Twelve nurses were reported ill, but only three were said to be afflicted. The normal nursing force numbers about 40.

Five patients in the hospital also have paralysis.

Convict Volunteers Ill After Serum Test

Canon City, Colo., Oct. 4 (AP).—Harry Rose and Lloyd F. White, life convicts who voluntered to risk their lives in experiments to test the effectiveness of a new tuberculosis serum, were ill in the prison hospital today after receiving injections.

Physicians said their condition is not serious but that they are being kept under careful observation.

Hylan to Be Candidate For N. Y. Governorship

New York, Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Former Mayor John F. Hylan announced today he had accepted an invitation from the executive committee of the Recovery party to become its candidate for Governor.

Petitions are now being circulated in the 62 counties of the State, Hylan said he had been advised, for the necessary figures to have his name placed on the ballot.

PWA Experts Still Checking Sewer Project

Financing of Work May Prove Hindrance to Disposal Plant.

PWA engineers yesterday continued checking up on the work schedule submitted in a letter by the District Commissioners for the sewage-disposal plant construction, while Administrator Ickes declined to comment on the matter at a press conference.

The engineers are understood to be checking every detail of the schedule with the idea of taking up any slack they discover and thereby speeding up the project.

One of the problems involved in the $8,000,000 loan, it was learned, concerns whether the PWA will make available the entire amount at once to the credit of the District at the Treasury.

Comptroller General McCarl has ruled on a question put by the Commissioners that the project can not be started until the $8,000,000 is on deposit to the District's credit.

The customary policy of the PWA, on the other hand, is to release a loan piecemeal as the work progresses and to furnish no funds until the project is under way.

Because of the restrictions placed on the District by the Comptroller General's ruling, the Commissioners called a halt on an engineering study being made by a Boston firm because they did not want to incur a debt without assurance of being able to pay it.

These facts, it is understood, are set forth in the Commissioners' letter as some of the reasons why the sewage-disposal plant has not been put under construction.

It is expected that Ickes will make a formal reply to the District heads today or tomorrow.

Pedestrian Is Killed By Car at Winchester

Winchester, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—An unidentified pedestrain was instantly killed late today on United States Route 11 about a mile north of Winchester, when he was struck by a car driven by John H. Waite, en route to St. Petersburg, Fla. A slip of paper found in pocket of the victim bore the name of George Meadows, Martinsburg, W. Va.

Officers investigating the accident late this evening stated that no charges have been brought against Waite. The man was walking on the highway, and it is believed he stepped directly in front of the automobile.

Ruth Chatterton Loses 12 Pounds, Also George Brent

RUTH CHATTERTON.

Los Angeles, Oct. 4 (AP).—Ruth Chatterton, actress, testified today she lost 12 pounds the last week she and George Brent lived together.

Two minutes later she had a divorce from the stalwart Irish actor, ten years her junior, whom she had guided to film stardom and then married.

It was less than three years ago that the star met the black-haired six-foot-one actor playing a minor role.

That same year she was divorced from Ralph Forbes, actor whom she married in 1924, and the day after the decree was issued she and Brent were married.

The romance was short. They separated last March.

Meaning of Liberalism Clouded, Professor Says

Misunderstanding has arisen through invoking of the doctrine of liberalism by "hidebound conservatives who use it as a convenient label for ideas of the good old times, which they are unwilling to see outmoded," Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, professor of history in the George Washington University, said in a radio address last night.

He called for a redefinition of liberalism, saying that the conservatives would have us "believe that present efforts of government to remedy economic inequalities constitute a challenge to liberty."

RECIPE: from a famous café of the '90's

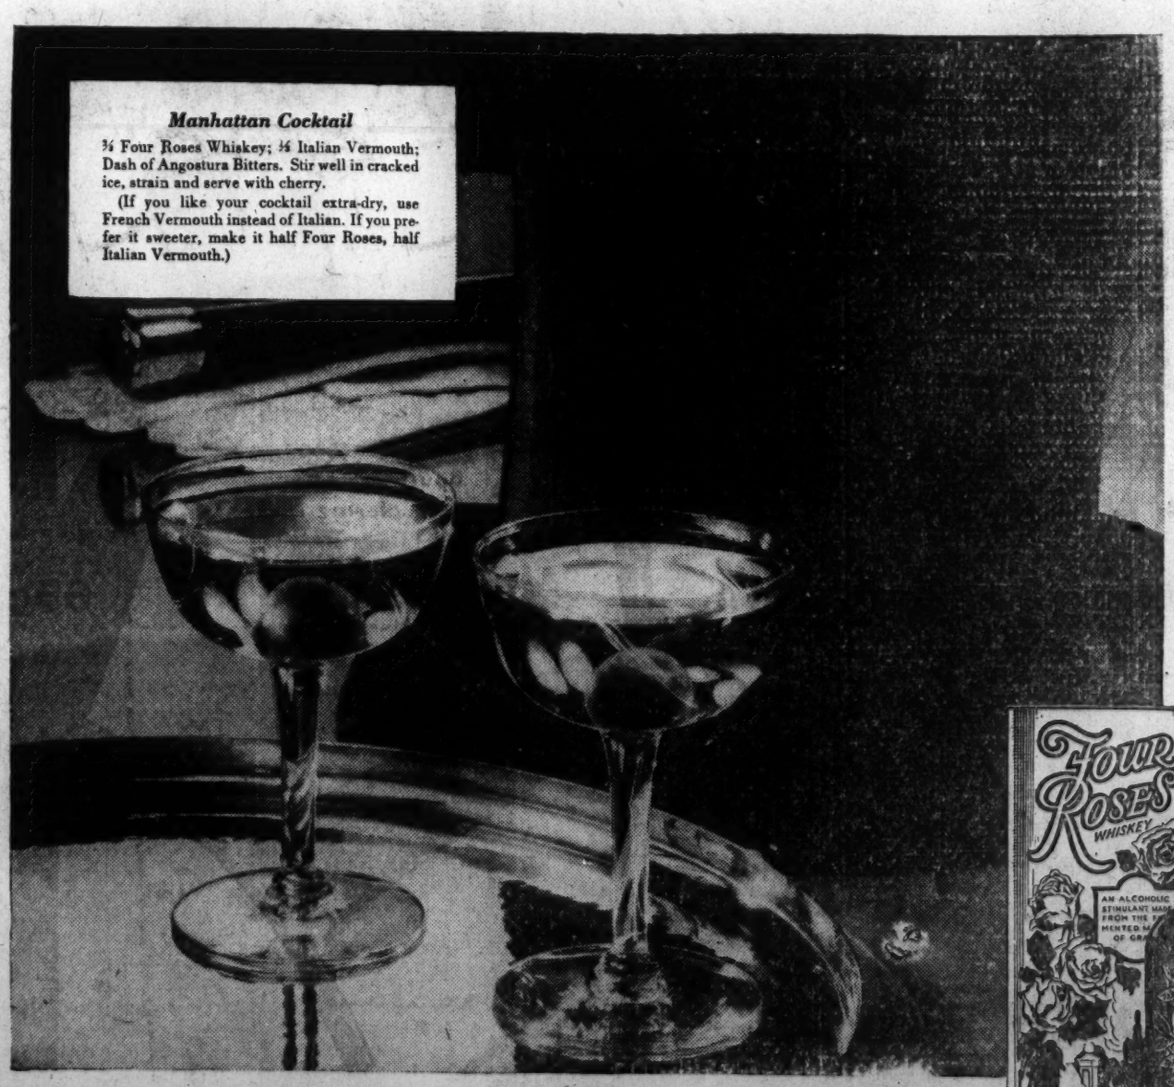
RESULT: The perfect Manhattan Cocktail



Manhattan Cocktail
⅔ Four Roses Whiskey; ⅓ Italian Vermouth; Dash of Angostura Bitters. Stir well in cracked ice, strain and serve with cherry.
(If you like your cocktail extra-dry, use French Vermouth instead of Italian. If you prefer it sweeter, make it half Four Roses, half Italian Vermouth.)

A Note on the Manhattan Cocktail

The Manhattan is one of America's three most popular cocktails. It was invented in the 1890's—some say at the old Knickerbocker, others at Jack's, still others at old Delmonico's—and became a favorite aperitif of that gilded age. In those days, it even had its special glass—the type illustrated here.

Sealed for safety in the Frankfort Pack

But the most important thing of all is to use a fine whiskey. Four Roses Whiskey!

For a Manhattan gets its chief flavor from the whiskey in it. And what whiskey could give so rich a flavor as the one that triumphed over 30 other famous brands in a grand "taste-tournament"?

An* American *whiskey—not "American type"

Four Roses is an American whiskey—distilled by Americans in America. More than that, it is made in Kentucky and Maryland, where the native limestone water adds a richness you can get nowhere else. And it's made in the old-fashioned American way—from the finest hand-made whiskies, aged to ripe maturity in charred oak barrels. No alcohol or spirits added!

Four Roses is made by a company that knows how! Frankfort has been making fine whiskey for four straight generations.

Four Roses is sold everywhere. Try it in cocktails, in highballs, and "neat." Ask for Four Roses in hotels and restaurants, too. You can be certain of getting the genuine article. For it comes sealed in the patented Frankfort Pack that must be destroyed before the bottle within it can be removed.

Definite Policy Needed by U.S., Says Wallace

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today envisaged an era of "unimaginable prosperity" for the Nation after it has decided to follow the path of nationalism, internationalism or a course plotted out between these alternatives.

"I am inclined to think," he told delegates to the annual convention of the Mortgage Bankers Association, "we must choose soon a policy of nationalism, internationalism or a course between. Once the choice has been made, we can enter into unimaginable prosperity. Until it is made, we will have confused counsel and people calling each other names. But things can be made to add up and come out even."

He gave the men who hold many mortgages on farm land a comprehensive review of the Administration's policies and a prospectus of plans.

The crop control projects must continue, he said, or a "gravely disturbing" surplus will be on hand.

Withdrawal of corn-hog limitations would mean an increase in corn acreage of 20 per cent over the 1932-33 period, he pointed out, and a 600,000,000-bushel surplus a year from now.

Efforts to revive foreign trade were proceedings slowly, he said, and Cuba's agreement to lower its import barriers was a hopeful step in that direction.

The secretary advised agriculturists to retain the processing tax despite a drive to abolish it he envisioned during the next Congress. He mentioned as possible replacements the borrowing of benefit payment funds from the Treasury and a 1¼ per cent tax on manufactured goods.

"We watch to see whether the South votes to continue this plan," he said. "If it works, steps may be taken to apply that method to the rest of the country. But I question that procedure."

John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, informed the association his organization had saved more than 530,000 homes and had disbursed over $1,600,000,000 in 13 months.

Y. M. C. A. Plans Member Drive

600 Additions Is Goal Set in Campaign Led by Vandergrift.

Its goal set at 600 new members, the Central Y. M. C. A. will launch an intensive membership campaign next week.

John L. Vandergrift, telephone executive and active Y. M. C. A. worker, has been selected as general chairman of the campaign organization, which will include a cross-section of the city's official, business and professional circles. The drive is from October 12 to October 20.

Assisting Mr. Vandergrift will be two executive chairmen, Earl Nash and Charles P. Clark, and a campaign secretary, Randolph E. Myers, promotion secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Vendergrift announced yesterday his campaign organization of about 200 men would be divided into three divisions, with five teams in each division.

Leading the first will be J. O. Martin, chairman, and Ralph W. Foster, secretary. The second division will be headed by Dr. Carson P. Frailey and C. E. Fleming, and the third division by George E. Harris and Page McK Etchison.

Wounds in Fight Cause Man's Death

Gunshot wounds inflicted at his home Saturday by a roomer in his house caused the death yesterday in Emergency Hospital of Owen Sennett, 45, of the 500 block of F street northwest.

Police said last night a formal charge of murder would be lodged against Gordon V. Williamson, 44, the alleged gun wielder, today. Williamson has been held without bond since the shooting.

The shooting grew out of an argument the two men engaged in Saturday, police said. They asserted they had been told by Sennett that Williamson entered his room, and when he was ordered to leave, fired twice.

Two Indiana Policemen Given $5,000 for Dillinger's Death

East Chicago Officers Are Rewarded for Tracking Down Outlaw.

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Federal Government today paid the two men who found Dillinger $2,500 each "for services rendered."

To the men—Capt. Timothy O'Neil and Sergt. Martin Zarkovich, of East Chicago, Ind., police force. The reward was in the nature of a second installment.

John Dillinger's death was the first payment to them for the slaying of their colleague and friend, Patrolman William O'Malley, whose death in a bank raid was laid to Dillinger.

Zarkovich, unmarried, was credited in East Chicago with having caught several desperadoes. When O'Malley was killed he asked for and obtained a leave of absence and, paying his own expenses, set out to find Dillinger.

O'Neil, his superior officer, advised with him, and together they discovered the plans of the outlaw for the evening of July 22. How they would not say.

O'Neil is married, nearing 55, and a veteran of many police encounters. He and Zarkovich have worked together on numerous crimes.

O'Neil and the Government disposed of the "woman in red" angle when the Government awarded the officers the money, and O'Neil said, "A woman had no part in it."

When Dillinger was shot in his tracks as he emerged from the theater it was reported two women were with him, and the speculation then was that they had "put the finger" on the outlaw.

With the payment of the $5,000, the Government's Dillinger debt was cleared. The sum of $10,000 offered for the capture or slaying of the outlaw will not be paid, since Government agents are credited with the killing.

Dern to Be Guest At Clarksburg Fete

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Secretary of War George H. Dern will come here from the Mountain State Forest Festival to be honor guest Saturday night. He will be received at a dinner of the local alumni chapter of the Delta Tau Delta, a National college fraternity, to be held at the Waldo Hotel, with Dr. C. O. Post, chapter president, presiding.

Doumergue Sees War In United Red Front

Paris, Oct. 4 (AP).—Premier Gaston Doumergue, addressing France by radio for the second time in ten days, tonight told the nation that the Socialist and Communist "common front" will lead to "civil war tomorrow, followed by foreign war."

Asserting the future of France was at stake, Doumergue called for a "common front of liberty and patriotism" to fight the Red front.

PWA Allots $20,000 For Reservoir Repairs

An allotment of $20,000 to the Engineer Corps of the War Department to finance minor repairs to the Dalecarlia Reservoir, on Reservoir road, was announced yesterday by the Public Works Administration.

The reservoir is a part of the District water supply system, which is operated by the United States engineer's office for this area.

Williams, Ex-Net Star, Loses Balm Suit Plea

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—Lucien E. Williams, former tennis star, was ordered in superior court today to file an answer to a $50,000 breach of promise suit, notwithstanding his contention that his accuser, Miss Margaret Irene Boyce, had signed a stipulation agreeing to drop the case.

Counsel for Miss Boyce asserted Williams had plied her with liquor until she forgave him and signed the dismissal agreement.

Page Valley Field Trials Will Be Held Oct. 15-16

Luray, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Arrangements have been made for holding the Page Valley Field Trials in this county October 15 and 16.

The trials will be held in Springfield District, where birds are reported to be plantiful. The "undercover" for the birds is said to be the best in a dozen years where the different trials have been held. The judges are Ernest C. Meade, Richmond, and Thomas P. Baldwin, of Washington.

Alabama Slum Clearance.

Montgomery, Ala., is to have a slum clearance project under way shortly. PWA officials announced yesterday they were ready to go ahead with condemnation proceeding to obtain four blocks of slum area. The development will be occupied by Negroes, and will cost about $320,000.

New Deal Bars Steel Rocovery, Girdler States

Fear of Monetary Policy Deters Expenditures Official Holds.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Declaring that "no business is willing to spend a dollar except for immediate requirements," T. M. Girdler, chairman of the board of the Republic Steel Corporation, said tonight the policies and philosophies of the New Deal are holding back recovery in steel and allied industries.

Girdler, addressing the American Society for Metals, criticized the monetary policy of the Roosevelt Administration, saying:

"When business has some assurance as to what the dollar may be expected to be worth a year from now, then it may venture to plan a year ahead. But until that time it will make no commitments except for immediate needs."

Second "Difficulty."

The second "difficulty" to progress in the steel and durable goods industries, Girdler said, is "the hesitation with respect to long-term financing and distribution of investments."

He asserted that, in his opinion, the new securities act "is not the principal deterrent to the flotation of new capital issues," adding that "I believe that the act will, especially when modified by practical experience, prove to be helpful."

What is "holding back the issuance of new securities," the steel man said, "is not so much the new securities act, as the often-expressed New Deal philosophy with respect to redistribution of wealth, and the discouragement of the opportunity of business to make a profit."

Saying the steel industry was in sympathy with the efforts of the Administration to shorten hours and raise wages, Girdler continued:

"Unfortunately for the New Deal, it is one of the simple rules of economics that in order for money to be paid out, that money must be taken in."

Labor Situation.

The "third difficulty" to steel recovery Girdler laid at the door of the labor situation.

"What is needed," he said, "is a clear-cut statement from an authoritative Governmental source, correcting organized labor's misinterpretations of the collective bargaining provision of NRA, and emphasizing the fact that under the law, all employes have equal rights and privileges. I think such a move would go far toward preventing strikes and other disturbances."

Saying "it is far from the case" that "I am opposed entirely to the New Deal," Girdler said the steel industry had found its code "good business practice."

Choose

WHITE HORSE

—this is the reason

Its taste is so distinctive, its aroma and bouquet so satisfying. Then it is always soft and smooth to the palate . . . always sets pleasantly . . . always acts as the perfect bracer . . .

These virtues result from extraordinary care in selecting the choicest whiskies and from patience in aging in wood and unusual skill in blending and "marrying". Whisky such as White Horse—Real Old Scotch—can be made no other way. That is why you should always order "White Horse" instead of merely saying "Scotch".

A Laboratory.

Resuming her public discussion of National issues by the press-conference method, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt rises to the defense of the Reedsville subsistence homestead project. "The whole program," she is quoted as saying, "is experimental, and that accounts for some of the greater expense than was originally planned." Regardless of costs, she is of the opinion that "human stories" connected with this enterprise are adequate justification for Government experiments along the lines undertaken."

Casual planning and still more careless execution may be explained, but can scarcely be justified, by simply labeling them "experimental." The very fact that innovations are contemplated would seem to call for the most scrupulous advance preparation. Yet the evidence is strong that the Reedsville project was initiated without any adequate conception of its cost or of the difficulties that would be encountered in finding employment for the homesteaders.

The Reedsville project, according to Mrs. Roosevelt, is to be a sort of laboratory. Certainly laboratory work is important in the social as well as the exact sciences. But laboratories, as the name implies, are unemotional and severely practical workshops. They can not justify themselves merely by possessing human-interest material incidental to their main objective.

Pulitzer Prize.

Long and violent continue the discussions over the prerequisites of Pulitzer prize plays. Last winter, when Walter Prichard Eaton, Clayton Hamilton and Austin Strong chose "Mary of Scotland" for the award, only to have their decision overruled, the debate in the critical columns was little less than furious. It has been revived by the "resignation" of this jury because of new "restrictions" placed upon it.

Mr. Eaton is particularly riled by the restrictions. "They don't want dramatic experts any more—they want office boys. No self-respecting, intelligent critic would serve on such a jury. The advisory board consists of a group of newspaper editors, mostly from out of town, who go up to Columbia once a year. I have no doubt they are excellent men, but they don't know a thing about the theater."

While we would be the last to set a newspaper editor above a critic, there is, we feel, something snobbish about Mr. Eaton's remark. The Pulitzer prizes were never meant, by the late Mr. Pulitzer, to discover paragons of literary virtue. They were for the purpose of awarding the American writer who best interpreted some phase of "wholesome American life." That idea, however, has slightly changed. In art, on the stage, or in literature, nevertheless, we have yet to feel that art for art's sake, rather than for entertainment, has had much to do with the majority of Pulitzer decisions.

Perhaps it may be that the out-of-town visitor, who makes up a goodly portion of New York audiences, knows as much about what constitutes a good play as does the critic. At least he knows what he wants. And it rather appears that the late Mr. Pulitzer, himself, ordered his intellectual life from the uncritical point of view. Undoubtedly, the Pulitzer prizes help attract attention to plays or books. But whoever said the decisions were to be based upon coldly detached and purely objective critical standards? Surely not Joseph Pulitzer. And to paraphrase Mr. Coolidge: he gave the money, didn't he?

A Secretary Of Art.

There may be more than just a wishful dream in Mr. Edward Bruce's suggestion that some day an Administration may establish a secretaryship for the arts in the Cabinet. The idea, at least, is pleasant to toy with, although, as Mr. Bruce says, the suggestion at the present time is somewhat premature.

The Public Works of Arts Project attracted much attention. It did a great deal of good. To Mr. Bruce and his fellow "fairy godfathers to the artists" great credit has properly been given. And, strange as it may seem, one of the most delightful aspects of the recent venture in subsidized art was the absence of academic crustiness on the part of the directors. The whole venture was pleasant throughout and undoubtedly revealed the presence of a number of hitherto thwarted geniuses who might never have been heard from if Federal patronage had not been available.

Nobody wishes governmental relief for either artists or workers to go on forever. The artist, however, often has a harder struggle than the worker. For the latter lives by his work, while the artist has to work so that he can live to create his art. What Mr. Bruce evidently has in mind is some sort of benevolent governmental patronage whereby the artist with ability may have the security necessary to enable him to paint or write.

A basic trouble with this suggestion is that under such a system the artist who lives by revolt against tradition (as most great artists have lived) would have little to kick about. A wise secretary of art, however, could take care of that by demanding academic work from the radical and Dadaism from the graduates of the Boston Museum School! Most artists would rather row over technique than political systems, anyway. Our suggestion for the first secretary of the arts would be Mr. Thomas Craven. Nobody would go stale under patronage with him in the Cabinet!

Debatable Remedy.

Assignment of senior naval officers to supervisory positions on American passenger vessels carries an underlying indictment both of the quality of our merchant marine and of the present efficiency of the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection. Secretary Roper says that the officers to be assigned will not only "conduct a thoroughgoing inspection of personnel and material on board the various ships," but will also give consideration "to the discipline of the crew, knowledge of duties, watches maintained and the general disciplinary standards of the ship." This is an intimation that ships under the American flag need this sort of supervision, which in the great majority of cases may be questioned.

Commerce Department officials admit that one reason for the use of naval officers is to secure an unprejudiced report from experts who "have had no connection with what has gone before." So it would seem that the Steamboat Inspection Service is under particular scrutiny. The fact that tragedy descended upon the Morro Castle as a result of lax discipline, inexperienced fire-fighting and failure to observe customary precautions, implies a certain weakness or inadequacy on the part of the Government's inspection service. But this does not mean that the method of improvement selected by Secretary Roper is above criticism.

As Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, has pointed out, shortcomings in the Department of Commerce bureau will not be remedied by transferring a part of its functions to naval officers. Mr. Steward believes that the defects lie in the way this bureau has been allowed to deteriorate recently. He asserts that "Dickerson N. Hoover, for many years the distinguished and eminently qualified chief of the Bureau of Steamboat Inspection, recently was demoted to make way for a political appointee."

Calling in the Army to fly the air mail solved no problems there. Giving naval officers inspection duties on American merchant ships seems in a somewhat similar category. As a temporary check-up, preliminary to thorough departmental reorganization, the plan suggested would have merit. It is understood that this is really the major purpose. But in that case the announcements have been unfortunately phrased.

Voting on Crop Reductions.

Decision of the AAA not to hold a referendum on next year's cotton program is an interesting alteration of previous policy. Heretofore the AAA has placed great emphasis upon the wishes of farm groups in shaping its curtailment plans. In fact, officials acquiesced in the Bankhead Act, imposing arbitrary limitations upon the production of cotton, only because an ostensibly popular vote indicated that a vast majority of the cotton growers favored it. Now the AAA has become skeptical of the referendum as a means of determining the views of the men who actually till the soil.

The Bankhead Act calls for a referendum to determine whether or not it should remain in effect another year. Originally the AAA also planned to ask farmers how much cotton they would like to plant. Now it is surmised that Negro farmers and many white tenants would not be permitted to express their individual opinions. In other words, the consensus of a referendum among cotton growers might be heavily weighted in favor of the landlords.

A few months ago the AAA attitude toward compulsory control of cotton acreage was radically changed to comply with the supposed wishes of the farmer. Now it is intimated that this previous referendum did not accurately represent the will of agriculture in its field. If the limitation of crops by legislative fiat has redounded chiefly to the benefit of a single group—the land owners—the wish of the AAA to avoid questioning cotton growers as to the desirability of further acreage control may be easily understood.

Only A Palliative.

Hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the railroads' petition for an increase in freight rates again bring the financial plight of the carriers to public attention.

The need for some measure of immediate relief from the growing pressure exerted by rising labor and material costs, without any compensating expansion of traffic, has been convincingly demonstrated. With an estimated increase in annual operating costs of $300,000,000 as a result of these advances, exclusive of the compulsory pension contributions under the retirement act, the outlook is decidedly cheerless. The roads anticipate a deficit for the current year of $73,000,000, and they estimate that if basic rates of pay for rail labor had been in force this year and present prices for materials had prevailed the deficit would have approximated $280,000,000.

With a majority of the carriers unable to earn interest and other fixed charges at the present time, and with operating costs rising, the roads have been compelled to apply for permission to advance their rates. If their request is granted, either in whole or in part, much-needed but manifestly inadequate relief from growing financial pressure will be secured.

However, neither rate increases nor a pronounced improvement in business would afford a permanent solution of the problems which confront the railroads today. What is needed above all else is a comprehensive system of control to bring competing transportation agencies such as motor buses and waterways under regulation similar to that imposed on the railroads. The latter are now hopelessly handicapped by discriminatory legislation that limits their control over operating costs and service charges, while leaving competing agencies free from interstate regulation.

Coordination of transport services and equality of treatment for all is required. With such a policy in force, the railroads would be in a position to cooperate more effectively among themselves to avoid waste, eliminate superfluous facilities, carry through consolidations, and generally improve methods of operation and administration. Legislation designed to bring about these ends can not be long delayed if the roads are to be restored to a condition of financial strength that will enable them to provide for future capital needs and emancipate them from dependence upon Government lending agencies.

An Intellectual Rebuke.

Harvard University's rejection of Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl's offer of a scholarship, which the confidential aid to Adolph Hitler made last Commencement, will be received with general approval. Throughout Harvard has acted in the problem of its Nazi son with exceptional good sense and with the polished reticence traditionally associated with the Cambridge institution.

At the time of Dr. Hanfstaengl's much publicized return to the university, no official notice was taken of him. He was welcome, as would be any other of fair Harvard's sons who might, in the words of the song, to her jubilee wish to throng. He came as any private citizen attending a class reunion. Disorder and acrimonious words followed in his wake. But Harvard, if not indifferent, was silent.

Now, without ostentation or a bid for publicity, Dr. James Bryant Conant has rejected Dr. Hanfstaengl's proffered scholarship, on unassailable grounds. The corporation expressed appreciation of the Nazi's generosity—as a Harvard alumnus—and then politely turned it down. "We are unwilling," Dr. Conant said, "to accept a gift from one who has been so closely associated with the leadership of a political party which has inflicted damage on the universities through measures which have struck at principles we believe to be fundamental to universities throughout the world."

Harvard could do no less, nor do it more aptly. A great institution with a proud heritage, its rebuke to the current German attitude on academic freedom may well be considered one of the most severe castigations yet made. And that Harvard has issued its rebuke with such measured good taste makes the lesson all the more effective.

There must be many in Germany today, remembering the great traditions of that nation's own universities, who will feel deeply the sting of Dr. Conant's restrained words and who will have brought home to them thereby a bitter realization of the emptiness of German life under the Third Reich.

Politics In The HOLC.

Coming events, it is said, cast their shadows before. Last winter it was freely predicted in Congress that the Home Owners Loan Corporation would be caught in a political whirlwind. Senator Norris pleaded with his colleagues to adopt an amendment forbidding the use of political influence in the appointment of HOLC employes. But Congress was not impressed. Senator Reed's current demand for an investigation of political influence in the HOLC in Pennsylvania is merely a logical result of the "spoils" philosophy which killed the Norris amendment.

That Senator Reed has a keen political interest in the situation is well understood. The patronage dispenser for Pennsylvania is also the Democratic senatorial candidate seeking to replace Senator Reed. But that does not dispose of the latter's charges. The Senator asserts that citizens are "forced to obtain introductions or make secret arrangements with Democratic county chairmen before they could obtain loans"; that favored partisans are securing unusually liberal appraisals and consequently larger loans on their property, and that thousands of Pennsylvanians have lost their homes needlessly. Obviously, if these charges are true, a thorough investigation is in order.

The attitude of Congress paved the way for the operation of this vast financial institution along political lines. It was organized without the benefit of civil service regulations. By rejecting the Norris amendment, Congress left the HOLC at the mercy of politicians who seek to use public funds in furtherance of personal ambitions. Condemnation of the HOLC is, therefore, reflected directly upon Congress. Flagrant abuses can be eliminated through careful administration. But the major fault lies in the outrageous personnel system imposed upon all of the New Deal agencies by law.

"Still American" Is Noisy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an old resident of Washington I am shocked by Elliott Thurston's gross propaganda on October 1 "interpreting" President Roosevelt's radio address.

With utter disregard of the facts, you blazon this speech as "reassuring" to business. To whom was it reassuring? Every other newspaper in the East presents an entirely different view—that the speech was demagogic and wholly evasive; that the President did not frankly face a single issue.

This is the truth about the speech, as all know who heard it. Yet you permit Thurston to fawn all over the front page in a disgracefully partisan effort to make the President's hollow gibberish stand up. Such conduct marks, on your part, a complete abandonment of the responsibilities of journalism.

Your editorial page is a perfect sponge of New Deal radicalism, and your news columns are loaded with the baldest propaganda in support of the Administration's organized lunacy. Have you no conception whatever of your obligations to public morality?

STILL AMERICAN.

Washington Noises.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Have you a little newspaper boy just under your window? We have. And although we are six stories up, you doubtless would be surprised at the clearness with which his cries come to our long-suffering ears.

Added to this, which sometimes goes on the livelong day, seemingly without a break, there is the noise of interminable street cars on tracks which must never know the touch of good old grease, as well as a never-ending procession of automobiles, many of them blaringly announcing their presence to an already nerve-wracked world. This may sound hyperbolical, but at any hour of most any day you may see for yourself, for this idealistic spot is none other than the corner of New York avenue and Fifteenth street.

One man alone, of course, could scarcely be expected to accomplish much in the way of remedial measures, but, since we remember having been told that a hint to the wise is sufficient, we can't help wishing that a timely hint might appear on your editorial page and do its bit toward starting, or perhaps more properly "continuing," a campaign of constant reminder that the situation exists; that there are those who would be filled with gratitude if something were done to correct it, and that such a step carried out would be a long one in the direction of making this the most wonderful and the most beautiful city in the world.

A Question of Taste.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the subject of architecture, I have been very much interested in the point brought out by Mr. McGowan's recent letter with reference to taste in architecture as against Mr. Scharf's viewpoint that art is static or standardized.

While disclaiming taste in architecture, Mr. Scharf seems to prefer Greek and Roman. What about the Gothic? The Gothic style was the only style with any verticality and when tall buildings were demanded, architects turned to it. The Woolworth Building, designed by Cass Gilbert, architect, was the first example of its use. When tall buildings became more common, architects began to develop their inherent stylistic qualities. The lack of ornamentation on skyscrapers was not due, as indicated by Mr. Scharf, to a sudden remembrance of simplicity. It was due to the fact that a skyscraper is a building of height and any ornamentation raised to the height of 20 or 40 stories becomes meaningless.

It is the opinion of the author of an article in the Encyclopedia Britannica that:

The best American work has a real "lift" that carries the eye upward in each line of construction, by emphasizing everywhere the vertical, by subordinating the estehtically less pleasing horizontal, and by pyramiding the masses that support the central tower.

This expression is certainly far different from Mr. Scharf's conception and the plan of the Government buildings. Personally I rather like the architecture of the Government buildings. All of which goes to show that it is a matter of taste.

To Close the Controversy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I should like to take issue with Mr. William H. Price and his letter of commendation anent Mexican educational policies, published in The Post of September 28.

I have said in other letters to your paper that I am a student of Mexican history. Mr. Price also may be a student. However, I shall accept his judgment of Mexican affairs as being more beclouded by ignorance than malice and at the same time I extend to him and all other persons interested in Mexico the following invitation:

Come to Room 4 in the Mullen Library at the Catholic University of America. Tell the gentleman present there, the Rev. Dr. Francis Borgia Steck, O. F. M., that you are interested in Mexico and would like to find out something about the country's history. The answers will be clear, accurate and surprising. No one can understand the Mexico of 1934 who does not know the Mexico of 1519, 1789, 1810, 1857-67 and 1910.

PAUL V. MURRAY.
Washington, Sept. 28.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of September 28 you carried a letter by W. H. Price on "Progressive Mexico." Let me say that Mr. Price's ignorance of Mexican history is equaled only by his ignorance of the history of education in our own country. Instead of maintaining enthusiastically that our public schools have done so nobly for our country it is truer to say that our country was founded upon and progressed under the private, sectarian school until the middle of the last century, when the public school—Godless in principle and practice—sowed the seeds of our present unenviable record of crime and lawlessness.

Let Mr. Price tell us what he means by "wise" and "progressive" in connection with Mexico's present statesmanship and we shall know how to understand his last contradiction: "Progressive people everywhere wish her Godspeed." As though Godspeed were obtained by taking God out of the hearts of the people.

You have found space to publish Mr. Price's approval of Mexico's antireligious program. I hope you will be equally fair in reporting the disgust of one who is himself a graduate of the public school over such loose and illogical thinking.

URBAN ADELMAN.
Washington, Oct. 1.

American Vertebrae.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was one of the thousands fortunate enough to gain entrance to the auditorium of the Commerce Building to hear the parting speech of Gen. Johnson.

I heard Wilson in his message declare war on Germany. I stood then on my toes and strained every muscle and clenched my fists in the grim reality of what was to follow.

Gen. Johnson's speech certainly impressed me as if I was one of the volunteers that heard President Wilson's call to arms in 1917. His speech today seemed to issue for the President in 1934 the call to arms. I believe that Gen. Johnson's attitude will become the backbone of the American people. He is a fighter. Soon the whole world will appreciate this man—and the work that he has accomplished.

In peace I have never been urged onward to do greater things than by the fiery leadership that I have known in the make-up of that great man, "Johnson."

I will always remember his last words, "God bless you."

Postcard-Eye.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your Post Impressionist said that it has always been his wish to meet a painter of picture postcards. Well, here I am! He also wants to know about the peculiar quirk that makes them see certain colors no one else sees. They don't!

They never see the points of interest. They just get photos with a few color suggestions in writing, to-wit: house red, car brown. They buy sky by the yard and cut to suit picture—and the louder the color, the better the seller.

I've made some beautiful colored cards, but they did not sell so well as the cheaper colored kind of which millions were sold.

A postcard painter's mind is just the same as others. He makes money to live, and he lives to make postcards. HERMAN RASCHER.

More Impressions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your Post-Impressionist's column on weighing-in for drinks was thoroughly enjoyed, particularly the paragraph anent the difficulties, in the minds of legal authorities, as to what actually constitutes a drunk. One of the best definitions I ever encountered is the following, which I have heard recited by several people, some crediting it to Shakespeare, some saying it's another famous poet's masterpiece, and some claiming the authorship for themselves:

"He is not drunk who, from the floor,

Laugh This Off!

Sir: In Wednesday's sermon Mr. Frank R. Kent does a lot of gloating over a lovely mare's nest discovered, it seems, by Mr. Theodore Hall, of The Washington Post.

Mr. Upton Sinclair is quoted as having related a remark made to him by the President at their famous interview to the effect that "when I was young my mother used to read aloud to me at breakfast from 'The Jungle,' and it quite spoiled my pork chops." Whereupon Mr. Hall and Mr. Kent instantly leap to the odd conclusion that the President was necessarily referring to his infancy, that history proves that he was 24 years old when "The Jungle" was printed—ergo, that the President was confusing Sinclair's "Jungle" with Kipling's "Jungle Book!"

Have you ever, Mr. Editor, encountered a more absurd syllogism? Why, in Heaven's name, couldn't the President's mother read aloud to him at the breakfast table when he was 24 years old? I know that my mother frequently read aloud to me when I was older than that! Why shouldn't the President refer to himself, as he was 30 years ago, as "young?" Are small children apt to breakfast on pork chops? The whole thing is merely foolish. It only shows Mr. Kent's bias—his mad yearning to score against Mr. Roosevelt.

The Post Impressionist

What Becomes Of Them?

Postoffice, Friday.

Jarvis, who was breakfasting at the same restaurant table with Slade and us, said: "I'm not interested in new razor blades." He said it—as perhaps the subject merits—rather sharply.

"But," we persisted, "these manufacturers declare that their new blade——"

"Exactly. I want to know what becomes of 'em."

* * *

Well, it's not a new problem. But it's one that has never been answered.

* * *

Slade found it reminiscent. He began:

"When I was a boy, my father used to tell me how, when he was a boy, his father used to puzzle him by asking him what became of the old pins. His father used to say that women were always buying new papers of pins, and yet they seldom had enough in the pin-cushions.

"My father said that, because the dressmaker who came to the house every spring and autumn kept her mouth filled with pins, it was his childish idea that the old pins disappeared because dressmakers ate them. But grandfather said there weren't enough dressmakers to account for all the pin disappearances.

"Grandfather," Slade continued, "said his feet could account for a couple of hundred a year, because he'd noticed that, if he took his shoes off at one end of the bedroom and walked to the other to get his slippers, he was pretty certain to tramp on at least four or five during the journey. And he said he'd like to know why pins always fell on their heads and stood around with their points in the air. But he said not even feet could take up all the slack in pin statistics—and he said——"

"I suppose he said," Jarvis again interrupted, "that the slack couldn't be explained even by the bent pins in the teacher's chair at the Little Red Schoolhouse. We were talking of razor blades, Slade: not pins. Moreover, we were talking of our dull maturity in this year of 1934 and not of your fascinating infancy in 1834."

Slade wouldn't answer. He merely rose from the table and left the restaurant. His dignity under insult was admirable. He ignored the jeer. It wasn't until we ourselves came to leave that we realized he had also ignored his bill.

* * *

"Of course," he mused, "a fellow can have his razor blades reground, for a certain length of time—some makes, anyway. But by and by they get past restoration. And what is he going to do with them then?"

We said we hadn't an idea.

"I know you haven't—often," said Jarvis. "But what do you do with old razor blades?"

Well—why—oh, we guessed we must leave them in the bathroom.

"I see." Jarvis nodded. "You leave them there so's they'll get knocked down, and then the baby can crawl in and cut its teeth on them. On the whole, that strikes me as insanitary—Slade would say old-fashioned teething-rings were better. Why, hotel maids tell me that they regularly allow a dollar a month in their budgets toward first-aid necessitated by cuts incurred through razor blades left, by unsocial departing guests, on bathroom shelves."

We are still able to blush—and we blushed.

The truth was, we confessed, that we saved our old blades until we had occasion to take a train anywhere overnight and out of Washington. Then, in the morning, when we went into the washroom, we dropped those encumbrances down the slot provided for them by the humanitarian Pullman Company.

* * *

But Jarvis, across the coffee, fixed us with a moralist's eye and an accusatory forefinger:

"And then?" he demanded.

"Then what?"

"No matter how you shake off your responsibilities to society at large," said Jarvis, "don't trifle with me! Do you want to sit here and pretend you think that your duty can be done by shifting it to other people's shoulders through a slot in a sleeping-car? Do you really pretend to believe that those old razor blades—those useless and dangerous razor blades—are dissolved into thin air by some magic on the part of the Pullman people? You know well enough they're not. You know well enough that they merely go into some sort of box, and that, sooner or later, some poor porter has to gather them together—and be saddled with the load of your sins."

We dejectedly pleaded that we hadn't thought so far.

"No," said Jarvis—"and just such common carelessness is the cause of half this world's troubles."

* * *

"But all the new houses—apartment houses and private houses—have those slots in their bathrooms," we pleaded. We had heard an architect say they just led to nowhere in particular: merely opened into the space between the outer and inner walls.

"What of it?" Jarvis retorted. "That's no solution. It's only a postponement. Those wall spaces aren't infinite. What will happen when they are filled up?"

* * *

We didn't know. We were positively glad to cover our confusion by the discovery of Slade's unpaid bill. It never occurred to us to ask Jarvis what he did with his old razor blades. But, as we escaped from him, we ventured one piece of constructive criticism:

"Anyhow," we said, "razor blades in the walls ought to keep the mice away."

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

A Cow's Life.

I BELIEVE the following is one of the strangest letters I have ever received. It is from a Missouri cow now vacationing in South Carolina in line with Mrs. Roosevelt's idea that travel broadens one:

BARGERON

"Dear Along the Potomac:

"I don't suppose you will pay any attention to this letter. I am just one of the Missouri cows that the Administration sent down here to South Carolina with the view that, by mingling with other cows, we would become cultured. I know a lot of the Washington newspaper boys who were in Kansas City during the 1928 Republican convention. I used to graze out there near the country club, and if I do say it myself, I am not an ordinary cow. I am a type like Jean Harlow and Mae West, not that I resemble them in the least, but just as they are types of women I am a type of cow.

"The reason I write you is this: I am homesick. I want to go back to Kansas City. It is all right to meet cows from other sections of the country, particularly the Southern cows, and to learn their thoughts, but there is no place like home. I feel, too, that our welcome has worn off, not on the part of the people in whose pastures we graze because they get 50 cents a month for each one of us, and not from the army of checkers and subcheckers and bosses and sub-bosses who look after our welfare at salaries ranging from $18 to $50 a week. But the Southern cows have made it known in very plain terms that they would just as lief we got back to where we came from.

"It was splendid at first. I was anxious to travel and believe me, I have done some traveling. I have been all over this State. The people vie so much for the honor of entertaining us at 50 cents a month that the Government keeps us on the move. I have been in 20 pastures so far and when I get back to Kansas City I will be able to discuss pastures with any cow—if I ever get back there.

* * * *

"At first, all of the Southern boy cows rushed us Middle Western cows because we were different. We were visitors. But do you know, there is not an ounce of sincerity in a carload of them. They come around with that funny sort of bull talk and before we Middle Western cow girls know what is taking place they are off to another visiting cow. They are the fastest workers I have ever seen. I have learned about boy cows from these Southerners, take it from me.

"After all, we Middle Western cows are serious-minded cows. We like to think of love and romance in the light of a home and family. These Southern boy cows just love and romance for the fun of it. I declare, I don't believe they ever work. They are the biggest liars in the world. I used to think the newspapermen at the convention were cards, but they can't hold a candlestick to these boy cows down here.

"The Southern girl cows highhat us and pass around stories intended to besmirch our character because their boy friends dropped them when we came down and gave us the rush. I don't mind this, though. They are hussies, and any Kansas City cow with whom I was reared will never believe any stories about me.

"What worries me most is we will never be able to repay the Government for what it is doing. It would be impossible. Some statistician has figured it out that, with all the money spent on my education, just a little hunk of me in a can will reflect an investment of $20 and, of course, nobody is ever going to be willing to pay $20 for a hunk of me.

"I am heartsick about the whole business. I can not sleep at night. I am so agitated, in fact, that I give buttermilk."

2 Va. Utilities Ask Tax Refund

Repayment of $28,000 Levy for Franchise Sought by Gas Companies.

Richmond, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Virginia Gas Distribution Corporation and the Virginia Gas Transmission Corporation, handling natural gas, today filed petitions in the city circuit court for a refund of franchise taxes assessed against them by the State corporation commission. The taxes aggregated more than $28,000.

The Virginia Gas Transmission Corporation asked a refund of $24,180 assessed on a 20-inch pipe line crossing 11 counties in running from West Virginia to Maryland. The Virginia Gas Distribution Corporation asked a refund of $4,176.31, assessed against it and paid under protest, for 1934.

The transmission company claimed it is engaged in interstate business and is not subject to taxation by the State, and its properies are taxed by several counties. The company sells its products to the distribution company.

The distribution company serves gas to a dozen cities of the State and paid a State merchants' license to each city on the basis of its purchases in 1933. It declared its gross profit in 1933 was $193,918.98, and that it is not subject to State tax on $47,899 of its gross receips from the sale of merchandise, as it pays the State merchants' tax in the cities where it operates.

Belgium's Comeback Since War Is Brilliant

By J. C. Rocca
(Special Correspondent of The Post.)

IN the last number of the "Revue Belge" Andre Maurois has published a brilliant article on "America's Recovery in 1934." It is written for the Belgian public and it is not so accurate as the figures in Mr. Richberg's reports, but it is marvelous how the dullest subject can be made readable and interesting by a French writer.

Belgium is the first European country willing to enter into a reciprocal trade agreement with the United States and in announcing the future negotiations, the Department of State declared that "Belgium is one of the first countries to recognize the ill effects that custom barriers have on trade." In view of these negotiations and of the initiative taken during the last few days by Belgium for a preferential trade pact between the countries belonging to the gold bloc, it may be of interest to consider the principal features of Belgium's present economic life.

Belgium Thrived Before the War.

BEFORE the war Belgium was in an extremely healthy economic situation. Favored by the possession of a dense, thrifty and hard-working population, the important seaport of Antwerp, a good system of railroads and large agricultural and industrial resources, she had been able to develop an export trade which placed her in sixth place among the trading nations of the world.

With her 8,000,000 people living in a territory the size of the State of Mayland, Belgium was the most densely populated and intensively cultivated country in Europe. The peculiar geographical and political situation of Belgium had made it not only the military but also the economic and financial battlefield of Europe, the country being influenced by the economic movements of her big neighbors, England, France and Germany.

The rapidity of Belgium's economic recovery after the war has been striking and furnished an example to the world of what industry and political stability can accomplish. Much depends on the character of the Belgian people; the average Belgian differs greatly in his habits from the Frenchman, with whom he is often compared.

As we read in a recent report of the Department of Commerce: "The typical Belgian is less conservative, more international and more familiar with investments in industrial shares involving to some extent a speculative risk. The spirit of enterprise of the Belgians and their concerns—especially street car companies, public utilities and colonial companies—have accustomed the public to take as much interest in common stocks as in government bonds."

There is scarcely a country in the world in which Belgian finance does not play its part. Belgium emerged from the war with nothing left but the indomitable will of her people, their skill and their experience. For a people endowed with such great natural gifts for work and progress, and, as the war proved to the world, of endurance under difficulties, there should be little doubt that the unsatisfactory conditions of the last few years will improve in the near future.

Emergency Program Alters Fiscal System.

AT the end of July the coalition government headed by Count de Broqueville received from the Belgian Parliament special emergency powers to alter the fiscal system, to cut wages, salaries and pensions, and to take measures to protect savings.

Heavy extraordinary expenditures were largely responsible for the considerable budget deficit of the last few years; however the deficit which amounted to 2,405,000,000 Belgian francs in 1930 decreased to 785,000,000 francs in 1933. The 1934 ordinary expenditures are estimated at 10,384,000,000 francs and revenues at 10,550,000,000 francs, but in spite of the surplus anticipated on the ordinary account, extraordinary appropriations are expected to result in a budget deficit also for 1934.

The special powers granted to the Government formally exclude monetary devaluation. As the London Economist remarks: "The Belgian government's financial policy is wide in scope and daring in conception, but the members of the present Cabinet all favor the classical school in economics and refuse to indulge in "adventures."

The last financial legislation of the Belgian government aims at credit expansion for industrial purposes and at protection for savings and deposits, but must not be regarded as a step toward inflation.

The Government's intervention has arisen from the difficulties of small provincial banks and from the fact that other banks, forced to strengthen their reserves, have compelled industry to repay a portion of current account advances and have avoided granting new advances. Now that the U. S. Government has extended its control over banking in ways unprecedented, it may be worth while to examine the recent reforms of the Belgian system.

The National Bank of Belgium has a gold reserve amounting to 13,668,000,000 francs at the end of 1933, and therefore a cover of about 70 per cent of all its sight obligations. It is true that during the current year there has been a continuous fall in the gold reserve (it amounted to 13,128,000,000 francs at the end of July), but in other countries of the gold bloc the decrease has been even more pronounced.

Seeking to Lower High Tariff Walls.

THE other main preoccupation of the Belgian government has been the promotion of foreign trade. As a Belgian economist, Armand Julian says: Belgium is a small country as regards consumption, but highly industrialized and a great producer and exporter in relation to its geograpical and political importance." The Belgian government has been actively seeking to lower the high tariff walls which have been curbing her ability to sell abroad. During the last few years commercial agreements have been concluded with Poland, Germany, Spain, Argentine, New Zealand, Japan. Apparently the agreement with Japan has been very successful.

The Belgian commercial policy was clearly summarized as follows in a recent statement to Parliament by the minister of foreign affairs, Mr. Hymans:

First—To defend the internal market against dumping and abnormal imports.

Second—To practice an enlightened opportunism abroad and improve the trade balances with markets where exports have declined through customs or currency measures; to use the country's purchasing power over raw materials and cereals as a bargaining weapon; to consolidate Belgium's position in the good markets, and finally to strengthen relations with countries where currencies remain stable.

Belgians know that governmental intervention in the form of quota restrictions, customs duties and the like can never be more than a temporary expedient, and therefore the commercial policy of the present cabinet is approved both by the press and by public opinion. During the current year Belgian exports have ceased declining.

Job Insurance Used Since 1900.

BELGIUM has always been and still is "a land of social experiments," which are of real interest to other countries. Considerable protection has been afforded to agriculture, and one of the most important measures taken to assist the farmer was the "farm rents bill," which permits tenant farmers under certain conditions to secure a reduction in the rent payable under their leases. The bill contains provisions not dissimilar to some of those shown in the Frazier act adopted by the last Congress.

Also in the matter of unemployment insurance we find, in the Belgian city of Ghent, the oldest example of this kind of social protection. The workers of that city have been insured against unemployment since 1900, and the example of Ghent has been followed by all the important industrial cities in Belgium. At the end of June, 1934, the number of Belgian workers completely unemployed and protected by mutual voluntary insurance was 165,342, while the monthly average of unemployed in 1933 totaled 167,189.

As was demonstrated at the time of King Albert's death, the monarchistic sentiment in Belgium is very strong and the new King of Belgium may well feel that he has ascended the throne under most favorable auspices for a successful reign.

Clothing Sought For Needy Pupils

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Clothing for elementary school children will be sought by the local chapter of the Needlework Guild, officers announced yesterday.

Clothes will be awarded children making posters on "New Clothes for the Needy." Awards will be made during the fall, the contest being judged by Mrs. William W. Butzner, Mrs. J. Austin Umlauf and Miss Nell Johnston.

Articles for distribution among needy children will be taken to chapter headquarters October 27. Garments will be kept by officers and utilized during the winter months for needy and deserving persons. Officers in charge of the local unit are Mrs. C. D. Binns, president; Mrs. Hugh D. Scott, vice president; Mrs. Butzner, secretary; Miss Anne Brooke Gibson, treasurer, and Mrs. E. C. Carpenter, publicity chairman.

Newlyweds, Attention!

If you're planning to start light housekeeping . . . here's your chance! Uncle Sam has suddenly found that he has too many lighthouses on hand, so he is going to sell nine of them to the highest bidders. Real lighthouses, they are, scattered along the remote and rocky coast of Maine. Towering and stately, these tall and romantic structures are just the thing for quiet rural homesteads and, albeit, they offer a real opportunity for ambitious young couples to get up in the world and live their lives on a higher plane.

As Quillen Looks at It

Lieutenant, Not General, Enjoys His Salutes.

Generations of schoolboys have pictured themselves in the role of hero as they read the Scot's defiant lines, here imperfectly quoted from memory:

"And if thou say'st I am not peer
Of any lord in Scotland here,
Lowland or highland, far or near,
Lord Angus, thou hast lied."

The ambition of the normal boy is to be the peer of the best. He is scarcely in his teens before he begins to develop a passion to excel.

In his day-dreams of success he pictures himself in some role that compares him with others to their complete humiliation. He "shows 'em," and rejoices in their inferiority.

His life is a contest. He wishes to lead his class in school, to run faster, jump farther and play more skillfully than any other—to be, in short, the "champ" in everything.

As the years pass, his ambitions are trimmed to match his capacities; but within the limits of his social, economic and intellectual group he still feels the urge to prove himself superior.

It may be a trait inherited from primitive ancestors to whom superiority meant survival. It may have something to do with sex. In any case, it is a confession of his fears and doubts.

He wishes to "be somebody" because he thinks he isn't. He must win every argument to prove that he is smart. He must be discourteous to waiters and servants to demonstrate his superiority. In some communities he must have a bigger car, a better house and a greater income than his neighbors in order to show them and himself that he is worthy of respect.

That all of it is "kid stuff"—a juvenile trait prompted by uncertainty—is proved by the fact that mental maturity ends it.

When a man reaches the top in his environment, or the years bring him wisdom, there is no more pleasure in victory.

After all, victory is merely the defeat of an inferior, and there is nothing difficult about that.

The man mentally grown is no longer a show-off. He can confess his ignorance and faults. He can even humble himself to give an inferior self-confidence.

It is the sophomore, not the dean, who dare not admit that he does not know.

St. Marys G. O. P. Maps Campaign

Committees to Be Named in Each District.

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—At a meeting just held by the Republicans of St. Mary's County, at the instance of the newly elected county central committee, plans were made for the campaign preceding the November elections.

A constitution, calling for an advisory committee in each of the nine elections districts, consisting of five white and five colored members, through which all appointments pertaining to that particular district must be recommended before being confirmed by the central committee, was adopted.

All speeches will be censored by the central committee and approval of time and place of meetings is required.

H. I. Phillips' Once Over

That Play Written Backward.

The latest Broadway novelty is a play written upside down.

* * * *

George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart in "Merrily We Roll Along" open the show with their last act and end it with their first act.

* * * *

This idea is so confusing that Elmer Twitchell, who saw the play last night, walked out of the theater backward.

* * * *

"It was quite an experience," said Elmer. "I kept my hat and coat on because I knew that the play would be over before it began.

* * * *

"But I checked them at the coat room after the show as I knew it had just started.

* * * *

"I no sooner entered the theater and sat down than a fellow in front of me turned around and asked me how I liked the show. I asked him how I could tell when the curtain hadn't gone up yet, and he insisted that as everything was being done in reverse we were really out in the foyer after the show.

* * * *

"He started applauding just before the opening curtain and got sore because the actors didn't come out and take a final bow for a splendid performance.

* * * *

"And the minute the curtain went up he got up and left the theater, declaring he had promised his wife he would come home the moment the show was over! He had left a carriage call for 8:45.

* * * *

"Everybody was all mixed up, and if this idea of writing plays backward is followed up, I expect all the after-theater parties will take place around 6 p. m."

* * * *

"How did you yourself like it?" we asked Elmer.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall.

OUR writing officials are at it again. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's 83,000-word book on the New Deal, "New Frontiers" — composed by dictaphone in spare minutes from a busy summer—came out yesterday from the presses of Reynal & Hitchcock. Norton & Co. have just received the manuscript of Secretary of the Interior Ickes' volume on the same topic, "The New Democracy." It will appear on October 29. If Mr. Richberg has been sitting up nights with a typewriter, the news has not yet got out. But meanwhile Crowell has found an early novel from his pen, "A Man of Purpose," and will publish it this month. . . . Margaret Fishback, advertising-copy writer at Macy's and author of two volumes of sprightly verse, reports to Dutton, her publisher, that she "had a perfectly lovely vacation. Spent it last Saturday afternoon at Jones Beach, with dinner at Henri's on my return to New York. Now I am back on the job at Macy's, completely refreshed and ready for a winter of hard work. Later I hope to go South for a spell, possibly as far as Washington square. The winters are so tough up here in the coat and pants district that it's nice to get away for a while in January."

That trick fades beside Simon & Schuster's original plan for Parker Morell's biography, "Diamond Jim," which was nothing less than to insert a real diamond in every 250th copy of the book. The Inner Sanctum had to give that up when they realized the ease of a little judicious salvage by the trade.

Kenmore Unit Plans Program

Board of 1812 Society Will Be Entertained at Fredericksburg.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Honoring descendants of nineteenth century heroes, the Kenmore Association will entertain members of the board of the National Society of the Daughters of 1812, October 13, at Kenmore, Colonial home of Col. Fielding Lewis and his wife, Betty Washington Lewis, sister of George Washington.

Special guests will be Miss Margaret Crutchfield, a descendant of Maj. Stapleton Crutchfield, the American leader who repulsed Admiral Cockburn's advance up the Rappahannock in 1813, and Mrs. J. W. Adams and the Misses Barney, descendants of Commodore Joshua N. Barney, Navy leader. Mrs. C. O'Conor Goolrick, Mrs. Chester B. Goolrick, Miss Elise Ficklen and Miss Lily Braxton Wallace will represent Gen. Tobias Stansbury, who defended the city of Washington when it burned.

Celebration Planned For Baptist Church

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Mount Eagle Baptist Church, at Buckeyeland, will celebrate its fourth anniversary Sunday with morning and afternoon services. Dinner will be served on the grounds.

The speaker in the morning will be the Rev. Frank Bowers, of Fork Union Military Academy. Marion C. Thomas, of the First Baptist Church, Charlottesville, and a member of the governing board of Fork Union Military Academy, will deliver an address in the afternoon.

Primary Cost Put at $1,319

France Faction Reports on Election Expenses in Allegany County.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—The France-Smith-Henderson wing of the Republican party spent $1,319.25 in Allegany County during the recent primary, according to a report filed with the clerk of the court by Somerville Nicholson, political agent. The treasurer reports $1,305 in the bank and $1,319 spent.

Joseph I. France, for the senatorial nomination, contributed $697.50, and H. Webster Smith, for Governor, $607.50.

The Democratic party organization in the county, through William E. McDonald, political agent, reports $1,546.02 spent in the primary.

Charles H. Holtzman, political agent for Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, Republican candidate for the nomination of Governor, reported $530 received from W. Lester Baldwin, his political agent. The money was expended for 45 workers, advertising, radio talks and other items.

Former Mayor George Henderson, nominee for attorney general, spent $432.40. He received no contributions.

State Senator J. Glenn Beall, who sought the renomination in the Republican primary against Robert B. Kimble, who defeated him, spent $487.

Warrenton Protests Route 15 Relocation

Warrenton Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—A committee of three—John B. Grayson, Eugene M. Garrett and C. C. Pearson—representing the Warrenton Chamber of Commerce, the Fauquier County Board of Supervisors and the town council, has protested at Richmond to the State highway commission against the proposed relocation of Route No. 15.

William T. Tilden.

He is a greater player than either of the Doherty brothers, than Norman Brookes, William A. Larned, than Cochet, Lacoste, Borotra, or any of the geniuses of the game.

William Tatem Tilden was born appropriately at Germantown, Pa., February 10, 1893; he is the oldest man alive who is still in the first flight of players. Entirely unlike the majority of experts, he showed little promise at a tender age. He was 25 when he won his first championship, the National Clay Court; this seems incredible, but it is true. His great career began in 1920. It was an annus mirabilis. In that year he won the American championship, was the first American ever to win the British championship, went to Australia for the first time as member of the Davis Cup Team, won both his singles and the doubles with Johnston, and brought the cup back to America, where it stayed for seven years.

He was American National champion in 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1929; also in 1921 he again won the British championship, and years later he won it for the third time.

In February, 1931, he became a professional; and I advise every one interested in tennis to see him in any of the matches he plays on tour during the coming winter. It is something to say to your grandchildren, "I saw Tilden play," just as I am proud to say "I saw Salvini on the stage." I saw a magnificent match last spring between Vines and Tilden, which went to the full five sets, and was won by Tilden. It is a beautiful sight to see anything done perfectly.

Tilden has written books, has given lectures on tennis, has appeared on the professional stage in a number of roles, is a most interesting conversationalist. He has immense self-control despite occasional outbreaks of temper. During his entire career as champion which lasted so many years, he never touched tobacco or liquor, believing that every sacrifice should be made to keep in perfect condition.

He loves the game; he loves to play tennis; with him it is never drudgery, never a disagreeable task; he keeps in condition by playing hard and continuously.

He has been a student of the game, following every new development. The modern game of tennis, which is characterized by a speed unknown in earlier years, was brought in 1912 to a distinctly higher level of speed, endurance, and above all, of popularity, by Maurice E. McLaughlin, of California, the most ardently beloved tennis player in history. When he was beaten in 1915, hundreds of people in the stands were openly crying and sobbing. But he had brought the game to a level of speed previously unknown.

This makes Tilden's career all the more amazing. To play like a champion at 40 in the early years of the century was most unusual, though possible. But today, in the present terrible speed, such a thing is impossible. But Tilden does it. He has achieved the impossible. In the language of Kipling, "The thing that couldn't has occurred."

Hauptmann's Counsel Fights To Delay Trial

Marshal John J. Murphy, in Boston, from a prisoner in a Massachusetts jail, who said he knew "all about the Lindbergh case and Bruno Hauptmann."

Says He Aided Jail Break.

The prisoner, James Bruce Russell, was quoted by Marshal Murphy as saying Hauptmann helped him escape from the Westchester County Penitentiary in 1930. The marshal said Russell claimed to have been a close friend of Hauptmann and the late Isadore Fisch, named by Hauptmann as the man from whom he received the ransom money.

Aids of District Attorney Foley said tonight they had not been appraised of Russell's story.

District Attorney Foley attached equal importance both to the discovery of the maps and the dictionaries. From the outset it has been the theory of investigators that the writer of the ransom notes—and these have been identified by experts as of Hauptmann's handwriting—had used a dictionary for the spelling of the long English words. In the notes, the longer words generally were correctly spelled. The shorter ones, quite frequently, were misspelled.

The note given to Dr. John F. Condon—"Jafsie," the intermediary—after payment of the $50,000 ransom in St. Raymond's Cemetery in the Bronx said the Lindbergh baby would be found on a boat in that section.

Note Is Quoted.

This note read:

"The boy is on boad Nelly it is a small boad 28 feet long two persons are on the boad the are innosent. You will find the boad between Horseneck Beeach and Gay Head near Elizabeth Island."

Col. Lindbergh, "Jafsie" and others flew to this section, but they found nothing. Baby Lindbergh was already dead.

Foley said Hauptmann, at the request of Attorney General David T. Wilentz of New Jersey, drew sections of the Jersey area shown on the maps from memory.

"He was requested to reproduce these maps from memory," Foley said, "which he did with remarkable accuracy, even down to drawing the intersecting forks (of roads) in New Jersey and Massachusetts territory."

The prosecutor said the discovery of the maps and Hauptmann's reproduction of them from memory would be used to refute the prisoner's statements that he had never been in the neighborhood of the Hopewell home.

Schwarzkopf Skeptical.

In Jersey, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf was inclined to place little importance on the discovery of the maps. He said they were found in the first day's search of the Hauptmann home. Other maps showed, he said, various motor routes over the continent.

As the special venire was prepared by John A. Pachler, Bronx County commissioner of jurors, under the supervision of County Judge James M. Barrett, officials of Hunterdon County in New Jersey were preparing to call in the grand jury early next week.

Their case permitting, Jersey officials want to try Hauptmann on the kidnap-killing charge before he is brought to court in the Bronx.

The mental examination of Hauptmann by six psychiatrists was renewed late today. Results of yesterday's tests were not disclosed.

Chicago Man's Story Remains Unverified

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—The story of William B. Dennis, a civil engineer, that he saw Bruno Hauptmann near the scene of the Lindbergh kidnaping on the night of the abduction has not been substantiated by investigation, Federal authorities said tonight.

Dennis said that he had been halted on a highway not far from Hopewell, N. J., the night of March 1, 1932, by a man who spoke in a foreign accent and that the man asked to borrow a tire pump. In the man's car, he said, was a woman and another man "with a package."

A few days ago Dennis identified a picture of Hauptmann as the man he said he saw.

Spanish Rebels Fight Troops; Scores Are Reported Wounded

"resort to every means available in the defense of the republic."

The word "enemies" referred ostensibly to the rightist coalition—the Confederacion Espanola Derechas Autonomas—which provided Lerroux with his most potent backing.

Madrid an Armed Camp.

Madrid was virtually an armed camp as special assault guards in trucks patrolled Socialist and Communist quarters of the city, where workmen, gathering in groups, voiced predictions that "much blood will flow." Soldiers were held in barracks under special orders. In Catalonia, long agitated by its desire for independence from the central government, trouble also threatened. Demonstrators, crying "Down with Lerroux," clashed with guards in the streets of Barcelona and several persons were injured. The Catalonian leftists indicated they were awaiting the action of their companions at Madrid.

Meanwhile, the veteran Lerroux pleaded with Spain in general and Catalonia in particular for peace. He said he was confident that public opinion would support his campaign for "pacification rather than persecution," and pledged to Catalonia that "I will never oppose the statute (under which Catalonia enjoys a measure of autonomy)."

The man charged with the task of putting down revolution, if the revolution of which extremists have been muttering for days comes, is Eloy Vaquero, new minister of the interior. A prominent lawyer, he was appointed Mayor of Cordoba when the second Spanish republic was proclaimed, and later was elected to the Chamber of Deputies. He is only 37 years old.

Unions Called Out.

In the Socialist and Communist districts of Cuatro Caminos, groups of extremist workmen gathered. Trucks loaded with special detachments of assault guards patrolled the district.

Gov. Morata of Madrid Province said the extremists, according to his information, planned to strike first at transportation and communication, and unions in those branches were called out first.

Crowds jammed bakeries and food stores buying supplies, as it was reported the strike would close them immediately. Rumors ran through Congress that separatists in Catalonia were preparing to declare "the third Spanish republic."

The reports said Manuel Azana, leftist leader and former premier, was at Barcelona awaiting developments and ready to head the new republic.

Like Samper and like his own ninth government, which ruled from March 3 to April 25 this year, Lerroux's new cabinet drew its members largely from the right and center.

To the popular Agrarian Action party, the powerful rightist coalition, went three portfolios in the new cabinet; to the centrist radical Republicans, seven; to the rightist Agrarians, two, and to the liberal Democrats, another centrist group, one. An independent was assigned to the remaining post.

That left the leftists, who have often declared that to them must be given the task of carrying on the republic, entirely out in the cold, and Spain's big question mark tonight was, What will the leftists do?

Radical Units Speed Cuban Strike Drive

Havana, Oct. 4 (AP).—Radical labor unions throughout the island tonight were putting steam into their drive for a general strike, and their efforts were meeting wtih some success.

They made their greatest gains at Santiago, where taxicab and bus drivers were striking and other labor unions had promised to join the movement within a few hours.

Commerce was normal in Havana, but a general strike had been decreed by the National Confederation of Labor to begin next Sunday at midnight.

CCC Education Desire Described

75 Workers Are Attending Night Classes Here.

The members of the Civilian Conservation Corps are so anxious to receive an education that 75 men of the Du Pont Camp are attending night classes in Washington, Capt. Harry Myers, the commanding officer, yesterday told the Kiwanis Club at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

The interest of the men in obtaining school work was attributed by Capt. Myers to the vocational guidance talks made under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club. He said he hoped some means would be found to obtain employment for the men after their discharge from service. Members of the club have furnished transportation for the men from the camps to the schools.

A large delegation of the club will attend the Capital District convention next week in Richmond.

Representatives of the five local councils of the Knights of Columbus will meet at 8:15 o'clock tonight at 918 Tenth street northwest to discuss plans for an indoor circus in February.

The entire Knights of Columbus Building will be used for the affair. The Elks, the Catholic Daughters of America, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Chamber of Commerce, Washington Board of Trade, various citizens' associations, the Curley Club and the Knights Club have been invited to participate.

lawyers said they expected to finish by tomorrow night.

Edwards began his testimony by telling about his early life. Then the scene was switched to the campus of Mansfield Teachers College, where he met Margaret L. Crain, the "other girl" in the triangle, now a music teacher at East Aurora, N. Y.

Edwards' love letters to Miss Crain had been read to the jury earlier as the prosecution's closing evidence.

He denied having been engaged to Miss McKechnie, but declared that when he was informed she would become a mother he agreed to marry her August 1. She was allegedly slain the night of July 30.

Describing his meeting with the girl that night, Edwards said she insisted on going swimming over his protests that the weather was unsuitable.

"We swam around for a few minutes, then came out and sat down," Edwards continued. "Freda said she was chilly and wanted to go back in. I said I didn't want to, so she went alone."

Marlboro Asks FirehouseFund

Campaign Committee Is Formed; $500 Donation Received.

The Upper Marlboro Volunteer Fire Department will begin campaigning immediately for funds with which to build their new headquarters, it was announced yesterday.

C. Earl Wyvill, president of the Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association and a member of the Marlboro department, said both building and finance committees had been appointed.

Those on the building committee will be James R. Durity, Fred W. Wilson, president of the local department; Chief Wesley R. Kerr and Walton Banks.

The finance committee will consist of Harry Morris, Michael T. Wyvill, Joe Reinhart and President Wyvill. The committee held a meeting last night and drafted a letter asking for donations. Each will be followed up by a personal visit if no answer is forthcoming within ten days.

It is planned to erect a one-story building 40 feet square. Toward this end, a donation of $500 has been received from Mr. Durity. The building will be placed on a lot adjoining the county jail.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

An Arabian Kiang Sails to Join Countrywoman in Washington

Eccentric Foreigner On Way Here in Stall; to Live at Zoo.

One of the passengers on a steamer bound for New York from Hamburg, Germany, yesterday was a fine young male kiang, coming to American to meet his bride in the Washington Zoo.

He had no idea of impending nuptials, of course. Very likely long ago he became resigned to captivity and the single life. Possibly he has grown smug and complacent, preferring this life to that of his native Arabia, where English-speaking people know him more familiarly as the wild ass.

Regardless of any preconceived notions, married he will be within three weeks. For, Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Washington Zoo, is determined that his lady kiang shall have a suitable mate, thus giving him the first pair of wild Arabian asses in America.

It will take about a week for the bridegroom's steamer to cross the Atlantic, and for two weeks he must remain in quarantine in New York. Then comes the meeting in Washington.

Put two strange kiangs together without giving them a chance to know and understand each other and the result, according to Dr. Mann, is apt to be the elimination of two very fine Zoo exhibits. It seems that kiangs customarily greet strangers of their kind with kicks, which are sometimes fatal.

To insure himself of America's first pair of kiangs, Dr. Mann has arranged to put them in adjoining pens. There, he believes, the futility of kicking through a fence soon will become apparent, and before long they will be exchanging soulful kiang glances, rubbing noses, perhaps. After that—marriage.

Traveling on the same boat with the kiang are a pair of Formosa barking deer and two Indian antelopes, all to become the property of the Washington Zoo as soon as regulations of the Bureau of Animal Industry at quarantine have been complied with.

All were acquired in trades recently negotiated by the Zoo director with Lorenz and Heinrick Hagenback, of Hamburg, well-known animal dealers. A baby jaguar and a young Mongolian wild horse will be exchanged by Dr. Mann for them.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your headaches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

SCIENTIST TELLS HOW "AUTO-DRIVING FATIGUE" WAS ACCURATELY MEASURED FOR FIRST TIME

CHICAGO, October, 1934—"Why do some people tire out so easily, and suffer from exhausted nerves after a long drive?" asks Dr. Andrew H. Ryan. "We soon found the answer when we discovered a scientific way to measure 'auto-fatigue.'

"Our tests proved that drivers in the Dodge car showed 54% to 65% less fatigue as shown by nervous and muscular impairment than on other cars tested."

Because Dodge has an unusual combination of advanced engineering features, you are protected against engine vibration, road shocks, and other causes of fatigue. Dodge owners can drive longer distances without tiring. Obviously, the car lasts longer, runs with fewer repairs, when destructive vibration is smothered.

Visit the nearest Dodge dealer. Get your copy of the free booklet telling all about these tests. Drive a Dodge. You'll see for yourself that Dodge is easier to drive, easier on your nerves and less fatiguing than any other car you have ever driven.—Adv.

Price-Cut Test Near in Bidding For Navy Steel

Business Expected Not to Take Advantage of Roosevelt Order.

A major test of President Roosevelt's order permitting firms to cut 15 per cent below their NRA list prices in bidding on Government contracts probably will be made next Friday.

The first indication of whether business generally will take advantage of the opportunity to trim prices will be afforded when the Navy Department opens bids on some 4,000 tons of steel for five destroyers to be built in Government yards.

It was reported in authoritative quarters that steel manufacturers would conform to their posted prices to avoid giving large private interests an opening to drive down schedules by refusing to do business unless offered the same prices as the Government.

NRA lawyers already have ruled the public is not entitled to the benefits of the prices granted to the Government. Their decision conflicted with the interpretation given by President Roosevelt when he announced the order.

Mother Finds Son A Suicide in Home

Gas Victim, 28, Despondent Over Joblessness.

The body of Cecil Macklin Green, 28, of 1636 Euclid street northwest, was found in the gas-filled kitchen of his home by his mother, Mrs. E. G. Schirmer, and his brother, A. G. Green, last night. He had been dead several hours.

All gas jets in the kitchen stove had been turned on, and blankets were stuffed in window and door cracks. Green had been despondent over unemployment, police said.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he will issue a certificate of suicide.

Ahoy, Mates! Pirates' Graves Will Be Hikers' Goal Sunday

Wanderbirds Also to Visit Old Mansions, Mills at Occoquan.

By Robert Shosteck.

An old pirates' graveyard and historic colonial mansions and mills in nearby Occoquan will be visited on Sunday's trip of the Wanderbirds Hiking Club. If warm weather prevails, the hikers will swim in Pirates Cove, where in the early 1700s buccaneers are said to have cached their booty and traded with the Indians. As an alternative, club members interested in long mountain trips again are invited to join with the Potomac Appalachian Trails Club on their trip to South Mountain, Md.

Club members and readers of The Washington Post going on the regular trip to Occoquan will meet in front of The Post Building at 10 a. m. for the 28-mile bus trip, the fare for which is 70 cents. Reservations for this trip must be made at National 4200 by 11 p. m. Saturday. The easy hike from Occoquan Falls along the road to Pirate Cove will be somewhat over 3 miles in length. Dr. Ulke will give some interesting historical sidelights about the many old houses and the gristmill to be seen along the route.

The group will leave the buses at the bridge over Occoquan Creek, following the crumbling old millrace for a half mile from the gristmill to the falls. The hikers will lunch at a spring near the falls amidst exceptionally rugged scenery. This mill was one of several which served Alexandria and nearby towns in early Colonial days. The hikers will pass through the picturesque village of Occoquan on the way to the cove. This village is located at the head of tidewater and is the end of the old Indian trail which lead from the native copper deposits in Loudoun County, originally worked by the Indians and later by the colonists.

Passing through Woodbridge, the Wanderbirds will follow dirt roads and a trail to Pirates Cove for the swim. The distance from Woodbridge to the cove and return is about 3 miles. Not far from the swimming place Dr. Ulke discovered a curious slab of sandstone, very likely an old tombstone. A weathered skull and crossbones are chiseled upon it and beneath one may barely decipher the date "17—" and a blurred "Capt. . . ." Dr. Ulke believes that a pirate chief probably lies beneath this weather-beaten tombstone and hopes to secure permission to excavate in search of metal ornaments, armor and money.

The buses will meet the group at Woodbridge, leaving for Washington about 6:30. Hikers should bring along lunches and a drinking cup.

Wanderbirds planning to go on the 13-mile trip from Smithburg Road to Turners Gap along South Mountain, will meet at the south side of the Treasury at 7 a. m Sunday. Reservations accompanied by $3, which includes dinner and bus fare, must be in the hands of the leader, W. Clark Dean, by noon Saturday. Mr. Dean may be reached at District 2900, No. 96, during the day. His address is 15 West Irving street, Chevy Chase, Md.

Pageant Tells Life of Nation Here Tonight

Concert by Marine Band Will Open Self-Help Patriotic Fete.

Colorful pages from the Nation's history will be portrayed by a cast of 3,000 persons on the east plaza of the Capitol when the Self-Help Patriotic Pageant, largest spectacle since the bicentennial celebration, is staged this evening.

More than 10,000 persons are expected to attend.

The production will be opened by a concert by the United States Marine Band at 7:30 p. m. The pageant will begin at 8 p. m. with the prologue, which will be read by the Rev. F. Ernest Warren, assistant rector of St. Alban's Church.

Many Cooperating.

Cooperating with the Self-Help workers in the production are the Transient Bureau, the Community Center Department, Henry W. Spangler Post of the American Legion and auxiliary organizations, the Salvation Army, members of the Mutual Improvement Associations of the Mormon Church in Washington, the CCC, the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, choirs of colored churches in the District, the Estelle Wentworth operatic group and the Marian Chace dancers.

Directed by Capt. Wilbur C. Young, the opening scene will be supplied by the Salvation Army. Edgar Jewett will play the part of the lone Indian scout.

The second scene, depicting Pilgrims going to church, will be presented by Miss Wentworth's singers.

Approximately 150 persons will participate in the third scene. They will represent the dramatic groups of the Community Center, the Spangler Legion Post and the Marian Chace Studios. Miss Olive O'Connell is director and Mrs. Mary Cromwell, assistant.

To Show Frontier Life.

The next two scenes will portray frontier life and will be played by members of the Mormon organization. Ancestors of virtually every person in this cast were pioneers in Utah and other intermountain sections. Robert Anderson is director of this phase of the pageant.

The last two scenes will be presented by approximately 200 men from the Transient Bureau, assisted by the CCC. Miss Sarah Elizabeth Beaty is in charge of the bureau players.

A massing of units of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, foreign societies of the Americanization schools, the CCC and other groups will make up the grand finale on the Capitol steps.

Choral numbers throughout the spectacle will be sung by 1,000 members of colored choirs and other organizations in the District, directed by Alfred H. Johnson.

Storm Hits Luzon; Island Paralyzed

Second Typhoon in 6 Days Inflicts Heavy Loss.

Manila, P. I., Oct. 4 (AP).—A typhoon swept northern Luzon Island tonight, stopping all communications and causing heavy property damage. The loss of life, if any, was not known here.

Telephone and telegraph wires were blown down and railroad tracks washed out. Manila escaped the wind and accompanying rainstorm.

This was the second devastating typhoon to visit this section of the Philippines within the last six days.

Doctors Refuse to Save Child From Motherhood

Denver, Oct. 4 (AP).—Physicians have declined to operate upon a 12-year-old girl to prevent her from becoming a mother, it was disclosed today when the child appeared in court to testify against John Brewer, 38, a laborer.

Authorities of the Denver General Hospital said an operation was not indicated as a "life-and-death" matter and therefore could not be performed under State law. A court order was sought unsuccessfully for an operation.

Titled Friends Coming to Aid A Vanderbilt

The prince admitted being worried over the possibility of finding himself in New York with only about $4. Present German restrictions limit the amount of money which travelers may take out of the country to 10 marks.

"I can't understand mother's attitude at all," she said. "She was present (at Biarritz) all the time when Prince Hohenlohe was there. If anything was wrong, why didn't she get out?"

The Marchioness of Milford-Haven, whose husband is a great-grandson of Queen Victoria and a cousin of King George, flew from Paris to London today. She said she would confer with the marquess and her lawyers on whether to go to America.

When the case is resumed tomorrow, it will be continued in open court. Because of the nature of the testimony, Justice Carew suggested to both sides that it be concluded in private, but Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorneys protested that since she has been attacked publicly it was only fair that she be defended publicly.

"Brain Truster's" Father Dead.

Racine, Wis., Oct. 4 (AP).—Peter F. Haas, father of the Rev. Francis J. Haas, a member of the Labor Advisory Board of the National Recovery Administration and one of the early "brain trusters" of the Roosevelt Administration, died today at the age of 74.

"Boy! you sure know how to mix 'em!"

That Fleischmann's Gin makes the smoothest Martini I ever tasted!"

Try these Recipes at your next Cocktail Party

MARTINI (Use mixing glass.) A dash or two of Orange Bitters, two-thirds jigger Fleischmann's Gin, one-third jigger French Vermouth (Italian for a sweet Martini), a piece of lemon rind, ice. Stir in glass and serve with an olive in cocktail glass.

TOM COLLINS (Use Tom Collins glass.) Juice of one lemon, heaping teaspoon powdered sugar, jigger of Fleischmann's Gin, ice, fill balance of glass with club soda and stir.

CLOVER CLUB (Use shaker.) Juice of one small lime or a quarter of a lemon, white of one fresh egg, a teaspoonful of grenadine; one jigger of Fleischmann's Gin. Shake thoroughly and strain into a large cocktail glass.

A smooth Martini requires a smooth American Gin—like Fleischmann's

YOUR COCKTAIL PARTY can be a hilarious success—or a dismal failure—depending entirely upon the flavor of your Martinis.

Martinis, like all gin drinks, are extremely "sensitive." Smooth, delicious, intriguing . . . or raw, bitter, unpalatable. The gin makes the difference!

That's why so many people prefer Fleischmann's.

Fleischmann's Dry Gin is an American gin—distilled from American grains—to an American formula—to satisfy American tastes and drinking customs. It blends perfectly. Brings out the subtle, hidden flavors.

Buy a bottle. Mix up a Martini—or any gin drink. You'll understand why "it takes an American gin to make a smooth American cocktail."

IMPORTANT INSURANCE AGAINST THE FUTURE

Our standard bottled-in-bond (as distinguished from pre-prohibition) stocks of famous old whiskies will soon be available, including such favorites as Old Taylor, Old Grand Dad, Blue Grass, Old McBrayer, Black Gold, Bourbon de Luxe, Sunny Brook, Mount Vernon, Old Ripy, Bond & Lillard and Boone's Knoll. As a safeguard of quality and adequacy of supply in future we are selecting and retiring for aging between 23,000,000 and 30,000,00 gallons from this year's distillations

And it won't be long before they're just a memory

SOME time ago we announced in this newspaper that we still had a limited stock of pre-prohibition Old Grand Dad and Old Taylor (16 to 18 years old) in our bonded warehouses at Louisville. And we urged people to hurry if they wanted some.

Whiskey so rare as this is really "occasion" whiskey — not for the everyday cocktail or highball, but for the unusual occasion

Apparently people did want some, and hurried. We haven't a bottle of either left — though we understand you can still find a case or so, here and there, in the hands of far-sighted dealers.

The point is this: We gave you the facts then and we give them to you now.

The eight marvelous old pre-prohibition whiskies pictured and named in this advertisement are just about gone too. In fact we very much doubt if they'll last till Christmas. And in some parts of the country dealers will unquestionably be completely sold out long before then. So, again, we sincerely urge you to act quickly if you want to lay by a case or so for special occasions.

Long before prohibition, these famous whiskies were regarded by connoisseurs as the very choicest in the land—aristocrats, every one of them. Today, mellowed and sweetened 16 to 18 years in charred oak, they are collectors' items of the tastiest and ripest order.

There'll come times when you want and require something of this exclusive sort — why not anticipate those occasions before it's too late and buy today against the future?

"Wake Up and Dream," the Late Russ Columbo's Last Film, Opens at the Rialto

By Nelson B. Bell.

"WAKE UP AND DREAM." Universal picturization of a story by John Meehan, jr., with song numbers by Bernie Grossman, Jack Stern, Grace Hamilton and Russ Columbo, featuring Roger Pryor, June Knight and Russ Columbo, with Catherine Doucet, Henry Armetta, Richard Carle, Spencer Charters, Andy Devine and Paul Porcasi. Directed by Kurt Neumann. Reviewed Thursday morning.

Except that it suffers the handicap of a depressing public consciousness that it is a posthumous vehicle for the late Russ Columbo, "Make Up and Dream" is easily the most diverting of the Rialto's recent pictures.

Exhibiting only a few of the familiar music hall-marks of the overworked backstage formula—although its principal characters are "show folks" and it continuously skirts the stage and hovers about the studios of Hollywood—it introduces its tuneful songs only when the movement of the plot demands it, and then presents them in the manner in which they would be sung in the given circumstances.

The result is a comedy-drama of considerable originality in its utilization of music as a component part of narrative. "Wake Up and Dream" at least matches every one of its hackneyed devices by one that is fresh, amusing and in consonance with the spirit of a film that takes its romance a little more seriously than the common or garden variety of chromatic celluloids.

Action Spans Continent.

The action is transcontinental in scope. Two boys and a girl who have formed a vaudeville team that has trouped together for years, go on the rocks in New York. Due to an over-enthusiastic attempt to do the singer of the three a service, one of the lads places himself on the spot in the eyes of the law. Rather than turn him in and go their way alone, the other two accompany him on a cross-country jaunt by train, bus and thumb, with the thought of crashing Hollywood and the films. This they finally accomplish, but not until both lads have fallen desperately in love with their blonde partner, both have executed sacrificial gestures in true Damon and Pythias fashion and everything has come out as well as could have been expected.

By the simple expedient of the Nation-wide hunt for a booking, the trio, impersonated by Roger Pryor, June Knight and Russ Columbo, are enabled to undergo numerous auditions, try-outs, rehearsals and whatnot, always falling back on the three nice tunes that have been written for the picture under the titles of "Too Beautiful," "When You're in Love" and "Let's Pretend There's a Moon." Columbo and the vivacious and platinum Miss Knight attend to most of the vocal chores, Mr. Pryor looking out for the acting and the straight man's business of being harassed by the gendarmes. The triumvirate is an effective one, Columbo crooning in his best manner in that distinctly true and mellow voice that, alas, will be heard no more.

A contributory running fire of comedy is supplied, not always with happiest effect, by Catherine Doucet, in the role of a crystal-gazing fortune teller; Andy Devine, as her bodyguard, heavily armed with empty weapons and a colossal thirst, and Henry Armetta, a visitor from Italy, whose appetite is as ravenous as Miss Doucet's eagerness to monopolize his affections.

Signor Armetta's gormandizing falls just a trifle this side of being the perfect prod to the risibilities and even Mr. Devine's persistent tippling lacks something of the true spark of comic genuis. However, all have their moments, both individually and collectively, with occasional skillful assistance from Richard Carle, Wini Shaw, Paul Porcasi and others of an extensive cast.

"Going Places with Lowell Thomas," in which the items of major interest are presented under such subheadings as "Etchings of Paris," "Babes in the Zoo," "Women of Russia," "Dance Mad," and "The Lake of Delight;" "The Queen of Hearts," a natural color cartoon comedy of an episode in the court of the monarchs of the red suit, and the new issue of the Universal News, with particular emphasis on the President's recent broadcast; Hauptmann and the disturbing spectacle of the bewhiskered Mr. "Tiny" Dean dropping his expansive tonnage on the comparatively meager chassis of Master Joe Savoldi in their recent wrestling match, are the abbreviated subjects that complete a bill of melodious, mild and utterly wholesome entertainment for the entire family

Added to the bill at the Rialto yesterday afternoon, but not in time to catch the performance reviewed above, was a bit of footage of prime interest to Washington baseball fans, judging from the crowds that pack themselves in front of The Post's scoreboard every afternoon. Yes, the first pictures of the first game of the World Series in Detroit, won by the St. Louis Cardinals by a score of 8 to 3. These comprehensive shots, which consume several minutes of running time on the screen, were first shown at 4:10 p. m. Universal laid special plans to score beats with its newsreel shots of the series. In addition to ace camera crews, they made provision for rapid laboratory service and planted a man in the press box to put a play-by-play account of the games on the sound track. The pictures were on Detroit screens within an hour after the last man was out in the first game. A nice, fast double-play, camera-to-lab-to-exhibitor!

Reinhardt's Plans.

Dr. Max Reinhardt will begin work on the screen version of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" for Warner Brothers about the middle of November, according to present schedule.

This word was received yesterday in a cordial note from S. Charles Einfeld, director of advertising and publicity for Warner Brothers, First National and Vitaphone pictures, who is vastly heartened by the great National interest that has been aroused by the announcement of the signing of Dr. Reinhardt to a Warner Brothers contract.

This world-wide interest, as a matter of fact, already has inspired the perspicacious Mr. Einfeld to lay plans for the inauguration of a special news service to be conducted from what he terms the "firing line" when the Reinhardt unit actually gets about its "shooting" on the West Coast.

It will be recalled by Washington playgoers that the Community Players' production of a slightly abreviated and compressed version of the "Dream" last summer attracted one of the largest crowds of the al-fresco season to the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds. Similar reaction was accorded the recent Reinhardt production of the Shakespeare fantasy in the Hollywood Bowl.

Following the Shakespeare play, Reinhardt will film "The Miracle," which will continue at Metro indefinitely, doing, in the course of a year, a couple of additional roles.

Miss Garbo is said to be receiving a flat sum of $300,000 for the one picture. So enthusiastic, I learn, was she over the script of "The Painted Veil," an adaptation of the Somerset Maugham original, that she agreed to accept something less than one-third of her latest quoted figure—plus a share in the proceeds—in order to play in it.

The result is reputed to justify her hopes. "The Painted Vail," directed by Richard Boleslavsky, will be previewed almost at once. Garbo's leading men are Herbert Marshall and George Brent.

* * * *

Mary Pickford To Produce and Star.

Mary Pickford has purchased "Three Kisses," by Ivan Lebedeff, actor-author, as her next film production, following many months of deliberation.

She will produce and star in the original yarn after her broadcasting chore is finished. This will take up some 13 weeks of her time.

Fortune Hunters in New Films

Mr. Joel McCrea, the smiling young gentleman pictured above at left, encounters many perplexities in trying to determine which is "The Richest Girl in the World" and which her maid in the picture of that name opening at RKO-Keith's today. He finally finds out. Miss Gertrude Michael, Caesar's wife at the Palace, is a clever jewel thief in the character of "Notorious Sophie Lang," which happens to be also the name of the picture opening today at the Columbia. She doesn't do quite as well as Mr. McCrea, financially.

Straight From the Studios

Greta Garbo Will Make at Least One More for M-G-M; Clark Gable and Jean Harlow to Co-Star Again; Intimate Items Hot From Flickerdom.

By Philip K. Scheurer
(Pinch-Hitting for Edwin Schallert, on vacation).

Hollywood, Oct. 4.—Greta Garbo, first of the glamour ladies, will remain at M-G-M for at least one more glamour movie. Intelligence to this effect has leaked out despite a stony silence maintained by studio officials themselves. Garbo's current film, "The Painted Veil," has just been completed.

GRETA GARBO

How the star's decision to stay on the home lot will affect, ultimately, her negotiations with Walter Wanger, now embarked on independent production, is unknown. It is quite possible that the Swedish actress one of his most famous spectacles, for the Warners, possibly with Jean Muir featured.

Warner Brothers' Avalon Theater, one of the residential chain located at 5612 Connecticut avenue northwest, for the information of Chevy Chaseans, will present daily matinees, beginning next Monday, October 8. Under the new policy, Avalon programs will begin daily at 2 p. m. "British Agent," with Leslie Howard and Kay Francis, is the initial attraction under the new plan.

Short Short Story.

Someone, evidently gone slightly demented over the titles of this week's pictures, surreptitiously slipped this under the corner of our desk blotter yesterday, instead of into the waste basket: The "Belle of the Nineties," like the "Notorious Sophie Lang," "Outcast Lady," stole "One Night of Love," only to "Wake Up and Dream" she was "Cleopatra," the "Richest Girl in the World."

Write your own ticket—we don't use that kind of language!

Film Table

Heigh-Ho Club Opens Tonight, Nader Featured

Nina and Fidel, Dancers, Head Madrillon Bill Next Week.

By Kay Ware.

Some caviar, a glass of wine, and thou
Beside me—

There's more about Paradise being a wilderness, or is it the other way around? But Washington's no wilderness as far as good times go.

The Great Maurice bought himself a new tuxedo and a gold tablecloth. He felt, no doubt, that Heigh-Ho's opening deserved his best. So, attired in splendor including the long, silver-headed cane, he will wiggle his fingers and make things appear and vanish right before your eyes.

For the opening tonight, Heigh-Ho will borrow Shoreham's Al Nader to announce the show. You remember Al's pleasantly smooth voice and manner?

Tonight's Heigh-Ho's opening.

Here's news from the Madrillon about their next week's bill. Nina and Fidel, Spanish dancers from Aragon, head the show. Their repertoire includes dances of Portugal and Latin-America, Spanish gypsy dances and boleros, the original Spanish tango, the Portuguese fada and the Peruvian zambra.

Also, a pretty little Washington tap dancer, Susan Hall, and the two regular clowns, Jack Schaeffer and Ralph Hawkins.

Gossip note—Seen at the Madrillon, Bert Wheeler, of the movies, and a pretty blonde. . . . Young Democrats of the District having a Dutch treat luncheon. . . . Delta Phi fraternity having lunch and gabfest. . . . Walter C. Bastian, the attorney. . . . Native Alabamans giving a birthday party for R. Lee Barnes, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. . . . Distinguished Father Thomas Daniels of the Greek Church.

Change in Atmosphere.

Here's the truth about the Gingham Club. The club is still the Gingham, the atmosphere is "Casa Rita." There are Spanish vistas, deserts and mountains. The setting is the Mexican border, where the Rocky Mountains meet the sands.

Lights will be soft and flattering. The dance floor will be enlarged. Bright Spanish colors will cover tables, chairs and waitresses. The orchestra will be augmented to include a lady blues singer.

Tony, the accordionist, will walk between the tables and play the tunes you request.

Opening tonight. Hats, favors and surprises.

It won't be long before Maryland Club Gardens blossoms out with a cabaret. There has been a lot of sawing and hammering in night club circles, but the noise of construction is probably loudest here.

Approximate opening—Halloween.

Celebrities at Shoreham.

More gossip: The Minister of Egypt, Ibrahim Ratib Bey, and party wound up festivities at the Shoreham last Tuesday. The party originated at the legation and was in honor of the anniversary of the accession to the throne of his majesty, King Fouad I.

Other celebrities seen there: Maj. Allan M. Dawson, U. S. A., and Mrs. Dawson, with a large party of guests; Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, and other distinguished personages, including Mrs. McIntire, wife of the White House physician; Dr. Ross T. McIntire, U. S. N., and Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York.

The Shoreham's program: Three nightly shows, 9:15, 11:30 and 12:45. The first two are entirely different; the last is a repetition of the opening show. There's a long list of celebrities that entertain and do it well.

Next week Bobby Sanford's show will remain—with new principals, costumes and acts.

If you're lucky, you might hear that silly singer in Brooke Johns' orchestra asking you, "How'm I Doin'? Hey Hey!" in a manner that will make you answer that he's doing rather well. Perhaps it's the effect of the straw hat and the red bandanna that makes the song seem funnier than it should be.

Out Seventh Street pike until you come to a brilliantly lighted structure in the middle of a field. If you get lost, ask the man at the filling station. He'll direct you, and add with a grin, "You can't miss it." He's right. And you shouldn't.

Men Only.

When I have spent a lot of time
To get each straying hair in place
And worked so patiently to get
The make-up even on my face,
And pressed my smoothest evening dress
And dabbed my perfume just for you
And fished with "Tell me how I look?"
Don't answer "Huh? Okay. You'll do."

Entertainers to remember: The little girl with the skipping rope at La Paree . . . Bobby Gillette and banjo at Club Michel . . . Sid Cowen and foreign songs at the Mayflower . . . "Rumbolero" dance team at the Lotus . . . the canaries in Mr. Godfrey's Sun Dail . . .

As sleek as a suit by Molyneux, as colorful as a pousse cafe, as smart as a New Yorker thinks he is—that's Hi-Hat.

There are rumors afloat about the Troika. Keep your ears open.

Roland Mumford, manager of the Hamilton Hotel for the last 14 years, has resigned to go to the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh, N. C. Folks are sorry to see him go.

If you long for an old-time seafood dinner, with the best beer as an accompaniment, go to Halls. Cooked oysters fairly sizzle on your plate, tenderloin steak is the answer to the epicure's prayer.

The young man at the Shoreham who wears a beret and carries a drawing pad likes to draw dogs. Doesn't know why, but he thinks he can draw better dogs than human beings.

Auction rooms, aside from being places where you sometimes can get bargains, offer excellent opportunities to study human nature. The lady who waits three hours to offer $3.50 for an overstuffed chair . . . The barker who takes it as a personal insult if the bid won't start at $1 . . . The tired children who hang onto mother's skirts . . . The dealer who chews his big cigar and snaps his bids with machine-gun speed . . . The man who makes notation on a big book and collects money . . . The girls who bids up and up on a boudoir chair, then when the price goes too high, turns with a sob saying, "I wanted it back so much." . . . The colored porters who heave furniture, bid as proxies, and glisten with perspiration.

With Magic in Their Feet—

Citizens to Hear Prettyman Discuss Program Tomorrow.

Anticipating the return of Congress, Corporation Counsel Prettyman is preparing a tentative legislative program to be sought by the District Commissioners.

This program he plans to discuss tomorrow night at the meeting of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Tuesday night at a session of the District Bar Association. These organizations have expressed interest in some of the legislation suggested. Mr. Prettyman hopes to gain a united front on important bills.

Most of the proposed legislation has been before Congress heretofore. One of the suggestions is for a new method of mortgage foreclosure. This subject has been debated at length at Senate and House committee discussions of realty financing here.

Another bill is one calling for regulation of small loan operators, in the interest of protecting the borrowers from exorbitant charges said to be made by some dealers.

Establishment of a lunacy commission, consisting of psychiatrists, to take over decisions now reached by a jury of laymen at District Supreme Court is another proposed measure.

An amendment to the District Public Utilities Commission act designed to limit the scope of appeals to court from rulings of the Utilities Commission is another proposal.

Political Tiff Ruled 'Offensive;' Talker Is Fined as Disorderly

Quarrel at Horse Show Leads to Montgomery County Court.

Holding that there is "no question that a political argument is offensive," Donald Delashmutt, Montgomery County police court justice of Rockville, yesterday found Russell Magruder, of Rockville, guilty of disorderly conduct while arguing about politics at the Montgomery County Charity Horse Show Saturday.

Delashmutt fined Magruder $5 and costs. Then he suspended sentence.

Appearing against Magruder, among others, were Mrs. M. I. Hunter, of 4100 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., who testified she had called a policeman when a group of men, arguing about politics near her stand at the show, became so heated that she was afraid there would be a fight, and Miss M. Buckley, of 4109 Leland street, who said she heard someone curse, but wasn't sure who it was.

James E. Christopher, deputy clerk of the county commission, also heard someone use profane words, he said. Jack Nevin, of Washington, testified that he heard a "lot of loud talking."

Among the defense witnesses was James Pugh, the county Democratic organization's candidate for State's attorney, who said that James P. Veirs, one of those in the group, is hard of hearing and that maybe the argument had been a little heated. He denied, however, that there had been any profanity.

Veirs, James Cummings and Walter Dawson, chairman of the Republican State central committee and Pugh's opponent for State's attorney, also appeared for the defendant. They said there had been an argument, but denied it was disorderly.

Robert Phillips, the arresting officer, said when Mrs. Hunter called his attention to the argument Magruder was the only member of the group talking.

In finding the defendant guilty, Delashmutt explained that the statute covering disorderly conduct is "very broad," that a charge was sufficiently sustained if but one person had been disturbed.

Raid Squad Trap Eluded by Dorsey

2 More Gambling Forays Fail to Locate Him.

The elusive Wilbur Dorsey led a police raiding squad to two alleged gambling establishments yesterday.

Dorsey has been indicted on charges of setting up a gaming table. Search for him since the indictment has led raiding squads into four reputed gambling establishments.

In yesterday's raids police confiscated an assortment of alleged gambling equipment, but made no arrests. Names and addresses of patrons were taken and proprietors were warned to cease operations.

Commenting on the raids, vice squad members said they "had a tip that Dorsey was in one place or the other."

Lawyer Yields, Avoids Arrest

Landreau Produces Estate Papers; Judge Drops Contempt Charge.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday dismissed a contempt of court citation he issued last week for the arrest of Norman B. Landreau, an attorney. His action was based on the surrender by Landreau of the papers, records and documents pertaining to his handling of the affairs of Vincent L. McCarty, an insane World War veteran.

Landreau's failure to produce the records led to the citation. Justice Jennings Bailey issued a contempt order against him three weeks ago. When Landreau, through a friend, said that if given time he could produce the papers, he was given until last week.

Landreau failed to appear in court on the new date and Chief Justice Wheat ordered him arrested and held until he gave up the data. In an affidavit accompanying the McCarty papers, Landreau said he does not now have the assets of the estate.

Miss Pollard Becomes Bride At St. Alban's

Marriage to Mr. William Schofield Solemnized at Noon.

St. Alban's Church yesterday at noon was the scene of the wedding of Miss Sarah Russell Pollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson Pollard, of Chevy Chase, D. C., and Mr. William Craycroft Schofield, son of Capt. John Anderson Schofield, U. S. N., and Mrs. Schofield, of Washington. The Rev. James Henderson, chaplain of St. Alban's School for Boys, performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with palms, ferns and fuchsia and mauve chrysanthemums in tall standards. Preceding the ceremony Mr. Nash, the organist of the church, gave a program of organ music.

The bride, who was escorted and given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of antique ivory satin, made along princess lines, with a high cowl neck and close-fitting sleeves that ended in points over the hands. The skirt formed a lily-shaped train, and her voluminous veil of antique ivory tulle fell from a cap of rare old duchess lace, an heirloom in the bride's family. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Sister Is Matron of Honor.

Mrs. Philip Tuttle Williams, the former Miss Anne Pollard, a sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore an en train gown of fuchsia velvet, made with dolman sleeves; a large beret of fuchsia velvet, and carried an arm bouquet of mauve chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Donovan, Miss Marian Ostermayer, Miss Amy Selby and Miss Betty Crane, a cousin of the bride. Their costumes were like that of the matron of honor.

Little Miss Sarah Anne Williams, niece of the bride, was the flower girl.

Mr. Charles Swan Weber, of Washington, was the best man. The ushers were Mr. John Belton Cleland, jr., Mr. George Thwaite Phipps, Mr. Wayne Ellston Chambers and Mr. Philip Tuttle Williams, all of Washington.

There was a reception immediately after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, on McKinley street.

Receive With Couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Pollard and Capt. and Mrs. Schofield received the guests with the young couple and the wedding party. Mrs. Pollard wore a rosebrown velvet gown made with a gold mesh yoke. She wore a shoulder spray of orchids. Mrs. Schofield's gown was of black velvet trimmed in loops of white silk. Her flowers were gardenias.

Mr. Schofield is a graduate of St. Alban's School for Boys, and the University of Maryland.

Col. and Mrs. Cutts On Western Trip

Have Left Newport for San Diego, Calif.

Col. Richard M. Cutts, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. Cutts have left Newport, R. I., for San Diego, Calif., where they will be joined later by their daughter, Mrs. John T. Wainwright, and her young son, who will leave Newport in a few days by motor for California.

Lieut. Richard M. Cutts, jr., whose marriage to Miss Dorothea Lane, of Washington, took place in Newport the middle of September, when the Rev. Dr. Ze Barney Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany and chaplain of the Senate, officiated, will return to Washington next week with his bride and they will make their home at 2400 Sixteenth street with the latter's father, Mr. Richard H. Lane.

Col. Cutts will retire from active service in December.

Senora Arguello To Reside Here

Senora Irma Arguello and her daughter, Senorita Chita Arguello, who are both in the Nicaraguan consular service, have taken an apartment at the Fairfax for the season. Senora Arguello is assigned to Richmond, while her daughter is honorary vice consul to San Francisco. Their duties, however, permit them to make their home in Washington.

Senorita Arguello spent a great deal of her time last year with the Charge d'Affaires of Nicaragua and Senora de De Bayle, as their guest at the legation.

Senora Arguello arrived in New York the first week in September, where she was met by her daughter and immediately went to Ocean City, N. J., where they spent a month before coming to the Capital.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Killeen and their daughter, Miss Mildred Killeen, are at the Shoreham before moving into the apartment they have leased at St. Albans. They have come from New York to make their residence in Washington. Mr. Killeen is a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

Miss Ethel Hoffman Kane will entertain at a musicale in the auditorium of Gunston Hall this evening at 8 o'clock, when her guest artists will be Miss Ruth Baxter and Mr. Felian Garzia.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Bronchial Asthma.

PATIENTS who show symptoms of bronchial asthma are usually oversensitive to some substance which does not affect the average individual. Many of us have acquaintances who can not eat strawberries, certain other fruits, or sea foods. If they do the skin is likely to develop a blotchy, red, itching eruption. Foods; pollens from grass weeds, or flowers; certain drugs; the hair or the skin of animals; or bacteria may bring on asthmatic attacks or skin eruptions in susceptible persons. In such cases the glands of internal secretion also play an important role.

To determine exactly the cause of asthma frequently requires a long and intensive search. A careful physical examination, a complete X-ray study, a thoroughly laboratory investigation and numerous skin tests are usually necessary.

There is first a spasm of the muscles of the bronchial tubes, followed by a swelling of the mucous membrane. This in turn results in the pouring out of a thick, tenacious secretion that, as it increases, may completely plug the bronchi. If the spasm can be relieved before the swelling and the secretion of mucous occur the patient is much more comfortable and the severe coughing spells are thus avoided.

In our search for the exact cause the patient must be tested for a long list of possible offending substances and may be found to be sensitive to more than one. If it is a certain food or group of foods, correcting the diet will solve the problem. If the culprit is house dust, extracts of the particular dust will frequently be found effective. If this plan fails it may be necessary to remove the patient, at least for a time, from his home environment.

Asthma due to pollen may usually be detected by its seasonal appearance. This emphasizes the necessity of the patient's keeping an accurate record of the exact day, hour and duration of the attacks.

If all skin tests are negative the assumption may well be that the asthmatic attack is due to bacteria present somewhere in the nasal passages, sinuses, throat or bronchi of the patient himself. Careful bacteriological cultures must then be made of the sputum and the nasal secretions, and the patient tested for each organism found.

In addition to specific or vaccine treatment directed against the irritating factor, certain general relief measures will need to be employed. The diet should be liquid or soft foods. Copious water drinking should be indulged in, using distilled water if the drinking water usually provided contains a disinfectant or is heavily charged with minerals. Infections about the nose and throat should be carefully attended to. In some cases potassium iodide is of the greatest value, or in children the sirup of the iodide of iron.

For the acute stage adrenalin solution, in doses of three to five drops every two or three hours, is most useful and frequently cuts short the attack. Sugar by mouth, or sometimes glucose given intravenously, is employed.

An Expensive Gift.

It is always sound business policy to trade one trick for two. Practically no one seeing an opportunity to make such a profitable exchange would overlook it. But sometimes exactly this opportunity goes begging because such an unusual play is required that it can not be made instinctively, and most people play more by instinct and by experience than by cold analysis. Often it is by unblocking or exiting that a player manages to give up one trick in order to gain two or more others. Throwing an exit card consists in discarding or purposely losing a winning card in order to avoid being thrown in the lead. In today's hand the exit card was an Ace, and it had to be discarded at the first opportunity.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	1♠	Pass
4♡(1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—South's hand was almost strong enough for an Opening two-bid; nevertheless he did not wish to make a Forcing Rebid of three clubs. Being void in spades, he feared that there might be a duplication of values and that he might be forced to play at a five-club contract, which he might not make.

West opened the King of diamonds and South won with the Ace. South now ran four hearts, discarding two diamonds and a spade from Dummy, and then made the mistake of leading a fifth heart in the hope that one adversary would discard a club.

South's lead of the fifth heart was really not such a bad play, because he could hardly be expected to guess the remarkable division of the spade suit. But East, who knew only too well that if he were forced to lead he would have to establish at least three tricks in spades for Dummy, was only too glad to escape forever the possibility that he might have to lead. It was too bad, of course, that he had to throw away an Ace, but he considered it quite an advantageous sacrifice. If East had thrown a spade instead, South's next play would probably have been the club King, and East would have been locked in his hand with no choice but to lead through West's spade King into Dummy's tenace.

The discard of the club Ace established South's King and Queen, but he was nevertheless forced to give West two club tricks and two diamond tricks, being set one.

The Minister of Hungary and Mme. Pelenyi entertained informally at luncheon yesterday in the legation on Eighteenth street in honor of the United States Minister to Hungary, Mr. John Flourney Montgomery, who has been in Washington for several days.

The Minister and Mme. Pelenyi will spend next week in New York. In their absence the Hungarian delegate to the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, Count Nandor Zchy, will be a guest at the legation while attending the meetings of the federation opening Tuesday.

Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings entertained at dinner last night at their home, Ruthven, in honor of Mr. Montgomery.

Groners Return From Bridal Trip

Judge and Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, who recently returned from a wedding trip in Europe, have leased the house at 2600 Thirty-first street and are now moving from Mrs. Groner's former home on California street. Mrs. Groner was Mrs. Edwards Shouse before her marriage in August.

Miss Marion Shouse, daughter of Mrs. Groner, will rejoin her mother next week, coming from Nantucket, where she spent the summer. Another daughter, Miss Elizabeth Shouse, who has been with Miss Mary Bradley on a ranch in Wyoming, will return to Washington later in the season.

Cummings to See Grace Moore Film

Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings will attend the premiere of "One Night of Love" at the Earle Theater tonight. This is the motion picture starring Grace Moore, opera singer.

In the Attorney General's party will be Mr. and Mrs. Dawson, Miss Grace Tully, Mr. Bracken and Mr. Raymond T. Baker.

Many of Miss Moore's friends are expected to see her picture this week. A former pupil at the late Mrs. Wilson-Green's School, Miss Moore has won success in opera, concert, musical comedy and radio.

French Embassy Aid Cocktail Party Host

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The French cruiser d'Entrecasteaux, which is anchored in the Washington Navy Yard for several days, boasts twelve most charming officers commanded by Capt. de Lestrange, tall and genial, whom a part of Capital society had the pleasure of meeting yesterday afternoon at the cocktail party given in their honor by the Naval Attache of the Embassy and Mme. Sable at their home on Primrose street in Chevy Chase. And a charming home it is, set well back from the street in a garden of flowers and shrubs, many of which were used inside for decoration. Huge bowls of bright-colored zinnias were on the tea table, tall vases of delicate gladioli in the drawing room, with vivid dahlias in the hall.

Capt. Sable was in uniform as were the guests of honor and the dark blue and gold braid contrasted pleasantly with the duller costumes of the other men, and the rich fall tones of the ensembles of the ladies.

Mme. Sable, who was assisted by the ladies of the embassy staff, wore a gown of dark hunters' green crepe with a narrow piping of deep ivory. Mme. Lombard, wife of the Military Attache, was in a costume of black and white, with a jaunty hat trimmed with a white cockade, and tiny Mme. Champsaur, wife of the Air Attache, was in a woolen frock of brown and gold checks, with a brown velour hat.

Mlle. de Laboulaye Present.

The Ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye, recently returned from Europe, were accompanied by their young daughter, Mlle. Marie Theres de Laboulaye, who wore a frock of pale French blue, a color which she favors frequently, and a small black hat. Mme. de Laboulaye was in black, with touches of brick red, and she and the Ambassador were greeted on all sides with welcomes, for yesterday was really their first appearance since their return to Washington.

In the dining room the guests gathered around the table which was weighted down with delicacies such as only a French hostess can provide, and nobody thought of calories as they turned afternoon tea conversation into a discussion of the dainties.

The French officers are being delightfully entertained during their brief stay in the Capital, and today, after a sightseeing trip conducted by a group of United States naval officers, they will stop at the Army-Navy Country Club for luncheon before going to Mount Vernon in the afternoon. On their return they will be entertained at a cocktail party by Capt. and Mrs. W. D. Puleston. Tomorrow Capt. de Lestrange will entertain a group of American officers at luncheon aboard the d'Entrecasteaux, and in the evening the Ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye will give a large dinner for them.

Second Visit Here.

One of the officers is visiting Washington for the second time in the last six months, young Midshipman DeMott, who was here last spring with the French training ship, Jeanne d'Arc. Yesterday afternoon he was greeted by two surprised young ladies who had danced with him at the dance given for the midshipmen of Jeanne d'Arc at the embassy last spring. Forthwith ensued much conversation and recollection in which several of the younger officers of d'Entrecasteaux joined with delight.

On Saturday afternoon, Lieut. Lucian Ragonnet will take some of the officers to the Navy-Virginia football game at the Griffith Stadium. They will occupy a box presented to them by the Naval Academy. On Sunday they will make their own plans, and on Monday will motor to Annapolis to visit the United States Naval Academy. They will be entertained in the Officers Club in the afternoon, and on Tuesday will leave for Savannah, Ga., where the d'Entrecastreaux will partake in the ceremonies of Pulaski Day. Thence they will go to Martinique.

Others at the reception yesterday afternoon were Mme. Peter, wife of the Minister of Switzerland, who has recently returned from a summer spent in Europe. She wore a frock of black and white checks, very smart with her small black hat.

Many Others Present.

Miss Mary and Miss Josephine Patten were present, as were the Naval Attache of the German Embassy, Capt. Robert Wittoeft, arriving in his distinctive cream colored miniature Mercedes, which his chauffeur handles in Washington traffic with such amazing ease; the Air Attache of the Italian Embassy and Signora Sbernadori, the latter wearing a costume of wood brown trimmed with fur; the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, Capt. Ferdinando Casardi; the Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro, the latter in a costume of pale gray crepe with a hat to match; the Naval Attache of the Soviet Embassy, Admiral Paul Oras, chatting in voluble French to the officers; the new Attache of the the French Embassy, M. Charles Saint, who arrived in this country with his ambassador, and will be joined later this month by Mme. Saint, who sails from France on October 17, accompanied by the Attache of the Embassy and Countess de Leusse, who have been abroad since the middle of the summer.

Others in gay little groups were Mrs. James Carroll Frazier, gowned in black, trimmed with a collar of terra-cotta; Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Del Mar, the latter wearing a smart brown suit trimmed with a beaver collar and a hat of the latest fashion to match; Miss Betty West, who wore a gown of black silk with a dusky pink jabot; Mrs. William T. Mann, who was seen conversing in French with several of the officers from the cruiser, and was gowned in black velvet made on long lines with a standing collar, a la Russe, with large gold buttons down the front; Mr. Oscar Crosby and his daughter, Mrs. Crosby Miller, the latter wearing a smart ensemble of black with a white satin blouse with a white cossack hat and accessories.

Mrs. Bloom Attends.

Also seen in the dining room were Mrs. Sol Bloom and her daughter, Miss Vera Bloom. Mrs. Bloom wore a smart ensemble of dark brown and her daughter also wore brown trimmed with a saucy brown and white checked bow.

Capt. and Mrs. Garret L. Schuyler, who have been absent from Washington for several years and have just returned to the Capital, were seen greeting many of their old friends. Mrs. Schuyler looked very smart in a black velvet afternoon gown trimmed with ecru lace and a black velvet turban. Capt. and Mrs. Schuyler are spending several days at the Anchorage while their house in Georgetown is being set in order. The First Secretary of the German Embassy, Herr Ernst Meyer, who occupied it last year, entertained at dinner last evening in his new home in Wesley Heights.

Among the group from the large service circle in Washington were the Commandant of the Navy Yard and Mrs. De Frees and their daughter, Miss Helen De Frees; the former Chief of Naval Operations, Rear Admiral Charles F. Hughes; Brig. Gen. Dion Williams and Mrs. Williams, Lieut. Comdr. Victor C. Barringer, jr., aid to Rear Admiral De Frees, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Arthur L. Willard.

Society Plans Lavish Fetes For Aeronauts

Delegates to Arrive Here Tomorrow for Sessions Opening Tuesday.

With many delegates to the Congress of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale arriving in Washington tomorrow for the conferences opening Tuesday, Capital society is making lavish plans for their entertainment.

On Sunday they will go to Mount Vernon and will stop for luncheon at the Collingwood Inn. Later in the afternoon former Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautic Association, will entertain at tea for them at his home on Sixteenth street. That evening the Ambassador of Italy, Signor Augusto Rosso, will entertain at a buffet supper in honor of the Italian delegate, the Duca Della Vittoria, Marcello Diaz, president of the Aero Club of Italy, when the guests will include all delegates to the conference and the ladies accompanying them.

On Monday the delegates will fly to Langley Field and Kitty Hawks, and on their return some will attend the buffet supper to be given by the Ambassador of Poland, Mr. Stanislaw Patek, while others will attend the dinner being given by the Ambassador of Germany, Dr. Hans Luther.

The delegates will be entertained at luncheon Tuesday at the Carlton Hotel by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. That evening the Minister of Rumania, Mr. Charles A. Davila, will entertain at dinner in the legation in honor of the president of the F. A. I., Prince Georges Valentine Bibesco and Princess Marthe Bibesco. The Minister of Air of Rumania, Mr. Radu Irimesco, and Mme. Irimesco also will be guests at the dinner. The Minister is in New York to meet his countrymen, who arrived yesterday aboard the Paris. On Tuesday, following the dinner, the minister will entertain at a large reception for all the delegates, when the guests will include members of diplomatic, official and resident society.

The Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnik will entertain at a dinner Tuesday for the Austrian delegates, who include Prince Kinsky, president of the Austrian League for Aviation. Later they will attend the Rumanian reception. Prince Kinsky and Princess Kinsky arrived in New York aboard the Berengaria and will come to Washington tomorrow. Princess Kinsky is the daughter of Baron von dem Busche, former undersecretary of the foreign office in Berlin.

On Wednesday, following dinners in honor of the delegates by other embassies and legations, the Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Daniel C. Roper, will entertain at a large reception at 9:30 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Mr. Michael MacWhite Greets Wife in New York

The Minister of the Irish Free State, Mr. Michael MacWhite, is in New York, where he went to meet Mrs. MacWhite, who arrived yesterday morning from Ireland, where she spent the summer.

The Minister and Mrs. MacWhite will remain in New York until Sunday before returning to Washington. Last evening they attended the reception at the opening of the Museum of Irish Art.

Was Married Yesterday Afternoon

MRS. WILLIAM CRAYCROFT SCHOFIELD, who, before her marriage yesterday afternoon to Mr. Schofield, was Miss Sarah Russell Pollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Pollard. Mr. Schofield is the son of Capt. and Mrs. John A. Schofield.

OFFICIAL and RESIDENT

Society Notes

The Ambassador of France and Mme. de Laboulaye will entertain at dinner tomorrow evening in honor of the officers of the French destroyer D'Entrecasteaux, which is in the Washington Navy Yard.

The Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Mehmet Munir, left yesterday for Mexico City, where he will present his credentials of Turkish Minister to Mexico to the President of the Mexican Republic. The Ambassador will be absent from Washington for about three weeks.

The Minister of Canada, Mr. William Duncan Herridge, who is spending a few days in Canada with Mrs. Herridge, will return to Washington the first of next week. Mrs. Herridge will not return to the Capital until the end of this month.

Minister of Egypt Plans Reception.

The Minister of Egypt Ibrahim Ratib Bey has issued invitations for a reception on Tuesday afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock in celebration of the anniversary of the accession of his majesty King Fouad I.

Prince Balthazar Boncompagni, of Rome, Italy, accompanied by Princess Boncompagni and Commendatore Pantanella, spent yesterday in Washington at the Mayflower. They have been in the United States for some weeks, making a trip to the Pacific Coast and to the Century of Progress Exposition, and are sailing next week for Italy. Prince Boncompagni is a cousin of the former husband of Princess Margaret Boncompagni.

Comtessa de Festi Elisa Spreafico-Droume has come from Milan, Italy, and is at the Shoreham with her daughter, Miss Llola Spreafico-Droume. The latter will enter the King-Smith School in Washington, and the Comtessa will remain in the city several days before going to New York, from where she will sail on the Rex for home.

Col. and Mrs. Wilbourn Visiting in Capital.

Col. and Mrs. E. A. Wilbourn, of Fort Ethan Allen, are in Washington and are at the Fairfax Hotel.

Mrs. Paul E. Dampman, wife of Capt. Dampman, U. S. N., will entertain at a luncheon on Saturday, October 27, at the Army and Navy Country Club for her daughter, Miss Marjorie Jane Dampman, in honor of three of the winter's debutantes who were classmates of Miss Dampman at Holton Arms School last year, Miss Freda Frazier, Miss Nancy Harrison and Miss Esterbelle McHarg. The other guests will include the debutantes of the season.

Mrs. William Winthrop Wright, of Bridgeport, Conn., is at the Shoreham to join her son, Mr. John W. Wright, who makes his home at the hotel. Mrs. Wright will continue from here to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Atey, at their country place in Virginia.

Marry E. Tilghman To Make Debut.

Mrs. Charles Tilghman will present her daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Tilghman, to society this winter. Mrs. Tilghman and her daughter, who formerly made their home in Marion, S. C., have taken an apartment at 2540 Massachusetts avenue.

Mrs. Tilghman will entertain at a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel on Wednesday, October 31, when her guests will include the debutantes of this year.

Envoy of Ecuador Is Host at Dinner

Entertains in Honor of Mrs. A. C. Gonzalez.

The Minister of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro entertained at dinner last evening at the Mayflower in compliment to Mrs. Antonio C. Gonzales, wife of the United States Minister to Panama. The chiefs of missions of several South and Central American countries were present.

Today the Minister and Senora de Alfaro will be hosts at luncheon at the Mayflower in honor of Dr. and Mrs. B. J. Lloyd, who are going to South America next month.

Dr. Lloyd is assistant to the director of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau and will be a delegate from the United States to the ninth Pan-American Sanitary Conference in Buenos Aires, November 12 to 22, and to the second Pan-American conference of eugenics and homiculture immediately thereafter in Buenos Aires. He and Mrs. Lloyd will sail from New York on October 13.

Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, of the United States Public Health Service, who is director of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, and Dr. Kendall Emerson, of New York, are also delegates to the two conferences.

Elizabeth Watson To Wed Next June

Will Become the Bride of Ensign P. W. Burton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Watson, of Asbury Park, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Porter Watson, to Ensign Paul Willits Burton, U. S. N., son of Mrs. Burton, of Washington and the late Col. Norman G. Burton, U. S. M. C.

Miss Watson was graduated from the Knox School, Cooperstown, N. Y., and also from the Old Colony School in Boston. Ensign Burton, who is a grandson of the late Rear Admiral A. B. Willits, U. S. N., was graduated from the Haverford Preparatory School, Pa., and from the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., with the class of '33. At present he is stationed aboard the airplane carrier Saratoga, which is on its way to the West Coast.

The wedding will not take place until June, due to the ruling that graduates of the Naval Academy can not marry for two years following graduation.

Mrs. Charles MacVeagh To Sail Soon for Italy

Mrs. Charles MacVeagh, who is spending the autumn at her summer home at Dublin, N. H., expects to sail the end of the month for Italy, where she will spend the winter.

In the spring she will visit her son and daughter-in-law, the United States Minister to Greece and Mrs. Lincoln MacVeagh, at the legation in Athens, before returning to Washington.

Deb's Diary

Who, What and Where —as She Sees It.

DEAR DIARY:

The party last evening out at the Barn was lots of fun, even if the drive out and back did take up most of the time.

One of the highlights of the soiree was the sight of petite Louise Waller (all deep red crepe and mink) making friends with two indignant fussy hens. Upon their release, the Leghorns went clucking off to a secluded spot under one of the tables to smooth their ruffled feathers and feelings.

Betsy Dern is simply too ambitious and energetic for words. Last winter she was here, there and everywhere going to gay parties, but this year she has turned her head to the serious pursuit of political science at G. W. She even goes so for as to have Saturday classes.

When society becomes so far advanced that introductions are no longer garbled, I shall swoon with sheer delight. Here the other night I met one Napoleon Bonaparte Jones. Yesterday, while chatting with the same chap I learned that he is Jerome Bonaparte Johnson. What a "wail" of a difference a few letters make!

E. E. Rapleys Return To Capital for Month

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Rapley and their small granddaughter, Mary, have returned to Washington from Kennebunk Port, Me., where they had a cottage for the summer. They will spend the month of October as the guests of Mrs. Rapley's sister, Mrs. Charles A. McKenney, at her home, 1523 Rhode Island avenue, before going to Miami Beach, Fla., where they have leased a house for the winter.

Mrs. Watson Hostess at Tea

Mme. Orlicz-Dreszer Is Honored by Friends in Capital.

Mme. Gustav Orlicz-Dreszer, the wife of the inspector general of the army of Poland, was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Dorothy DeMuth Watson entertained at tea yesterday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock in her home on Kennedy place.

Among those assisting Mrs. Watson were Mme. Sokolowska, wife of the Counselor of the Polish Embassy; Mrs. Frank H. Clark, wife of Rear Admiral Clark; Mme. Emmanuel Dimitriu, wife of the Financial Secretary of the Rumanian Embassy; Mrs. Earl H. Packer, Mrs. Mattie Wyant Porter and Mrs. Edgar C. Snyder, mother of the hostess.

Among those invited to bid "bon voyage" to Mme. Dreszer were the Ambassador of Poland, Mr. Stanislaw Patek; members of the embassy staff; the Minister of China and Mme. Sze, the Minister of Albania, Mr. Faik Konitza; the Minister of Guatemala and Mme. Recinos, the Chief of Staff of the Army, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and many former friends of Mme. Dreszer in the musical circles of Washington, where she is a great favorite.

Standley Off Soon For London Parley

The Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral William H. Standley, and Mrs. Standley will sail Wednesday aboard the Manhattan for England, where he will be a delegate to the London Naval Conference.

Also sailing aboard the Manhattan to attend the conference will be Mr. Norman H. Davis, United States Ambassador at Large.

'Viennese Samaritan,' Friend of Notables, Now Manages Fish Market in Washington

Linguist Carries on Business Through Mate's Illness, Death

At 13 Mrs. Anna Lorbeerbaum Gained Fame When War Broke Out by Returning Foreigners Stranded in Austrian Capital to Native Lands.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

WHEN SHE was 17 and living in Vienna she spoke Spanish, Arabic, English, French, Italian and German. Now that she is in her early thirties and living in Washington, she speaks only "fish."

"That's all I have time for here," said the Capital's only woman manager of a fish market, Mrs. Anna Lorbeerbaum Lansburgh, yesterday. "I make so much fish talk now I think even the fish understand me."

She smiled widely. Two strapping black boys, helpers in the market, broke into cackling laughter. Mrs. Lansburgh motioned them into the dank, cement-floored salesroom so her caller could squeeze into the neat cubby-hole of an office.

"You want to hear my story? All right. It is a strange story, like something out of a book." Mrs. Lansburgh settled herself in a straight, business-like chair. Her opulent, Old World type of beauty glowed amid the commonplace surroundings.

Shows Frayed Clippings.

"When I came to America I never once thought—but wait, I will show you who I used to be." She delved into a battered suitcase and brought up a sheaf of frayed clippings and yellowed documents. "There, now you can see," and her round, brown eyes grew bright with memories.

The clippings, culled from newspapers of five, eight, even ten years ago, hailed Mrs. Lansburgh as "the Viennese Samaritan" and told of her magnificent work in returning war-stranded foreigners in the Austrian capital to their native lands; of her volunteer nurse work among refugees; of her success in finding new homes for those who were withering in Austria's economic desert.

Those things were accomplished by Anna Lorbeerbaum at an age when most girls are busy learning the significance of the Magna Charta and what bounds China on the north. She was 13 when war was declared. A few days after the outbreak of hostilities Vienna learned that this "wonder girl" had taken charge of foreigners stranded in the city.

Hobnobbed With Notables.

She has documents praising her work from virtually every government in the world. By the time she was 17 she had talked with ambassadors, ministers and governors.

"Now I talk only with the masters of fishing boats," she said. "Business is good. I have six boats fishing for me. They go far out in the ocean. They bring me sea lambs and other fish never known here before I came to the market. But it is a hard life for a woman."

She first entered the "stall," one of a number of fish markets in a low brick building along the Water street wharves, two years ago when her husband, H. B. Lansburgh, became seriously ill.

"At first the stall was closed," Mrs. Lansburgh explained. "My husband was in the hospital a long time. Every day I went to see him. One day on the way to the hospital there was an accident. I was crippled in the leg. Finally the doctor said I, too, must go to the hospital. On that same day the market master said our space in the market would be sold if we did not open it up again. So I called the doctor and told him I could not go to the hospital because I must go to the fish market."

Hobbled About on Crutches.

And to the fish market she went, hobbling about first with crutches, then with a cane. Eventually her injuries healed. After her husband's death last year she stayed on as manager of the Lansburgh Sea Food Co.

"It was hard for me because I did not have the fish background," she smiled. "At first some of the men tried to—what do you say—put something over on me. One day they brought me a load of frozen fish. I did not know they were frozen. But I looked at them and decided someth : was wrong. I said, 'Oh, I don't believe I want those fish. I think they have a bad cold.'"

Another time when she was expecting some extra fine fish for a luncheon to be given in honor of the President of Panama, her truck was ordered to Baltimore by a practical joker.

"But it was no joke to me," said Mrs. Lansburgh. "The President of Panama didn't get to eat fish until dinner time."

Her Nerve Routed Bandit.

Then one morning about 2 o'clock a stick-up man entered the little market on Water street. Mrs. Lansburgh and her boy helpers were getting ready for the Friday rush. When the suspicious-looking intruder came into the office she managed to lock the cash register and throw the key under her desk before he noticed what was going on. After explaining to him she could not open the register she went calmly about her work while the bandit's gun made a cold dent in her ribs.

"Finally he said to me: 'Lady, you got so much nerve I can not fill you full of lead.' He went away. But after that I did not go to the market until later in the morning. The boys look after things until I get there. They are good boys. My mother makes soup for them and brings it to the market every day. That is better for them. They used to eat things that were not good for them. Now I look after them. They work hard for me and so I look after them."

Mrs. Lansburgh works hard too. Every morning she is in the stall on Water street by 6 o'clock. On Fridays she arrives about 2:30 a. m. She stays up all night on Thursdays, telephoning and taking orders from wholesale firms.

"Yes, it is a hard life," she said. "How long I will be here I do not know. But some day I will leave here. I will go back to finding homes for people who now have no homes. I will arrange for countries who need mechanics to send for them from countries who have too many. I will arrange for farmers to find lands where farmers are needed.

"Yes, I have big plans, many plans. I will not always be in the fish market. But it is nice here. The fish smell I do not mind. Here, taste these cooked shrimp. No, I never get tired eating fish. The longer I stay here the better they taste."

And Anna Lorbeerbaum Lansburgh, born in the Holy Land, a descendant of one of the 12 tribes that sprang from Abraham, munched contentedly on a pink-veined shrimp in her fish market on Washington's Water street.

Once Mrs. Anna Lorbeerbaum Lansburgh had time and opportunity to mingle with ambassadors, ministers, governors. Now her days are spent in bargaining with the buyers and sellers of fish. She is the Capital's only woman manager of a fish market.

Saddened at Changing Coat, Ermine Dies

So depressed was Herman, the ermine at the Bronx zoo, over the prospect of changing his coat from brown to white before the public gaze, that he up and died the other day, just as the semiannual transformation was about to begin.

In the spring Herman's coat changed from white to brown. In the autumn it did just the opposite—or would have if he hadn't died. If it wasn't suicide on Herman's part it was sheer will not to live, according to Dr. W. Reid Blair, director of the zoo.

Japanese Women Awakening To Opportunities in Business

(This is the fourth of a series of articles in which foreign bureaus of the Associated Press describe the status of feminism in many lands.)

TOKYO, Oct. 4 (AP).—Japanese women are emerging from their spic and span houses of wood and paper, and today they see more distant horizons in the fields of commerce and industry.

They have jobs. The traditional restrictions on their social lives are loosening up to a marked extent. In this mighty little empire, where formerly all marriages were "arranged" by parents, there now are an increasing number of marriages in which love does all the arranging.

But in such matters as concern the feminism of other lands the little women of Japan are far behind, and seemingly make no progress.

The movement to obtain the vote for women has been suspended—forgotten in the great surge of nationalistic emotion which has swept the empire. Since the conquest of Manchuria three years ago Japan has been too busy to get excited about women's rights.

The change in the mind of Genji Matsuda, an astute politician, who is minister of education, illustrated the setback suffered by the suffrage movement. He is a leader of the Minseito, the more liberal of the two great political parties, and up to 1931 was one of the warmest supporters of a movement to grant a modified suffrage to women. But a change has come over the nation, Matsuda recently said:

"Japanese women should stay at home and look after domestic affairs. It is out of the question to give them the vote. Women are simply hideous these days. They get their hair bobbed, and many even bleach it and look like foreigners."

But Matsuda's reproving words do not stop the hair bobbing, and standards of dress, beauty, taste and mental attitudes are changing inexorably. Deep social and economic forces are driving toward emancipation.

Nearly a million women have left their secluded homes to work in textile mills, the output of which is one of the most disturbing commercial factors in the world today. Their wage is small, but it buys a new freedom.

Half a million more women are in other forms of industry. They are street car and bus conductors, "dime-a-dance" girls, saleswomen and typists. At Nagasaki they coal the ships, and in the country they work in the rice fields.

PILLAR TO POST

Rustic Atmosphere at the "Old Barn" Recalls Former Era.

THE TACIT admission that perhaps grandfather is right about "the good old days" was given by the sophisticated crowd who reveled in the rustic atmosphere of Brooke John's "Old Barn" the other evening. Most of the post-debutantes and the young married set who attended Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner's party are not more than two generations removed from the farm and its simple pleasures. Beneath their gayety and smart quips there seemed to be a wistful yearning for the good times that grandmother and grandmother had—the logical explanation for the popularity of the Old Barn.

• • • •

It is lofty as such structures on a farm usually are, built of field stone and rough-hewn timber, left quite unfinished inside. From the high peaked ceiling hang lighting fixtures made of huge wagon wheels that were part of carts drawn by oxen in "the good old days." Musicians were dressed in blue denim overalls with red handkerchiefs about their necks. Upon a platform designed to hold farm implements was an old sleigh, found upon the farm when Brooke Johns went there to live, and attached to it was a life-sized replica of a horse.

• • • •

Three greedy young blades, who are out to squeeze all the enjoyment there is to be had from the present, tried to capture the fun of the past also by climbing into the loft that held the sleigh. There, they pretended with much gusto, to be sleigh-riding. They whipped furiously the papier-mache horse. One yanked his tail and out it came in his hand to the great amusement of those below. They rollicked dangerously over the heads of the crowd until Brooke Johns ordered them down.

• • • •

Another merry group shinned up the sides of the barn on ladders until they reached a vantage point to watch the milling crowd, including Mary Lib MacArthur, her brother Douglas, and her new sister-in-law, the former "Wah-Wee" Barkley, daughter of the Senator from Kentucky. The Brandt Clarks were among a number of newly wed couples, the brides being debutantes of recent years. Betsy Dern and her brother, James, represented the Cabinet circle, and among others seen were Margaret Davidge, Lucille Edwards, Frida Fraser, Ruth Patton, Isabel Perry, Dorothy Fowler, Katherine Smith, Lucille Elliott, Caroline Aitheson, Anita Miles, Helen Walker, Kitty Pearson and scads of good-looking young men.

Color Choice Has Important Beauty Effect

By Frances Mangum.

THE READING of palms and tea leaves is an old, old practice, but "color reading" is new and different. It touches neither your past nor future but has to do with singling out colors that vibrate harmoniously to your personality.

Miss Sally Purgason visiting representative of Kathleen Mary Quinlan, beauty stylist, has been trained by Miss Quinlan herself in this new art. Armed with her knowledge of natural skin tones and dozens of strips of colored chiffons, the young make-up artist is not only able to tell you which colors you should wear, but even explains the reason why.

"The majority of women choose the colors they consider most complimentary to their hair and eyes," said Miss Purgason. "They're off on the wrong foot to begin with. It is the skin tone that matters!

For Sallow Skins.

"A woman with a sallow skin must avoid colors with yellowish tinges. For instance certain greens, chartreuse shades particularly, bring out the yellow skin tones. A darker green would not. Nor the majority of browns and blues."

"There are colors that literally belong to a woman," she explained. "These vibrate in harmony with her personality. There is a deep psychological reaction. Her thoughts, her feelings and her actions are influenced. She is more herself and more charming than she would be in someone else's colors."

Subtle Influence.

The subtle influence of color, its specific value and virtue is borne out by the feeling of affinity that exists between a person and her colors. In most instances, Miss Puurgason said, after she reads a woman's colors, her customer will confess that these have always been her favorites.

Anyone can wear a combination of black and white, she declared. White alone is one of the best bets for all types. To one woman who insisted white made her look decidedly "muddy," Miss Purgason explained that unless she used rouge and lipstick when she wore it, undoubtedly it would bring out her sallowness. But with a touch of color, white would suit her very well indeed.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

I'M BEGINNING to think my well-meant defense of woman's frailties and frivolities—voiced some days ago in answer to "Eager Lover's" plaint that in 28 years he has never met the sober, industrious, square-shooting, intellectually inclined girl of his dreams—was wholly unnecessary.

• • • •

It appears, indeed, from an inspection of my accumulating correspondence that there are in this modern world a number of studious, diligent, capable, talented, charming, articulate young women, any one of whom readily corresponds to "Eager Lover's" description of his alleged nonexistent ideal woman.

• • • •

And because I think "Eager Lover" should have this affirmation, to fortify his patience and justify his waiting, to challenge him to a renewed enthusiasm in his search, I herewith submit a few of the girls' own statements. M. H.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: To answer "Eager Lover's" letter, published Septmber 27: There are girls who neither drink nor smoke and I am one of them. I also make my own clothes, cook, and do housework. I play the piano, draw a trifle, and read an average of about six books a week—good ones, too. I believe in fair play, and that honesty is the best policy. I hate bridge and loathe any form of gambling. JEAN W.

One for Matchmaker.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: This is in reply to "Eager Lover's" letter published in last Thursday's Post. Since coming to this city I have met a young lady who very nearly measures up to the one this young man is seeking. She does not care for drinks, not even beer or coffee, does not smoke nor gamble and does not dance, although she would like to learn.

• • • •

She enjoys movies, social diversions, reading and music. She is simple, natural, truthful, has lots of common sense and is not very beautiful. A rather good sport, not such an interesting conversationalist, but could love the right man, and darn all the socks. How can these two meet?

MATCHMAKER.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I want to comment on the letter signed "Eager Lover" in Thursday's Post. I believe I could have written that same letter, with the exception of a few changes. I would like for "Eager Lover" to know that there are some girls in the world who do not drink, smoke nor play bridge.

I am 36—wish I were 28—but, whereas "Eager Lover" says he has never had any girl friends, I have had many boy friends, yet none that corresponded to my ideal.

• • • •

What I seek in man is similar to what "Eager" seeks in woman, but, alas and alack, where shall we find that?

I neither drink, smoke nor play bridge, am interested in church work, enjoy all the better things of life. Good literature, music and poetry are often to me a benediction when all else fails.

I'd rather tell the truth than prove a lie. I could be content with a 50-50 deal, and loyalty in love is, to me, next to godliness.

• • • •

To such a man as "Eager" I could dedicate my life and love till death. I'm no gold digger. All my life I've had to work hard and I know the value of a dollar.

Miss Haworth, please pardon me copying so many phrases from "Eager's" letter, but I would like for him to know that there is at least one woman who could meet him on common ground were it not for the difference in ages.

Anyway, I hope he finds the "girl of his dreams," as I hope, some day, to find my "dream man."

TRUE BLUE.

Some Personal Mail.

DEAR EAGER LOVER: Furthermore, I have some mail personally addressed to you. If you will give me your address, I shall be glad to forward it. M. H.

Head to Foot, Fashion Calls For Velveteen

Cordvel, a combination of corduroy and velveteen, has been used for this green fall suit. The green silk blouse has gold metallic stripes.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (AP).—Velveteen is one of fashion's pet fabrics this fall.

It is used for hats, collars and cuffs, dress trimmings, coats, jackets, daytime frocks, evening gowns, gloves, handbags and shoes, so the smartly groomed woman, if she choeses, can be outfitted in velveteen from crown to toe.

Hats that were inspired by Alpine climbers, harlequin peaks, wider brims, hinting of Spain, Russian-influenced headgear, and many styles of soft-crown sportswear were seen developed in velveteen.

Daytime frocks in velveteen are decidedly smart. Some one-piece dresses are fashioned of velveteen in solid colors. Others are in plaids and checks.

Velveteen is a favored fabric for two-piece dresses, but generally the skirt is of wool and the jacket of velveteen.

One very popular version is a skirt of novelty weave wool, plaid or check, combined with a velveteen jacket in black, dark green, or in the color highlight in the skirt. Frequently the lapels are faced with the skirt material and sometimes an accompanying scarf is made of it.

Prominently displayed in a major department store was a dinner frock of velveteen in a new live blue for evening.

Velveteen scored heavily in the accessory field. The new triangle scarfs are developed in velveteen. There are numerous collar and cuff sets in velveteen, and it is used in vests and vestees. Many wool frocks are trimmed in velveteen.

Sororities at G. W. U. Open Rushing Sunday

Choice of New Members Is No Simple Matter; Competition Often Is Keen to Get Some Particularly Desirable Girl.

THE ANNUAL scramble for sorority material known as rushing begins at George Washington University Sunday.

But ever since the first day of registration the university grounds have been charged with the electricity caused by the positive and negative currents as the old and new girls sized each other up.

Luckily for her self-confidence, the newcomer this fall didn't know that, as she went down the registration line, and Mrs. Vinnie G. Barrows, director of women's personnel guidance, looked over her card, she herself was being looked over by Miss Mary Louise Yauch, president of Panhellenic, who sat by Mrs. Barrows.

If she survived this scrutiny she was invited to the Panhellenic tea last Sunday and met the sisters of the 13 National sororities on the campus. And if they were favorably impressed she was invited to "Dutch lunches," by the sorority girls all during this week of free association. If she has passed through this successfully, she will be formally rushed for the ten days following Sunday.

Rushing Schedule.

Making the most of the $75 entertainment budget, each sorority will then entertain the rushes at little informal gatherings, at a formal dance to which men are invited, and to the final party on the tenth night.

This party is the climax of the season. For every sorority entertains that night, and the freshman has to take her choice from among those to which she is invited. In making her choice she thus tacitly announces her choice of a sorority. And unless some unusual circumstance arises she is sure of a bid to the sorority whose invitation she accepts.

On Friday, October 18, the rushing season will be over, and all the chapters will hold solemn pledging ceremonies. Their faces lighted with joy at the thought of the sisterly harmony prevailing in the Greek world they are entering, their little gold pins proudly gleaming above the colored ribbons of the chosen sorority, the pledges will write home that they are among the socially elect.

No Simple Matter.

All of which sounds very orderly and simple. But it isn't. The diplomacy, high finance and high pressure salesmanship known to every member of the Greek world on every college campus, and the complex organization back of every local chapter make the workings of big business look simple and easy by comparison.

For months the alumnae back in the home towns all over the country have been writing the rush captains in their old sorority chapters to be sure and look up Mary Brown, who, because of her beauty, talent, influential father, roadster that will come in handy for rushing, her fur coat that the sisters can borrow, or "just because she is an all-round girl who will work hard for the chapter," should be pledged.

These letters are catalogued, checked, and, while the rushing season is on, the chapters hold almost daily meetings when they discuss each prospect and vote on her. One black ball disqualifies a girl for membership.

THE NEW Jelleff's
1216-1220 F STREET

Shopping with Lorgnette

WILL you browse about Washington's smart store, Jelleff's to you? Style plus value beckons me and all the whimsies of Dame Fashion. Safe bets to place your money on and just where to find them.

There Ought to Be a Law—Against That Downward Appraising Glance

Well, there isn't—so what to do about it. I'll tell you. Gotham has perfected a new stocking free from rings and shadows. Of course, you know the Danger-line-Gold Stripe—even a designing run, just hasn't a chance, beyond the Gold Stripe. At a dollar, it's a grand buy and do purchase a "Spare"—I mean at least two of one color. Remember—Gotham Gold Stripe, $1.00 a pair; 3 pairs, $2.85.

The Vagabond Toppie Takes A Bow!

Do page the Vagabond Toppie—and keep a care for dangerous curves ahead. A tricky little garment made of Satin Lastex. A Pull-on without boning. The new, modified Bras and even the garters are made of Lastex. Just an old Smoothie, I would call this garment. Plenty of support and a real seamless back. You can't miss with "Vagabond Toppie." It tops them all. Exclusive with Jelleff's $8.50 Corset Nook.

LOST:—

My heart and a couple of beats when I gazed at the last word in Smart frocks. It's the thing this season to own at least one frock with a dash of fur. The new bib neckline which is detachable, fashioned of white Galyak on dull, brown Chardon crepe. One of the new Romneys exclusive with Jelleff's—I gazed at myself in the mirror—and looked at my date calendar. The detail of this frock is something to reckon with. Misses Gown Salon—$39.75 also in black. Dress will be modeled.—2nd Floor Salon.

A Feather in Your Cap

Just another feather in my cap when I found my heart's desire in the millinery salon. Now here's a chapeau that has everything, fashioned in dark brown velour with a perky, white quill. Just enough brim to flatter Miladi. I had a grand time looking thru this department . . . also in black. Price, $10.00.

There's Gold In Them Thar Hills!

Also, in the smart frock I found. Gold Lame in Flame color forms the jacket; which may be worn separately. The dinner gown is of flattering black velvet—based on simplicity. An ideal frock for the social season ahead—my dears! This is a real style tip at $19.75—Misses.—4th Floor.

Around the clock with Jelleff's. I could rave on and on, but my time is up. Black Tulip is the new shade this season. I'll be with you again, with a lot of news for the bride-to-be.

Hat Problem Is Solved With Little Trouble

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THE MORE extreme hats grow, the more alarmed do women become. There are still thousands who view the beret suspiciously, as though its flat pancake tilt was certainly not designed for any good purpose. Equally as many see these high - crowned square-brimmed models just now emerging in the most up-to-date millinery departments as the lowest form of hattery.

But so stern and omnipresent are hat styles that even those who rebel against them must wear them—or go without. Unless they chance upon a little Connecticut avenue shop where hats are sold, remodeled and made. Here it is possible to choose one's own style, or modify a present style to suit the individual.

Often it happens that a sport suit is an off shade which is impossible to match. Or so it seems. But this shop makes a specialty of matching unusual colors.

If you furnish the material for your hat the price is very small. Otherwise, if the style is simple the hat may cost as much as $5. The more complex the pattern the more expensive the hat.

Placques Added to Stock.

An F street shop, which has perfume, games, jewelry, bags, knick-knacks, cards, stationery, china and glassware, and hundreds of other things, has enlarged its present stock with some classically lovely sculptured placques. These are reproductions of rare and beautiful examples of European art covering a period of two centuries.

The subjects have been made available to the art lovers of America for the first time through the perfection of a unique method for making replicas of originals in exact and minute detail.

They are extremely decorative and tasteful placques to grace the walls of the library mantel, to hang on either side of a mantel piece, or over the bookcase.

New Perfume Arrives.

"Penthouse" is the attractive and appropriate name for a new perfume set which recently arrived in this country from gay Paree. It includes four small bottles arranged in uneven heights to look in silhouette like modern skyscrapers.

Each bottle has a different scent ranging from light to heavy. The lightest one might be the early morning favorite, the next for noon, the following two for afternoon and evening.

Having a change of perfumes in this manner is a real luxury and one that doesn't cost half as much as you'd guess to judge from the distinguished gentleman who makes them.

Hair Needs Good Brush.

Hairbrushes—the gray bristle, imported variety—are reduced this week from $2.50 to $1.50.

It is generally taken for granted that a good brushing will ward off most hair evils, but so few people seem to realize that half the good brushing does depends on the brush itself. If the bristles are so soft they merely sweep the hair, the dirt is not brushed off nor the scalp stimulated. If, however, the bristles are firm and penetrate down to the scalp, the brushing quickens the flow of the blood and truly benefits the hair.

These brushes on sale now have the real bristles that do all that bristles should.

Dusting Powder Reduced.

Dusting powder, too, is reduced. A certain kind with a bouquet fragrance ordinarily sells for $1.65 but now costs only 79 cents.

This special price is only good until tomorrow, so if you need a fine quality of such powder don't let this opportunity pass you by.

Handy Library.

A miniature library consists of six little books. As least they certainly look like books. When they open up, however, they prove to be small boxes filled with useful contents.

One of them, as the name inscribed on the back indicates, holds gummed reinforcements. Another, gummed labels, the other paper clips, transparent mending tape, thumb tacks, and the last, index tabs.

Covered Hangers Best.

Velvet hangers especially priced now at 34 cents for six come in a variety of colors. One customer inquired what advantage such hangers had over any other kind and seemed more than a little surprised—and pleased—when she was informed how much better covered hangers held clothes and kept them from slipping to the floor. Also they are guaranteed against soiling dresses as some metal hangers do.

Handy Sewing Baskets.

Novelty wicker sewing baskets are large and roomy and very light to carry around. Those displayed now in the notions department of a downtown store have the added attraction of thread pins. These are wicker stalks which extend upward from the rim of the basket. Spools of thread fit over them very nicely.

Pattern No. 638.

WHEN a dress is obviously suitable for many daytime occasions, its frequent use is a foregone conclusion. That is why it should be made of a good material—one that will wear well. The design shown, just such a dress, would be good developed in one of the new lightweight woolens.

Shaped side panels in the skirt end in pleats and help to "thin down the figure." The pretty jabot collar may fall gracefully over the vest or be caught high at the throat in a more severe manner.

The pattern is cut in sizes 34 to 48. Size 40 requires 3⅛ yards of 54-inch material for the frock and ¾ yard of 39-inch material for the vest, jabot and sleeve facing.

IF OCTOBER 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m. and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m., from 12:45 to 2:45 p. m. and from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m.

On this October 5 you may be called into a business conference during which a request for your opinion might be made. Do not allow personal likes or dislikes to influence you, but be absolutely unbiased. If you should allow personality or friendship to sway your judgment it is probable that later on it will prove to be a big mistake. Avoid switching any business transactions from a tried and satisfactory source of supply to one that in the long run might prove experimentally and thoroughly unsatisfactory.

This might prove a very bad month in which to make radical changes, where there is the slightest danger of their turning out costly experiments in so far as dollars and cents are concerned. Accord others the same consideration you would expect to have shown you, if you wish to avoid complications on this date.

Social contacts should only be made with those you are willing to regard as your social equals and with whom you are ready to establish a permanent friendship, otherwise embarrassing situations might arise. Your financial situation should be strengthened before the day is over, by your being the recipient of some money, or receiving the assurance of some being given to you. Married and engaged couples, as well as those seeking the matrimonial path, should watch their tempers carefully on this date; any sudden outburst of ill humor may occasion many hours of regret.

If a woman and October 5 is your natal day, you will make a great mistake if you, through thoughtlessness, fail to show the appreciation you really feel for some kindly deeds that may be done by friends or relatives. People can not always guess what is in your mind or heart, so it will pay to express your feelings in enthusiastic words. As you should make an ideal housewife, mother and a congenial companion for the right type of a man, married life might be much better for you than a business career. If, however, you find it advisable to work, writing, interior decorating, or tea-room management should offer you excellent opportunities to make money.

The child born on October 5, as a rule when it reaches school age surprises parents and teachers alike by its readiness to grasp rather complicated subjects.

If a man and October 5 is your birthday, your mental alertness and ability to foresee what should or should not be done in entangled situations ought to make you eagerly sought after for advice. This gift should enable you to make a great deal of money. As an efficiency expert, a business consultant, or lawyer you should gain fame.

Boiled Heart Makes Tasty Family Dish

By Susan Mills.

If you've had steak three times this week and lamb twice, and you're hesitating between veal or pork, try a meat dish that is out of the ordinary.

Beef heart and liver lend themselves to the preparation of new and interesting dishes. Try these recipes on the family.

Boiled Heart With Raisins and Rice.

1 heart
6 cups water
¾ cup rice
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup raisins
½ cup walnuts
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon pepper.

Wash heart, remove tubes and gristle, cover with boiling water, boil ten minutes, then simmer on top of stove for about three hours or until tender. Add washed rice, salt and pepper, and cook 30 minutes. Drain liquor from rice, add raisins (seeded), nuts cut in pieces, lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste, and bring to boiling point. Place heart in center of platter, surround with cooked rice, pour the nuts and raisins over the heart and garnish with parsley.

Liver and Olives.

½ cup flour
2 tablespoons bacon fat
10 large green olives
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
Paprika
2 cups water
2 tablespoons tomato catsup
Slices of toast as needed

Scald the liver, removing any gristle or skin. Roll liver in the flour and salt and fry in bacon fat until light brown. Remove from pan and sprinkle two tablespoons of the salted flour in the fat, stirring until smooth. Add one cup of water, pepper and paprika, stirring to make a smooth gravy. Chop the liver and olives and cook gently in another cup of water for ten minutes, adding the gravy and catsup a few minutes before serving on toast.

King Likes to Try His Hand at Cooking

London, Oct. 4 (Spl.).—King George sometimes does a little cooking when he gets the chance, says Phillip Inman, managing governor of Charing Cross Hospital in his book, "Oil and Wine."

The king, he writes, was walking along the corridor to one of the wards when he passed the door of the ward kitchen. He asked permission to go inside. When the door was opened the king looked over the room and said, "I'm very interested in kitchens. I somtimes do a little cooking myself—that is, when I'm allowed."

THE MAN WITHOUT NERVES

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Sam Cresson, living in the London suburb of Sandyways, has committed suicide; Sir Julian Bott, famous financier, has been found dead in the vicinity. Intimately concerned with the mysteries is Mr. Huitt, Cresson's banker and dinner guest at Lord Milbank's the night that Sir Julian also dined there and later died. Young Anthony Sarson is involved since he was known to have been near the scene of the later crime; actually, he stopped in the home of a mysterious Mme. de Sayal, but she pledged him to secrecy regarding that visit. A chap named Tyssen, who is collecting material for a novel, stops the London train to tell. Anthony's father, Timothy Sarson, that the police have forbidden the son to leave the vicinity.

"MR. TIMOTHY SARSON to see Mr. Huitt. Urgent." The bank manager glanced at the scrawl on the slip of paper which had just been brought in and sighed. It was 3 o'clock on that very busy afternoon when every bank in London was concerning itself with the affairs of the Windsor Trust and the Julian Bott companies, and Mr. Huitt had also affairs of his own to attend to.

"You can show Mr. Sarson in at once," he directed.

Mr. Timothy Sarson followed close upon his announcement. The change in him during the last few days was pathetic. A healthy upstanding man, 58 or 59 years old, he had been almost a first-class athlete in his youth, was still a low handicap golfer, a highly esteemed shot and, when he chose to play, Mr. Huitt's equal at tennis. At the moment, however, he looked like a broken-down man. Not only were there new lines of distress in his fresh-complexioned face, but he had a dazed appearance, as though he had just received some utterly incomprehensible shock.

"Sit down, Sarson," the bank manager invited. "Now tell me all about this wild telephoning. You have been down home, of course?"

Story Retold.

"It's all quite true," Timothy Sarson confided. "They've actually warned Anthony not to leave the neighborhood. It's that fellow Penny's doing."

"Do you know what sort of evidence they have?" Mr. Huitt inquired. "It all sounds to me quite absurd."

Timothy Sarson began his story drearily.

"They seem to have found out, by nosing around, that Anthony used to go mooning up at night sometimes, outside that woman Mme. de Sayal's grounds, but no one has actually seen him with her, and he assures me that up till the last 48 hours he has never exchanged more than a sentence with her. The trouble of it is that he stayed out all that wretched night, came back in his dress clothes at 1 o'clock in the broad sunlight and told some asinine story about having fallen from a gate and having been unconscious for several hours."

"I've heard about that," Mr. Huitt murmured, "It did seem a little improbable."

"No one in his senses would believe such a thing," Sarson went on dejectedly. "Even the little doctor, who is a personal friend, declared that Tony's story as to how he came by his concussion is almost impossible. Then there's something else about a revolver which they haven't mentioned, but which Anthony told me about, which is a perfectly rotten business."

Mistake Made.

"Have you seen Anthony yourself?"

"I took Temperly down by the 11:30. I left him there with Anthony."

"Well, then, there's nothing more to be done for the present," Huitt declared decisively. "You've done the only thing that could be done—put Anthony into the hands of a first-class lawyer. So long as he tells him the truth, he ought to get out of it all right. If you're going back by the usual train, we might have a little further talk on the way down."

"Yes, I suppose I shall go home," Timothy Sarson groaned. "There's nothing more I can do up here. * * * By the by, Huitt, I didn't come in on banking business, but your folks outside are not over smart today. You will have to get after them."

"What is wrong?" the bank manager asked, with a slight contraction of the lips.

"I saw Mr. Plumer standing at his desk as I came in, and I asked him to tell me the amount of my balance. He came back in a few moments and told me—where's that piece of paper?"—Mr. Sarson went on feeling in his waistcoat pocket—"Here it is—£672 18s."

Mr. Huitt looked gravely astonished.

"That, I happen to know, is a very serious error, Mr. Sarson," he said. "I glanced at your account myself only the day before yesterday, and the size of your balance, with the bank rate at its present figure, rather appalled me."

Huitt Left.

"I knew it was quite a large one," Mr. Sarson admitted. "We have a great deal of wine coming in with sight drafts attached to the bills of lading, a situation for which my cashier always makes full provision."

Mr. Huitt rose to his feet.

"If you do not mind waiting for five minutes," he invited, "I will put this matter right at once."

Sarson, too nervous to remain for long in one position, moved restlessly about in his chair. He glanced at the clock—a very fine, dignified affair, with the name of a famous maker on the dial, a clock which was fully in keeping with its austere but seemly surroundings. Only three minutes gone. He rose to his feet and began to walk up and down the apartment.

He reached his chair, but he did not at once sit down. He found himself studying with absurd but unreasonable interest the various impedimenta upon the bank manager's desk. It was indeed a model of neatness. There was scarcely a single document or letter visible.

Picture on Desk.

Three baskets labeled "Letters for Personal Attention," "Departmental Letters" and "Letters for Consideration" were fairly well filled, and the contents of each kept tidy and in good order by heavy paperweights. Upon the spotless blotter in front of the bank manager's empty chair was one object and one object only—a photograph turned upside down and secured in its place by a further paperweight.

The idea of Mr. Huitt, whose lack of human weaknesses seemed to his neighbors to have reduced him to a complete and perfect piece of mechanism, having a photograph upon his table at all seemed ridiculous. What sort of a photograph was it? The picture of a woman? Timothy Sarson, for the first time during the day, smiled. The idea was a trifle too ridiculous. A photograph of himself? Why? In guarded personal conversation, Mr. Huitt frequently declared that he had no living relatives or close connections of any sort. Whose photograph, then, was he likely to possess?

A Strange Urge.

For 12 years he had lived his simple tabulated life, in touch all the time with the members of the Club Car and his few other neighbors in the Oasis, a perfectly attuned piece of human machinery. Of human feelings, as they are generally understood, Mr. Huitt had never given any indication.

The inclination to look at that photograph was becoming irresistible. The meanness of schoolboy days was returning to the elderly wine merchant. He deliberately listened. The only sounds to be heard inside the building were the tapping of many typewriters and a faint murmur of distant voices. Mr. Sarson yielded to that irresistible inclination. He leaned over, removed the paperweight, lifted the photograph and looked at it. . . .

He looked at it, and he looked at it again. Slowly his full red lips parted, his eyes became almost fixed in their stare. He seemed incapable of replacing it. He felt that he must go on looking. He failed to hear the door open behind him. It was the sound of Mr. Huitt's thin but, this time, portentous voice which brought him to himself.

Saloon Is Back, Leader Warns W.C.T.U.Group

Political Promises Broken, Mrs. Colvin Says as Meetings Close.

Every political promise that liquor traffic conditions would be improved after repeal has been broken, Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, of New York City, National vice president at large and New York State president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, charged in an address yesterday at the closing session of the sixtieth annual convention of the District W. C. T. U.

"We were promised that the saloon would not return," Mrs. Colvin told approximately 300 delegates in the First Congregational Church, "and yet today we have the equivalent of a saloon on every street corner."

Mrs. Colvin's speech featured a session which saw the convention give its approval to resolutions pertaining to motion picture clean-up campaigns, the radio and education.

A resolution was passed deploring the bringing of liquor advertising into the Nation's homes via the radio, and ordered a protest laid before the Federal Communications Commission.

The "united efforts of the Catholics, Protestants and Jews in promoting a more careful selection of motion picture entertainment" were praised by the District union, which pledged its hearty cooperation in censorship and public education in picture selection.

Another resolution noted "with satisfaction" that textbooks studying the effects of alcohol on the human system had been placed in schools of the District of Columbia. Parimutuel betting and any form of lottery were opposed in other measures adopted.

An address proposing the formation of motion-picture study groups was made by Mrs. N. M. Pollock, past District W. C. T. U. president, and motion picture department head of the District Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Jennie Bailey Wadleigh, president of the District union, was re-elected for the fourth term. Mrs. Ida W. Ramsey, first vice president; Mrs. B. Shanks Chaney, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Josephine Peters, recording secretary, also were re-elected. Others chosen for a first term are Mrs. Marie N. Brinley, second vice president; Mrs. Gertrude Hoage, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Williams, assistant recording secretary.

The aard-vark, African insect-eating mammal, grows to be six feet long—yet, strange as it seems, its diet is composed almost exclusively of ants and termites or "white ants." One of the strangest appearing animals of Africa, the aard-vark is well suited by nature to hunt and capture ants. It would be almost helpless if forced to seek other food.

It has a thick-set body, arched back, short neck, and long narrow head. Its tongue and front claws, however, are its chief hunting equipment. With its powerful claws, it digs into ant hills and termite nests, then with its long sticky tongue it catches its prey and sweeps them into its mouth. The aard-vark hunts by night, spending the day in its burrow.

It is hunted both by natives and animals for its meat, which is relished in spite of the fact that the flesh tastes strongly of formic acid from the ants. Although it has few teeth, the aard-vark is dangerous when at bay. It can kill a man with its powerful forelegs and long claws.

Not all tapioca ends up on the dinner table—an important part of it goes on the backs of United States postage stamps. The Government uses hundreds of thousands of pounds of tapioca starch each year to make gum for stamps. In 1931, for example, 558,980 pounds of tapioca dextrine was used by the postal department.

P.U.C. Orders New Bus Line For P Street

Two-Way Trolley Tracks at Dupont Circle Called For.

In its first major decision on rerouting of the lines of the Capital Transit Co., the Public Utilities Commission yesterday ordered substitution of bus service for street cars on P street from Dupont Circle to Wisconsin avenue.

The action was taken because of progress in construction of the new P Street Bridge over Rock Creek. The ruling enables engineers to proceed with final plans for the roadway of the bridge.

In the same order the commission decreed that the fare on the buses must be the same as that now charged on the street cars.

Cars using P street will be routed down Wisconsin avenue to M street and to the congested area by way of M street and Pennsylvania avenue. The company was ordered to lay underground conduit for street cars on Wisconsin avenue from the P street plow pit to M street.

The commission also ordered laying of a street car track around the east side of Dupont Circle to end the traffic jams that now occur by reason of the double tracks that run around the west side of the circle.

The changes may not be effected for some months. This is because of the time that must be allowed for track changes and completion of the approaches and roadway of the new P Street Bridge.

Parking Ban Urged On Nichols Avenue

Rush Hour Restriction Is Favored by Citizens.

A rush-hour ban on parking on Nichols avenue southeast, between Sheridan and Good Hope roads, was urged last night by the Washington Highlands Citizens Association.

A resolution was adopted calling on Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer to invoke the ban between 7 and 9 a. m. and 4 and 6 p. m.

W. E. Nair, D. H. Butler and H. A. Yeager were appointed delegates to the conference of Southeast Citizens' Associations.

Justice Doubts U. S. Authority On Sugar Quota

Bailey Questions U.S. Right to Fix Island Limit, Attacked in Suit.

Justice Jennings Bailey, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday indicated he had serious doubts about the distinction made between United States sugar producers and those of Hawaii in the regulations drawn up by the Department of Agriculture on the basis of the Jones-Costigan sugar-control act.

Early in the day he notified attorneys for both sides he was far from satisfied that the Government had the right to limit Hawaiian production so sharply while it maintained the even tenor of United States manufacture. He definitely said, however, that he was merely expressing his doubts and he said he had not made up his mind.

Later in the hearing Justice Bailey asked attorneys for both sides to be prepared to argue the question of whether territorial citizens were entitled to the same rights and considerations as United States residents.

Richard A. Cooke, one of Hawaii's leading producers, spent his second day on the witness stand. He continued to assert that the withdrawal of from 140,000 to 150,000 tons of Hawaiian sugar from the United States market would be disastrous to the islands' producers. Previously he had estimated it would bring about a $9,000,000 loss.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace may be called to the stand today. His testimony has been limited because of Justice Bailey's decision he would not be required to divulge information supporting his quota allotments. However, he is expected to clarify the reasons that led him, under the authority of the sugar act, to limit the production of Hawaii, and to inform Justice Bailey why he chose records of 1930, 1931 and 1932 as "representative" of Hawaiian sugar production as the basis for the quotas.

The sugar producers contend the three years chosen as "representative" are not representative because the production has been stepped up each year and the latest figure in the calculations was below normal because of bad growing conditions the previous year.

Flower Show Opening To Honor Mrs. Wallace

Mrs. Henry Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, will be the honor guest today at the opening of the annual show of the Potomac Rose Society in the New National Museum.

More than 5,000 blossoms from gardens and greenhouses in Virginia, Maryland and the District will be on display from 3 to 10 p. m. today and from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. tomorrow.

. . . and while we're talking about cigarettes

I don't suppose you were ever in a warehouse where they were storing hogsheads of tobacco. Anyway here's something interesting:

Liggett & Myers, the people who make Chesterfields, have about 4½ miles of storage warehouses where they age the tobacco.

Down South where they grow tobacco folks say...

It's no wonder so many people smoke Chesterfields. The tobaccos are mild and ripe to start with, and then they're aged the right way to make a milder, better-tasting cigarette.

PWA Funds To Maryland And Virginia

Haymarket, Smithfield, Dickerson County, Va., Get Allotments.

Secretary, Sykesville, Md., Also Awarded Grants by U. S.

Allotments totaling $3,758,500 for 20 non-Federal construction projects were announced yesterday by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes. Included were three projects in Virginia and two in Maryland. Descriptions of these follow:

Haymarket, Va.—A grant not to exceed $14,000 to the Prince William County School Board to aid in the construction of a two-story, seven-classroom and auditorium-gymnasium school building. No loan was requested. This allotment represents 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material on a project of which the total cost is $45,900. The balance will be furnished by the applicant from other revenues. Construction is estimated to require six months and give employment to 20 men.

Dickerson County, Va.—A grant not to exceed $30,000 to the county school board to aid in construction of four school buildings and additions to four existing school buildings. No loan was requested. This allotment represent 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material on a project of which the total cost is $103,200. The balance will be furnished by the applicant from other revenues. Construction is estimated to require six months and give employment to an average of 60 men.

Smithfield, Va.—A grant not to exceed $10,000 to the school board of Isle of Wight County to aid in construction of a one-story and part-basement school building at Smithfield. No loan was requested. This allotment represents 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material on a project of which the total cost is $33,660. The balance will be furnished by the applicant from other revenues. Construction is estimated to require three months and give employment to 40 men.

Secretary, Md.—A loan and grant for $21,000 for construction of a waterworks system, comprising a well supply, pumping station, elevated storage tank and distribution system, including installation of fire hydrants and appurtenances. The approximate cost of labor and material is $20,000, of which 30 per cent is a grant. The balance is a loan secured by 4 per cent general obligation bonds. Construction is estimated to require three months and give employment to 15 men.

Sykesville, Md.: A grant not to exceed $61,500 to aid in construction of alterations to three existing buildings, the installation of 250 K. V. A. generator, and other equipment in the power house, and construction of a dormitory building for the housing of 84 patients, at the Springfield State Hospital, Sykesville. No loan was requested. This allotment represents 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material on a project of which the total cost is $212,782. The balance will be furnished by the applicant from other revenues. Construction is estimated to require eight months and give employment to an average of 80 men.

In addition, it was announced increases have been made in the following previously awarded loan and grant allotments for non-Federal construction projects:

Annapolis—Loan and grant of $490,000 for sewer and sewage disposal plant construction increased to $575,000 because the work is costing more than estimated at the time the original allotment was made on October 3, 1933.

Grantsville, Md.—Loan and grant of $33,000 for a waterworks system increased to $39,000 because bids received show that the project will cost more than estimated at the time the allotment was made.

Participants in the four divisions of the pageant will represent some of the oldest families in the State, as well as historical and patriotic societies, clubs, business interests and dramatic organizations.

Virginia PWA Plans Studied

Check-up on Projects Now in Abeyance Not Yet Completed.

H. A. Gray, chief PWA inspector, said yesterday, according to the Associated Press, a preliminary study of reports on 25 Virginia projects, from which PWA allotments have been withdrawn temporarily, indicated the the work was "generally satisfactory."

Gray said analysis of the reports made by PWA engineers from inspection headquarters here had not been completed, but that a tentative check had been made.

The allotments for the projects were impounded on order of Secretary Ickes after complaints that certain of the laborers had been paid at rates below the PWA minimum for skilled labor, although they were performing tasks requiring skill.

"There is nothing that would indicate a general lack of qualified work," Gray said. He pointed out that the inspection division often found instances of inferior workmanship and required contractors to re-do portions of their work, and that some of the Virginia projects were found to have minor defects. These, he said, were ordered corrected.

Virginia Collects $3,743,000 Taxes

Richmond, Oct. 4 (AP).—Nearly $4,000,000 in public utility taxes flowed into the State treasury this month, swelling the State's bank balance.

State Comptroller E. R. Combs said although the $3,743,000 received thus far was gratifying, it was not quite up to standard.

Steam railroads' taxes accounted for the bulk of the month's revenue, with the Norfolk & Western keeping up its reputation as the State's largest taxpayer by paying in $1,007,979.89.

Light and power companies paid $670,791.23, telephone companies $238,020, gas and water companies $132,124.18, express companies $26,092.99, and sleeing car companies $13,929.13.

Road Loss by Floods Million in Virginia

Richmond, Oct. 4 (AP).—Road destruction by recent floods and last winter's cold weather has cost the State more than $1,000,000 this year, the Virginia Department of Highways reported today.

Most of the flood damage was on the secondary system roads. The late summer downpours also washed away materials for repairs, the report said.

Stevens was beaten fatally in a fight August 26. Clark's brother Roy, 23 is awaiting trial in the same case.

Virginia City To Play Host To Roosevelt

Wiliamsburg Planning Details for President's Visit October 20.

William and Mary Will Confer Degree on Nation's Chief.

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.). Details of the tentative program arranged for October 20, when President Roosevelt comes to Williamsburg to attend the installation of John Stewart Bryan as president of the College of William and Mary and receive an honorary degree from the college, were announced today at administrative offices.

One of the major items of the program will be the rededication of restored Duke of Gloucester street by the President before attending the exercises. The college and the Williamsburg Restoration are collaborating with city officials in arrangements to receive President Roosevelt and Gov. George C. Peery, who also is to receive an honorary degree.

Mr Roosevelt's visit will be the first to this part of Virginia since he became President. He is familiar with the restoration project in progress here for the past six years, under the sponsorship of John D. Rockefeller, jr., having visited the city when he was Governor of New York.

The program contemplates President Roosevelt's arrival in Williamsburg before 11 a. m. His first official participation will be to head a formal procession to dedicate the Duke of Gloucester street. With a group of other guests he will ride along this historic thoroughfare from the Old Capitol, which has been reconstructed on its original foundations, to the campus. The procession will be concluded at the Wren Building, where the inauguration of Mr. Bryan and the conferring of degrees will take place in the west portico. The addresses of Mr. Bryan and President Roosevelt will be broadcast by radio.

After the ceremonies, the college will entertain at luncheon.

Baltimore Police Quiz Mrs. Dawson

Was Wed to Man She Says Kidnaped Her Son.

Baltimore, Oct. 4 (AP).—Mrs. Beatrice Dawson, who last week reported her 6-year-old son had been kidnaped, was being held at police headquarters today for investigation.

Capt. John Mintiens, chief of detectives, said he would communicate with Williamsburg (Va.) authorities to learn whether they wanted to press a bigamy charge against the woman. No charges have been placed against her so far, Mintiens said.

The detective chief said an investigation disclosed Mrs. Dawson at Williamsburg in 1932 married Stanley Palivoda, the man she claims "kidnaped" her son, John Henry Dawson, jr. She married John Dawson in 1927 at Newport News, Mintiens said.

Police still are looking for Palivoda, whom the mother charged with "kidnaping" her son while the child was out walking with Aubrey Mitchell, friend of the family.

Senator Byrd to Talk At Waynesboro Dinner

Waynesboro, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—Announcement was made today that Senator Harry F. Byrd had accepted an invitation to address a joint banquet of the Waynesboro, Staunton and Charlottesville Chembers of Commerce here on November 8.

D. T. Coiner, president of the local group, said topics will be the Shenandoah National Park and the Skyline drive, both of prime interest to the three cities represented.

Maryland Picks W.C.T.U. Head For 41st Term

Mrs. Mary Haslup Longest in Office of Any State President.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Mrs. Mary R. Haslup, Baltimore, today was reelected president of the Maryland Woman's Christian Temperance Union at its fifty-ninth annual convention here. She enters her forty-first consecutive term. She has served as president of the State organization longer than any other State president in the United States.

Other officers elected are: Vice president, Mrs. W. E. Taylor, Baltimore; corresponding secretary, Miss Bertha Tyson, Rising Sun; recording secretary, Mrs. John Showbaker, Monrovia; treasurer, Mrs. Judson Hunt, Baltimore; delegates to National convention at Cleveland in November, Mrs. L. G. Frazier, Hurlock; Mrs. Minnie Eaton, Riverdale; Miss Minnie Dougherty, Mrs. W. E. F. Taylor and Mrs. Etta Cutting, Baltimore.

Resolutions passed included: Urging members to buy dry; protesting irreverent programs over radio and movies suggestive of moral laxity; recommending establishment of candidate information bureaus for voters, benefit; deploring beer garden existence and sale of liquor to minors; favoring cooperation with three-year peace plan; urging introducing "syllabus in alcoholic education" in schools and Sunday schools; protesting commercializing the Sabbath, and urge members to work against legalized gambling and lotteries for revenue.

The convention closed today.

Buried 56 Days In Straw Stack, Duck, Hogs Live

Middletown, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.). One of the most remarkable stories ever to come to light in this section was revealed today when a duck and two hogs which had been missing from the farm of Postmaster Charles R. Holter, Middletown, since August 10 were found under a straw stack in the barnyard.

The wheat crop on the Holter farm was threshed on August 10, and prior to starting work employes on the farm drove the hogs from the barnyard in order to avoid such an occurrence. Two members of the swine herd and the duck were missed in some manner and their absence was not noted until after the threshing had been completed. Even then no thought was given as to them being buried under the straw rick.

While employes of the Holter farm were engaged in scattering straw over the barnyard today, a peculiar noise was heard emanating from the stack, and a few minutes later they were greatly surprised to see the two hogs and duck come forth, after having been imprisoned for 56 days without food or water.

It was estimated that the hogs had lost approximately 50 pounds each, but little difference was noted in the duck, which began quacking and started for the watering trough.

Virginia Democrats Praise Administration

Stafford Courthouse, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Commendation of President Roosevelt, Senator Harry F. Byrd and Representative Howard W. Smith was voted at a meeting of the Stafford County Democratic committee yesterday at Hollywood Camp, near here.

The record of President Roosevelt and the Administration was lauded for the "fearless stand" taken, and that of Senator Byrd and Representative Smith for their support of Administration policies.

Sheriff Files For Maryland Assembly Post

La Plata, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Robert V. Cooksey, sheriff of Charles County, late today filed papers as a Republican candidate for the State Senate. He takes the place of Charles C. Lancaster, who filed several weeks ago at the request of the Republican State central committee for the county.

Sheriff Cooksey is well known in southern Maryland for his fight against the "Black Shirt Gang" and other criminals. His majority at the last election was the largest in the history of Charles County. He is the proprietor of a mercantile business here.

"Sheriff Cooksey's election to the Assembly will be of the utmost benefit to southern Maryland," the central committee members said last night immediately after he filed, "for he is intimately acquainted the region."

Virginia Cyclist, 16, Badly Injured by Auto

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.). Struck by an automobile yesterday as he was riding his bicycle on a country road, Welden Woodward, 16, Stafford High School senior, was in a critical condition tonight at the Mary Washington Hospital here.

Desperadoes Elude Police Of Virginia

Clew to Mais, Legenza Proves Futile in Essex County.

Counsel Aiding Mother of Gangster May Sue for Slander.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—Police tonight were back at their starting point in the search for public enemies, Robert Mais and Walter Legenza, who had another murder charged up to their gangster records.

A clew leading to Hustle, Va., in Essex County, might have been a hot one Saturday afternoon after the doomed gangsters escaped from Richmond Jail under a murderous stream of gunfire; but it was too cold for Detective Capt. A. S. Wright and a searching squad to follow today.

Another report that the convicted murderers were blazing a trail of crime in southern West Virginia was dispelled under investigation by West Virginia State police.

Back in Richmond seeking more "leads," the police mourned the loss of their comrade, Patrolman W. A. Toot, who died with four bullet wounds in his body, and found themselves in more difficulty as M. Haley Shelton, lawyer for Mrs. Elizabeth Mais, 58, held on charges of aiding in her son's escape, announced a slander suit would be filed against Public Safety Director J. R. Sheppard for language he was alleged to have used against Shelton.

Counsel for Shelton asserted that papers in the suit for $25,000 against Sheppard would be filed shortly, based on alleged remarks about Shelton's reputation as a lawyer.

Sheppard's reply was: "I am just as proud of that suit as I was about any other suit ever filed against me."

Court authorities announced that Judge Don P. Halsey, of Lynchburg, would arrive here Wednesday to open a grand jury investigation of circumstances surrounding the spectacular jail break. The authorities hope to have Mrs. Mais testify before the special grand jury.

Funeral Service Held For Levia C. Inskeep

Romney, W. Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.). Funeral services were held today for Levia Cain Inskeep, 81, who died at the home of R. S. Kuykendall. The Rev. C. K. Poole, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, officiated. Burial was in Indian Mound Cemetery. Mr. Inskeep was the last of a pioneer family of this section. It was one of the first to settle in the vicinity of Romney, one of the oldest towns in America.

Goslin's Single in 12th Trims Cards, 3 to 2; Rowe Scales Heights

By George Kirksey.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Oct. 4 (U.P.).—Shout it from the housetops all the way from Eldorado, Ark., to Salem, N. J.—Schoolboy Rowe, the Arkansas hillbilly, and Goose Goslin, the Jersey farmer, teamed up today to lead the Detroit Tigers to a dramatic 12-inning triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals in the second game of the World Series, 3-2.

The 22-year-old Rowe, only three years away from the Ozarks, pitched with head, heart and arm today before a throng of 43,451 until old Goose Goslin, veteran of three World Series, cracked the deciding hit to center field in the twelfth inning.

Entrain for St. Louis.

Rowe's stout-hearted pitching, which from the third inning through the twelfth was almost flawless, conquered the slashing Cardinals, and evened up the series at one-game each. Both teams boarded special trains tonight for St. Louis, where they will resume play tomorrow for the next three games.

The rival pitchers in the third game tomorrow will be Paul Dean, younger brother of Dizzy, who gave the Cardinals victory in the opening game, and Tommy Bridges, the Tennessee boy with the greatest curve ball in baseball.

Rally in Ninth.

Raking Rowe for six hits in the first three innings, the Cardinals led all the way into the ninth inning today, first 1 to 0, then 2 to 0 and finally 2 to 1. Rallying back from the brink of defeat, the Tigers tied the score, 2 to 2, in the ninth.

"Peter Rabbit" Fox, Tigers' right fielder, first up in the ninth, singled sharply to right off "Wild Bill" Hallahan, who pitched superbly, until he was derricked with the score tied in the ninth. Schoolboy Rowe, who had fanned on his three previous trips to the plate, laid down a perfect sacrifice, sending Fox to second.

Walker Sent In.

Jo Jo White, a left-handed batter, was taken out and Gerald Walker, who drew a ten-day suspension without pay during the season for indifference, was sent up to bat for him. With the count two balls and one strike, he drove a clean single to center, and Fox came home with the tying run.

It was the first time since the series opened that the Tigers had been up on even terms with the Cardinals, and the crowd broke loose in a roar. They have waited 25 years to let off. The game had to be halted while newspapers were picked up off the field and order was restored.

Hallahan, the pug-nosed southpaw who was a world series hero in 1931, when he beat the Athletics twice, was taken out after pitching a magnificent game. Bill Walker, another southpaw, came in to relieve him, and pulled the Cards through this tense spot. He trapped Gerald Walker off first, and the Detroit player was run down in the base paths, with Frisch finally tagging him out. Then Bill Walker fanned Mickey Cochrane, the last strike being called, and sent the game into extra innings.

Control Gives Way.

They battled on into the twelfth, making it the longest world series game since the Giants and Washington played a 12-inning game in 1924—and then Walker's control gave way. After retiring Cochrane, Walker threw seven straight balls before getting a strike over. He walked Gehringer and threw three balls to Greenberg, who twice in early innings had fanned in the clinch, before getting over a strike on the Detroit first baseman. Another ball gave Greenberg a walk, putting two men on, one out, and bringing up Goose Goslin.

Goslin had badly misjudged a fly ball in the treacherous winds off the Detroit River in the second inning which permitted the Cards to get their first run.

Goose strode up to the plate and looked over Walker's first pitch, a ball low and outside. Walker cut loose with his second pitch, and it came streaking down the middle. Goose dug in deep in the dirt with his cleats and met the ball on the nose.

Falls in Center Field.

It took wings, and fell in center field, over the upturned heads of Frankie Frisch and Leo Durocher, and far in front of Ernie Orsatti. Nobody could have reached it with a 40-foot pole.

Gehringer, who had aided the Cards to victory in the opener with his misplays afield, came sprinting home with the winning run. Orsatti played the ball fast, and tried to make a play at the plate, but Gehringer was coming down the stretch with the plate only a few strides away, when the ball hit the turf. Bill Delancey, Cardinals' catcher, didn't even try to stop it. He headed for the dugout, knowing the game was over.

Handcuffs Opponents.

After his nervous start, Rowe, who vowed before the game that he would check the Cards, settled down and pitched nine innings of the most remarkable baseball in world series annals. After the Cards had made their two runs,

"WILD BILL" HALLAHAN.

St. Louis Interest High, With Capacity Crowd of 40,000 Seen.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4 (AP).—Baseball enthusiasm recaptured St. Louis tonight as swarming fandom tensely awaited the World Series game tomorrow between Detroit's Tigers and the Cardinals.

Throngs jammed hotel lobbies, sought tickets which were not available, talked of the Deans, Frisch, Rowe, Cochrane and prepared to turn out a capacity crowd of 40,000 for the first series game in St. Louis since 1931.

Fair weather, with not much change in temperature, is forecast for the game. Temperatures today for the most part were in the high 60's and low 70's.

Mob Waits Train.

Little panoply was planned in connection with the arrival of the contending clubs tomorrow morning after the first two games in Detroit. A howling mob of fans, however, was on hand to storm the Union Station when the Dean boys and company roll in on their special train at 7 a. m.

A parade from the station was canceled by Mayor Bernard Dickmann at the request of the Cardinal management, which desired quiet and rest for the players.

The Cardinals and Tigers will find gaily bedecked streets, but the bunting was not hung expressly for their benefit. The series edged unexpectedly the annual Veiled Prophet carnival, a civic event of some magnitude.

Capacity Level.

Standing room in the grandstand and those remote benches are the only vantage places available since the sale of reserved seats reached a capacity level two days ago.

Starting at 9 a. m. pavilion seats will be offered and taken up rather suddenly at $3.30 and the bleachers will find plenty of takers at $1.10.

Reserved seats were dealt out in sets of three at the rate of $5.50 and up per game. Scalpers' prices, now around $11, will dip or soar as the fans from the outlying sections make their presence known in the crowded hotels.

Demand Is Unmet.

The demand far exceeding the supply signalized the end of the local baseball apathy that set in as long ago as the last game of the 1931 world series here, played before an undercapacity crowd.

The Cardinals, playing before small crowds through most of last season, returned to favor in the last lap of the National League race.

Their crucial series with Cincinnati, while the Giants were staggering home dismally, turned out 37,000 last Sunday, one of the largest crowds in the history of the ball yard.

Up and down Olive street, uptown and downtown, fans are asking, "When will Dizzy pitch?" The logical answer of "Sunday" has skyrocketed the price of tickets for that day.

Play Details Show How Rowe's Slant Checked Cards.

FIRST INNING, CARDINALS—Martin lined to White on the first pitch and the crowd let loose a wild roar. Rothrock grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg. Frisch hit sharply down the third-base line for a scratch single. Owen stopping the ball but being unable to handle it. Medwick fanned on called third strike and the crowd went wild. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

FIRST INNING, TIGERS — White grounded sharply to Collins and was out at first, Collins to Hallahan, on a pretty play. Cochrane grounded to Collins, who made the putout unassisted. Gehringer grounded to Collins and was safe at first when Hallahan fumbled the first baseman's throw for an error. Greenberg grounded to Martin, and was thrown out at first on a close play. No runs, no hits, one error, one left.

SECOND INNING, CARDINALS—Collins drove a long fly to White, who made the catch in deep center field. Delancey grounded sharply to Gehringer and was safe at first when the ball glanced off the Tiger second baseman's knee into right field. It was scored as a base hit. Orsatti tripled down the third-base line, scoring Delancey. The ball rolled to the extreme corner of left field. Orsatti was shaken up sliding into third, but quickly recovered. Durocher popped to Greenberg. Hallahan lined out to Fox in short right field. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

SECOND INNING, TIGERS—Goslin bounced a hit over second base. Rogell fouled to Delancey. Owen fanned on a called third strike. Fox lifted a high foul that Delancey caught in front of the boxes behind the plate. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

THIRD INNING, CARDINALS—Martin lashed a single through the infield. Rothrock bunted to Rowe and was thrown out at first. Martin advancing to second. Frisch lifted a high fly to White and Martin was held on second. Medwick smashed a single past Rogell, scoring Martin. Medwick galloped to second on the throw in. It was the Cardinal outfielder's fifth hit of the series. Collins poked a single over Rogell's head and Medwick was thrown out trying to score, Goslin to Cochrane, on a fine play. One run, three hits, no errors, one left.

THIRD INNING, TIGERS—Rowe fanned, swinging. White grounded out, Frisch to Collins. Cochrane walked. Gehringer drove a long single over Frisch's head, sending Cochrane to third. Greenberg fanned, swinging at a high hard one and missing by a half foot. No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

FOURTH INNING, CARDINALS—Delancey flied out to Goslin. Orsatti bunted to Greenberg and was out unassisted. Durocher grounded sharply to Owen, who juggled the ball, but got his man at first on a close play. Greenberg had to stretch to catch the throw. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

FOURTH INNING, TIGERS — Goslin grounded out. Durocher to Collins, as the Cardinal shortstop made a sensational stop over second base. Hallahan got an assist as the ball had glanced off his leg. Rogell lifted a high fly that Orsatti misjudged and the Tiger shortstop reached second. It was scored as a two-base hit inasmuch as Orsatti just failed to get his hands on the ball. Owens grounded out, Frisch to Collins, as Rogell ran to third. Fox hit sharply along the left field line for a double, scoring Rogell. It was a close decision, as the ball crossed the foul line as it bounded over the bag at third base, and the Cardinals put up a big protest. Rowe fanned, swinging at a low curve. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

FIFTH INNING, TIGERS—White lined out to Frisch, who was nearly carried off his feet as he speared the ball. Cochrane walked for the second straight time. Gehringer hoisted to Rothrock in deep right field. Greenberg walked, the fourth ball being high and outside. Goslin lifted a high fly that Orsatti caught in right center. No runs, no hits, no errors, two left.

SIXTH INNING, CARDINALS—Frisch grounded out to Greenberg unassisted. Medwick lifted a high fly to White who had to come in fast for the catch as the wind carried the ball toward the infield. Collins grounded to Greenberg and was out at first, Greenberg to Rowe. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING, TIGERS — Rogell grounded to Martin who threw wildly over Collins' head, enabling the Tiger shortstop to reach second on the error. Owen bunted to Hallahan and Rogell was thrown out at third, Hallahan to Martin, as Owen reached first. It was a fielder's choice. Fox popped to Frisch. Rowe fanned for the third straight time on a called third strike. No runs, no hits, one error, one left.

SEVENTH INNING, CARDINALS—Delancey lined to Rogell, who made a sensational tumbling stab to rob the Cardinal back stop of what looked like a sure

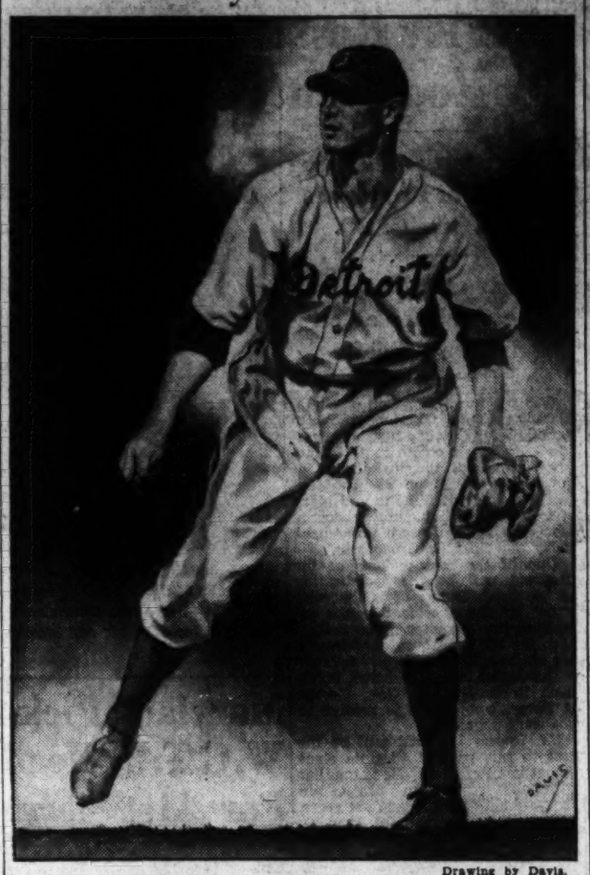
'Schoolboy' Shuffles Cards



Drawing by Davis.

LYNWOOD (SCHOOLBOY) ROWE, whose brilliant work on the mound yesterday checked the onrushing St. Louis Cardinals and gave Detroit a 12-inning, 3-to-2 victory. Rowe held St. Louis hitless from the third until the eleventh inning, fanning seven men.

Hamas' Trick Knee Cured By Knife

Collegiate Clouter Ready to Meet Art Lasky Tonight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Steve Hamas, erstwhile collegiate clouter, will climb through the ropes to oppose Art Lasky, the Minneapolis Mauler, tomorrow night freed from the handicap imposed by a trick knee.

Immediately following his winning effort against Max Schmeling in Philadelphia last February, in which the Nittany Lion was forced to maneuver with heavy bandages about his right knee, he underwent an operation which proved successful.

Injured on Grid.

Hamas' injury was the result of his football activities while at Penn State. For the Schmeling fight, he was forced to forego boxing for several days prior to the engagement when the knee suddenly collapsed. Only careful nursing and doctoring enabled him to go through with the contest.

So satisfactory has been the operation Hanna will enter the ring for tomorrow's contest in perhaps the best physical condition he ever has acheived for a professional bout.

Lasky, too, is in perfect condition—condition so perfect that even Bill Brown, of the New York State Boxing Commission, who's blast against the prefight shape of Max Baer echoed round the fistic world, has approved and agreed he is "in the pink."

The outcome of tomorrow's battle is expected to have an important outcome on the heavyweight situation. It has been planned by the Garden to be the first of a series of heavyweight bouts to select a logical contender for the next title shot at Max Baer.

Despite his recent win over trounced King Levinsky and Lee Schmeling, Hamas has been installed a 5-to-6 underdog against the youngster, who has soundly Ramage.

Baker Field Taxed.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Columbia University's football and baseball ground, Baker Field, hitherto tax exempt, has been placed on the city's tax rolls.

Tigers Joyful Over Initial Victory

Rowe Hurled Best Game, Says Cochrane; Frisch Is Confident.

DETROIT, Oct. 4 (U.P.).—"I said we'd do it, and by golly we did," Manager Mickey Cochrane shouted to a noisy and jubilant Tiger team as it bounced into a room full of frenzied fans after today's triumph.

Across the hall the St. Louis Cardinals were singing a song of blues, but the Tigers couldn't hear it for the shouting and backslapping.

"Schoolboy, you pitched the best doggone game I've ever seen," Mickey shouted through the din. "You were swinging for the fence too much, but who cares now?"

Schoolboy Rowe nonchalantly tossed off the acclaim of his mates.

Just a Game, Says Rowe.

"Aw, it was nothin' really, after I got started," he said. "I was nervous at first, but when the gang started hitting I just bore down. I'm going to pitch two more games of this here series and win 'em, too."

Manager Frankie Frisch and the defeated Cards cooled off for ten minutes before the bat boy would let anyone else in their dressing room. A handful filed in and waited for the explosion. It was all over. "I'd still love to win that series, breaks or no breaks," Frisch said. "The breaks went against us today. But that's baseball, what the hell? It makes the game."

Paul Dean will try to regain the Cardinal lead in tomorrow's game at home, and Frisch wasn't sure but what the series would end right at Sportsmans Park.

"We're not coming back here," he said, "if we can help it."

Davidson's Eleven Off For West Point Game

Davidson, N. C., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Davidson's fighting Wildcats, 26 strong, entrained here this afternoon, with West Point as their destination and a hard battle for the Army Cadets as their determination. Coaches Newton and McEver, Managers Dees and Northern, and Director of Athletics Pritchett accompanied the squad as it began its first intersectional trip in five years.

Tarheels Primed, Await Tennessee

Jackson and Barwick to Be Ready for Play.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—The Tarheel eleven today completed heavy preparations for its game with Tennessee here Saturday with a long, thorough drill. The squad appeared to be in good shape and was cheered by the announcement from Trainer Chuck Quinlen that Don Jackson, half back, and Gene Barwick, letter end, would be well and ready Saturday

Tennessee, which won its opener from Centre, 32 to 0, and which appears to have another great team, is, of course, a favorite. It is a big assignment the Tarheels face. Capt. George Barclay and the veteran line he leads must stop such brilliant backs as Vaughan, Palmer, Dorsey, Krouse, Dickens, and Paty. And Shaffer, Jackson, Dashiell, Hutchins and the other Tarheel backs must crash and elude such fine forwards as Hatley, Warmath, Clexton, Pounders.

Rowe, J. Dean Vindicate Experts

Most First Timers in Series Fail, but They Live Up to Praise.

Goslin's Toss to Plate Cuts Off Medwick by 10 Feet.

DETROIT, Oct. 4 (?).—Rowe started out today like a "schoolboy," but finished like a professor. Both the "Schoolboy" and "Dizzy" Dean are making the baseball experts swell their chests. The experts said they were good and drummed up probably the greatest fanfare that ever accompanied any two players into their first world series. Usually the famous first timers are colossal busts.

Rowe, who watched Medwick hammer out four hits in four successive times at bat yesterday, didn't take a chance on "Ducky Wucky" today, holding him to one hit in five chances. Medwick didn't get a real good ball all day.

"Goose" Goslin's throw to the plate to nip Medwick in the third inning was a masterpiece. It was so strong and accurate that it caught Medwick by 10 feet and ultimately saved the game as the run would have been the Cardinals' third.

The two teams are all square—errors, too. Each has made 5 in two games.

If the Tigers had lost, Hank Greenberg's face would have been red. The big Detroit first baseman had chance after chance to become the day's hero only to miss, striking out twice with the tying run on base. He played a sparkling defensive game to make up for it.

Every time Frankie Frisch goes to bat he sets a record. He got one hit today to run his mark to 53. Frisch also holds the record for most world series games played, now 45, and most times at bat, now 175.

Dizzy Dean sat huddled up in his Indian blanket to escape the chill breezes during the game, but before the show opened he almost created a riot by tooting the big bass horn in the band. "I can make more noise this way," Dizzy said.

Al Schacht and Joe E. Brown participated in a prize fight within a roped arena near the plate as the fans roared. Joe won by a "knockout" in the second round. Al was counted out by George Raft, who caught a few of the synthetic punches himself.

When Walker tied the score with his timely single in the ninth, the Tiger fans got their first real chance of the series to cheer. In two minutes, the playing field was littered with paper. The players stuffed as much of it as they could in their pockets to speed up play.

Bruce and Penn Avenue Tie in Soccer Game, 3-3

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—A penalty goal by Leo Hott, center half back, five minutes before the final whistle, gave Bruce High School of Westernport, 1933 champions, a 3-to-3 tie with the booters of Pennsylvania Avenue High School as both elevens opened their W. M. I. League soccer season on the Penn High athletic field.

Hampden Sydney Ends Drills for American U.

Hampden-Sydney, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—The Hampden-Sydney Varsity today completed its preparation for the American University game Saturday with a drill devoted largely to passing offense.

The squad of 27 will leave tomorrow in fine shape. The reserves played Victoria High today and won, 31 to 0.

V. M. I. Leaves Tonight To Face South Carolina

Lexington, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Headed for their second successive game with a cochampion of the Southern Conference, the V. M. I. Cadets will leave here tomorrow night for Columbia, S. C., where they will open the new Municipal Stadium with the South Carolina Gamecocks on Saturday.

Virginia Ring Solons War Promoters

Strict Rule Enforcement Is Ordered; Pop Bottles Are Barred.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—All clubs in Virginia promoting boxing or wrestling shows under sanction of the State boxing and wrestling commission are warned, in a letter sent out today by Joseph Bauers, commission secretary, that rules and regulations must be strictly observed.

The letter, decided upon by the commission at its meeting here last Monday, calls attention particularly to eight regulations and warns that they will be enforced. Heretofore, Mr. Bauers said, the commission has been inclined toward leniency on the ground that the promotion clubs were newly organized and might violate rules through ignorance rather than design.

Among rules emphasized at this time are:

That application for sanction of shows must be made at least five days before the date they are scheduled and that no announcement of a contest shall be made to the press until it is sanctioned and the contestants have been approved by the commission. Any subsequent changes and substitutions must be approved in writing by a member, the secretary or an inspector of the commission.

Must Obey Ticket Rules.

Promoters must comply strictly with regulations made to apply to tickets.

Promoters must see that rules covering the sale of beverages are enforced, including the one barring sale of bottled goods, which may be dispensed only in paper cups.

Clubs and arenas must be adequately policed.

Corners of contestants are to be kept dry and sanitary.

Purses of professional contestants are to be placed in envelopes with the contracted amount specified on the outside. They are to be paid in the presence of the commission inspector.

Amateur clubs and organizations may use only contestants registered with the Amateur Athletic Union or some other Nationally recognized amateur organization.

With the letter the commission sent out samples of contestants' and seconds' passes to be used. They are to be furnished by the promoter to the inspector who will issue them to contestants and seconds at the weighing-in time.

Two Horse Sales Slated in Virginia

First to Be Held on Oct. 26 at Walnut Hall.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—Leading Virginia race horse breeders have arranged to consign some of their holdings for a dispersal sale to be held on October 26 at the Walnut Hall estate of William du Pont, jr., near Boyce. The sales at Walnut hall were inaugurated two years ago.

Another sales scheduled for next month has been anounced by B. B. Jones, Oklahoma owner of Audley Farm, near Berryville. He expects to sell 45 brood mares, some of which cost him up to $65,000 at Lexington, Ky., a year or two ago.

Brunswick Beats Frederick.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Brunswick, winner of the Maryland State championship last year, set back Frederick in the county high school soccer league at Cadet Field in a hard-fought game, 2 to 0. At the same time Frederick girls easily won from Brunswick girls in the field ball game, 10 to 4.

Mrs. Opal Hill Victorious On 24th

Continues Sub-Par Play to Beat Mrs. Cheney in Semifinal.

Mrs. Vare, Miss Van Wie and Dorothy Traung Also Advance.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4 (AP).—Staging one of the most amazing recoveries in the history of the women's golf championship, Mrs. Opal Hill, 44-year-old Kansas City matron, today defeated Mrs. Leona Cheney, San Gabriel, Calif., on the twenty-fourth green in a thrill-packed climax to the quarter-final round of the thirty-eighth National tournament.

MRS. HILL.

Mrs. Vare, continuing her brilliant sub-par play, defeated Mrs. Burt Weil, of Cincinnati, 6 and 5; Miss Van Wie won from Frances Williams, of Allentown, Pa., 5 and 4, and Miss Traung defeated Mrs. Carl H. Donner, Short Hills, N. J., 3 and 2.

Mrs. Vare meets Miss Van Wie tomorrow while Miss Traung undertakes to continue her streak at the expense of Mrs. Hill.

With five holes to play, Mrs. Hill was 3 down. She started her sensational comeback by holing out from 40 feet for a birdie 3 at the fourteenth, won the fifteenth with a precise chip and by sinking a 7-foot putt, halved the sixteenth with a par 3, and then squared the match with another birdie at the seventeenth.

Misses Two-Footer.

Ironically, after this astonishing spectacle, Mrs. Hill suffered a putting lapse on the eighteenth and carelessly missed a 2-footer which would have given her the match. For five holes after that they traded stroke for stroke.

On the twenty-fourth hole Mrs. Cheney's iron third ducked between an iron screen fence and a shelter, leaving her less than 3 feet to swing her club. She swung and the ball struck the top of the trap and kicked back.

Faced with the necessity of practically having to hole out from the trap or at least nestle the ball close to the pin, Mrs. Cheney exploded too strongly and the ball stopped 18 feet past the cup. Mrs. Hill tapped her ball 4 feet short and when the Californian missed her first putt she conceded the hole and the match.

Shoots Round of 83.

Mrs. Hill had a round of 83, one stroke higher than Mrs. Cheney's total. By going 24 holes, they tied the long-distance record for the championship.

For the second successive day Mrs. Vare was invincible. Yesterday, against Barbara Stoddard, of New York, the 31-year-old Philadelphian kept even with women's par for the 12 holes that the match lasted and today, against Mrs. Weil, she turned the trick again, only this time in 13 holes.

Miss Van Wie was in command from the start of her match with Miss Williams. Miss Traung started out as if to make a rout of her encounter with Mrs. Donner, leading by three holes at the halfway mark. Mrs. Donner, however, steadied and cut Miss Traung's lead to two holes at the fourteenth.

Mr. McLemore Sees (?) Game From Blimp!

By Henry McLemore.

DETROIT, Oct. 4 (U.P.).—The man at the gate said it was just too so and so bad I had lost my ticket, and that he not only couldn't do anything about it but was too so and so busy to go chase around for anybody who could, and that if I wanted to see the second game of the World Series, I had better hire me a balloon, ha, ha.

That ha, ha made me sore, so I said all right I will get me a balloon, and I did.

I called the Goodyear people, who run those little pig-sausage blimps, and 30 minutes later we bounced off the airport field and started lazying along 1,000 feet above the winding River Rouge.

Henry Ford's big plant slipped by, the skyscrapers popped up out of the mist, and there, looking for all the world like a fancy cardboard toy, was Navin Field.

"Let's get a little lower," I said to Pilot Crosier. "It looks like a bunch of boys shooting marbles from this distance."

"All right," he said, "but it might be dangerous. The Detroit infield blew right up here by us yesterday and Rogell like to have got a haircut from the propellers."

Pilot Crosier pushed a couple of pedals, spun a big wheel, the fat, little blimp took a dive, my stomach took a dive, and there we were smack over Navin Field and apparently heading for home plate.

Nine hundred and fifty, 900! 850! 800!

Then, just when we were so close I could spot the freckles on Pepper Martin's neck, the blimp leveled off and came to the sweetest, nicest stop you ever saw. A couple of gentle bobbles and there we were, moving neither forward nor backward. Just hanging up over the ball park like a ship at anchor. Pilot Crosier stood up and stretched and lit a cigarette.

"Well, how do you like your seat?" he asked. "No posts in your way, are there?"

It was very, very elegant.

Much more elegant than the ball game, which to tell you the truth, seemed a bit silly. Baseball, I learned is not a game that makes sense from a bird's-eye view. In the first place, the game today, so far as we were concerned, was played in a deathly silence. Not a sound reached us. And down below a bunch of little, white midgets put on a meaningless pantomime.

We could see the players, but not the ball nor the bats. You'd see the pitcher twist and squirm which told you he was winding up, and then he'd seem to fall forward, meaning he had thrown the ball. But there was no ball. Then the batter would move and you knew he had swung his bat. But there was no bat and there was no ball. It looked like a class in shadow boxing.

And when the players would run! It was positively goofy. You'd see a fellow galloping toward first as two infielders ran toward a spot and lunge at something that didn't exist. And the outfielders were positively ridiculous. You'd be watching the white toy you knew was Goose Goslin and suddenly the little white toy would start running—or walking, as it seemed from our seats—across the grass. Suddenly he'd stop and lift his hands toward the heavens. Then, after a second, and without catching anything, he'd move back to his regular spot.

We had two callers. In the third inning Schoolboy Rowe ascended for a few seconds, but he didn't stay very long. And in the ninth, Bill Hallahan blew up alongside us on his way to the showers. He looked very pained.

Football Feud Dates Back To 1889

Middies Performed Last in Capital in 1931 Against Terps.

Record of previous Navy-Virginia games:
1889—26-6, Navy. 1904—5-0, Navy
1893—12-0, Virginia. 1905—22-0, Navy
1895—Navy, default. 1907—12-0, Navy
1897—4-0, Navy. 1909—5-0, Virginia
1898—6-6, tie. 1933—13-7, Navy
1903—6-5, Navy.

Since 1889, the football feud between the Cavaliers and Midshipmen has been raging sporadically. Navy won the opening engagement. Navy won last year's battle, but only by virtue of a Garrison finish touchdown made by Bomberger as the last quarter was giving its death rattle.

Never before has the contest between the Future Admirals and F. F. V. been held in Washington. Seldom before has either team appeared in action here.

Resumption of Classic.

Navy has not cavorted on the gridiron here since the game with Maryland in 1931. Virginia's last game in Washington was played a little more than ten years ago. The appearance of the Middies and Cavaliers here, therefore, becomes more than just another football game—it marks the resumption of a classic which may well become definitely assigned to the Capital.

Major game atmosphere will be the order of the day. Both teams will be represented by organized cheering sections and bands. Virginia expects the largest turnout of supporters ever to witness a Cavalie game away from home. Navy also appears to have an unusually large following this year, judging from the record opening game crowd last Saturday.

Has Edge in Ends.

As to the contest into which all the color and glamour eventually will simmer, it is generally conceded that Virginia can more than match Navy in end material at this stage of the season. Navy's two powerful and experienced tackles, on paper, at least, seem to have a slight edge on the Cavaliers.

Most close observers are inclined to concede Virginia an outstanding advantage in the right half back position. Capt. Johnson, 200 pounds of exceptional speed, is the type of player to make the Navy offense function properly. He was a power house against the Middies last year and engineered an unbroken ground-gaining drive of 80 yards that failed to score on Navy's 3-yard line only because of a forward pass being short by inches of a necessary first down.

The line-up:

NAVY.		VIRGINIA.
Dick Bull, 185 lbs., was not entered in game against Virginia in 1933. Dependable, but somewhat inexperienced. Excellent kicker for points after touchdown.		Johnny Leys, 170 lbs. Started against Navy last season. Completed a 40-yard pass for Virginia's score. Very fast. Good both on offense and defense.
	Right End.
Dusty Dornin, entered as sub against Virginia 1933. 170 lbs. Heady, accurate receiver, outstanding in basketball. Can call signals.		Cullen Wilkin, 175 lbs. Considered a veteran end, but did not enter against Navy last year.
	Right Tackle.
Kutch Cutter, 196 lbs. Sub in Virginia game 1933. Largest member of Navy team. Heavyweight boxer.		Ed Andrews, 186 lbs. Won the "V" last season as a first reserve.
	GUARDS. Left Guard.
Dick Burns, Navy team captain 1934. 170 lbs. Entered Virginia game as sub in 1933.		Al Seccombe, 170 lbs. A reserve full back last fall, converted into guard this season. Did not enter Navy game.
	Right Guard.
	CENTERS.
Bobby Robertshaw, 170 lbs. Sub against Virginia last year. Regular center in place of Harbold, 1934. Rather light, but very active.		Horace Hallett, 181 lbs. Sub against Navy last year. Outstanding Virginia center in group this season.
	QUARTER BACK.
Russ Borries, 172 lbs. Not in Virginia game last season due to injuries. Versatile, triple threat. Also outstanding in basketball and baseball.		Red Fryberger, 175 lbs. Sub in Navy game last year. Very fast. One of the Virginia field generals this season.
	Right Half.
Tom King, 178 lbs. Sub against Virginia last year. Average ability, but improving rapidly. Father was captain of Navy team.		Capt. Tommy Johnson, 200 lbs. Started as Q. B. against Navy last season. An All-American type of player. Heaved the pass to Johnny Leys that scored against Navy, 1933. Navy has no counterpart for this powerful type of back. Third member of family to serve as captain of Virginia football.
	FULL BACKS.
Bill Clark, 175 lbs. Started against Virginia last year. One of outstanding punters in the East in 1933. Has not hit his stride so far this season. Dependable, good ground gainer.		Spencer Berger, 185 lbs. Senior full back. Started against Navy last year. A star in Southern Conference. Powerful type, gifted with ability and spirit.

Sarron to Battle Frankie Wallace

Billed in Feature Bout at Philadelphia Oct. 15.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Pete Sarron, the cyclonic featherweight from Virginia, who made his debut here by soundly trouncing Benny Bass, will meet Frankie Wallace, of Cleveland, in the feature of the next boxing card at the Arena on October 15.

In supporting bouts Harry Dublinsky, who has recently defeated and also lost to Tony Canzoneri, will engage Bobby Pacho, of the Pacific Coast; Paul Pirrone, Cleveland knockerout, will meet Tommy Rios, recent conqueror of Vince Dundee, and Ken Overlin, of Norfolk, is scheduled to oppose Dan Hassett, of Philadelphia. All the bouts are scheduled for ten rounds.

Hilltop Eleven Faces First Test Under Lights at Griffith Stadium.

THE curtain rises on Georgetown's 1934 football season tonight at 8 o'clock at Griffith Stadium, where the Hoyas meet their traditional opening game opponent, Mount St. Mary's. The kick-off will be at 8 o'clock.

Beginning his second full season as coach at the Hilltop school, Jack Hagerty will present a husky line embracing only two experienced players, and a comparatively small but fast back field composed entirely of veterans. The reserves are of the mediocre caliber which Hagerty has been obliged to rely upon since assuming command of Georgetown's forces.

Team Has Possibilities.

In all, Georgetown's prospects are not promising. The team has possibilities but the future is obscured by a cloud of doubt and vague surmisals. The usual "ifs" must be called upon to help explain a muddled situation. If the team clicks tonight it may gather enough momentum—confidence in its abilities—to roll through the next several opponents like a juggernaut going down hill. If the Mount proves too tough for it, Georgetown may fold up and stumble through one of its dullest seasons.

Mount St. Marys has a veteran, well-balanced eleven, the same team that held Georgetown scoreless for three periods only to collapse in the fourth and play dead while the Hoyas rang up three touchdowns to win, 18-0. Injuries have deprived Coach Art Mallory of Vince Puszynski, end, and Walt Stuka a tackle, but good men are available for substitute roles.

Lynch at Quarter.

The Mounts will present a veteran, powerful back field with Tom Lynch, a Washingtonian, directing the team from quarter back. Acri and Norris will start at halves while Abby is the choice for full back.

Georgetown will have several men of outstanding ability tonight, including Frank Williams, giant center who was given honorable mention on the All-Eastern eleven last year and in '32. Bill Downer, Joe Williams and Al Cohen, linemen, and Joe Saverine, half back, are men of first water. The Hoyas are favored over the Mounts.

Cards Remain Series Choices

Quoted 7-10 by Kearney; Tigers Even Money.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4 (AP).—Despite their loss of the second world series game, the Cardinals remain the favorites to win the championship, according to revised odds of Tom Kearney, betting commissioner.

Cardinals to win series, 7 to 10.

Detroit to win series, even money.

Against Cardinals winning two straight games, 8 to 5; against Tigers doing the same, 2 to 1.

Kearney is offering 3 to 2 the better can not specify two games the Cardinals will win; 2½ against Detroit. The odds against specifying three games the Cardinals will win are 4 to 1; Detroit, 5 to 1.

Hialeah Boom Is Seen.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 4 (U.P.).—Considering advance signs as a criterion, Charles J. McLennan, America's youngest racing secretary, said today there would be approximately 140 stables represented at Hialeah this winter, including the outstanding silks of the country.

Virginia Hopes in Navy Game Tomorrow

Vanderbilt Defends Rainbow; Unlike Sopwith, Lauds Rival

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP).—Harold S. Vanderbilt, pilot of the Rainbow which successfully defended the America's Cup in a series of races with the British yacht, Endeavour, vigorously defended his craft in an interview today.

"My boat certainly complied with the rules and regulations governing the cup contest," he declared. "The rules are not my affair, but I am prepared to discuss the question of their modification. They've been altered comparatively recently."

"There are no bad feelings as far as I am concerned," he said in reply to a query. "I don't know how the others feel. In any event, I have no intention of making derogatory remarks in a foreign country about any of its citizens."

Deliberately ignoring a reminder that T. O. M. Sopwith, owner and skipper of the Endeavour, had made some rather pointed remarks on sailing from the United States, Vanderbilt preferred instead to laud the British boat.

"Endeavour is undoubtedly the finest British challenger that ever crossed the Atlantic and the fastest boat we have ever had to compete against," he said. "When at the leeward mark in the third race Rainbow turned six and a half minutes behind, all of us aboard the defender thought the cup was on its way back to England."

Vanderbilt was accompanied by his wife. They arrived amid great secrecy aboard the liner Bremen and were given a special Pullman car to London. The couple will travel through France, Italy and Germany after a brief visit in London, returning to the United States about November 1.

McMillin Shift Is Questioned

Opinion Divided on Legality of Five-Man Back Field.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Oct. 4 (AP).—The new shift designed by Bo McMillin for his five-man back field at Indiana raised a pointed question tonight as to its legality.

Don Peden, of Ohio University, whose Bobcats saw the first working of the five-man back field last Saturday when they were drubbed 27 to 0, thinks the shifting of the Indiana players is outside the rules.

Dr. J. H. Nichols, of Oberlin, Ohio, who refereed the Indiana-Ohio U. game, believes it is legal.

Peden said he protested the use of the formation before and during the game. Dr. Nichols said McMillen explained the idea before the game, that it appeared illegal then, but that when the players worked it out on the field it appeared within the rules.

The Oberlin official said he believes it is legal because six men are always on the line of scrimmage, and any lineman called into the back field is always five yards back when the ball is snapped, with the fifth back-field man jumping to one of the ends, thus making himself—but not the end nearest him—eligible for a pass.

C. U. Completes Work for LaSalle

3 Key Players Nursing Injuries on Eve of Season's Opener.

A LIGHT workout is all Catholic University will have today as it concludes practice for its opening game of the season tomorrow with LaSalle at Brookland.

With three key players on the sidelines nursing injuries Coach Art Bergman was prepared for an even battle with the Quakers who have their 1933 eleven intact with one exception. Danny Pyne and George Mulligan, linemen, and Genie Augusterfer, quarter back, are out of action indefinitely.

Mulligan was counted on to kick points after touchdowns for the Cardinals—should they score any touchdowns—while Augusterfer is the club's best blocking back and Pyne is an able defensive player.

Labor Golf Tourney Is Slated Tomorrow

The annual fall tournament of the United States Department of Labor Golf Association will be held at East Potomac Park tomorrow afternoon.

Medal play over the 18-hole course will begin at 1 p. m. The James J. Davis Cup will go to the player with the lowest gross score. Other prizes will be distributed on the net-score basis and special trophies will be provided for women players.

Willard Fights Orange Boy Tonight

Will Meet Harry Meyers in His First Bout Since 1923.

BIG JESS WILLARD, the mammountain who rose from an ordinary butcher and was butchered in turn by Jack Dempsey at the massacre of Toledo, is going back to the fight game—temporarily at least.

Big Jess is going to fight again—not under the bright, gay lights of a Madison Square Garden arena, nor before the maddening throng that knew him as champion, but at a little Virginia town, Orange, Va., tonight. His opponent will be one Harry Meyers, an Orange boy. The bout will go eight rounds; Willard promised that.

Willard has not laced on a glove since he was knocked out by Louis Angel Firpo in the eighth round back in 1923. That was when the towering giant envisioned a comeback and a return bout for the championship with Jack Dempsey.

Dream Shattered.

Willard appeared in Washington several weeks ago as referee in a wrestling match. During an interview at that time he said he was doing anything and everything to earn enough money to keep his five children in school. As a mat official he was not too impressive.

Local Orange fighters round out the card in support of Willard's bout, which is listed as an exhibition. Lew Carpenter faces Barefoot Green in the semifinal. Two wrestling matches also are on the program.

Dizzy, Paul Feted At Home of Ford; Nearly Miss Game

DETROIT, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Deans, Dizzy and brother Paul, were the guests of Henry Ford today, and had such a good time that they almost forgot to go to the ball park for the second world series game.

They made it on time, thanks to a police escort that cleared the way for them from Dearborn to Navin Field.

The two Cardinal pitching stars, with the wife of the elder Dean and Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Brown, of movie fame, breakfasted with Henry Ford this morning, had a long chat with Henry and Edsel Ford, and were taken to Ford's Greenfield Village School. They made brief talks, to the delight of the pupils.

St. John's Loses Weeks, Injured

Squad Off Today to Meet Randolph-Macon.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 4 (AP).—Henry Weeks, all-Maryland tackle at St John's College, will be out of the St. John's-Randolph-Macon football game Saturday as the result of a broken nose received in the clash with University of Maryland.

M. Talbot (Tody) Riggs, head coach of the Johnnies, said he planned to use either Jack Evans or Frank Townsend, former tackle on Mount St. Joseph's College, in the left tackle position in place of Weeks.

Bad knees will keep John Lambros and Bill Eaton, St. John's backs, out of the game. Both have been showing well in practice and were slated to face the Yellow Jackets during the contest. The squad leaves tomorrow for Ashland, Va.

Md. Will Use Guckeyson To Start

The rest of the line-up will be Ennis and Buscher, ends; Minion and Stalfort, tackles; Farrell and Simpson, guards; Andorka, center; Sothoron, quarter; Sachs, half, and Gormley, full back.

Faber will have Widmyer, Nelson, Daly and Headley for relief work, or to insert at a crucial moment when speed can produce a touchdown for the Terps. Widmyer will be saved for certain spots where his speed can be utilized to its full extent.

The Old Liners have devoted most of their time this week to offensive work, polishing up the running plays they will use against the Generals. Forward passing was not neglected, though Maryland proved conclusively against St. John's that it will have a potent aerial attack this season.

The team will leave for Lexington this afternoon, traveling by bus. The entire squad will make the trip.

DISTRICT scholastic grid teams step into action again today, with the Tech-Episcopal game at Tech Stadium and the Western-Alexandria fracas at Alexandria holding the spotlight. Both games start at 3:30.

Gonzaga's tough little eleven takes its first stride in the general direction of the prep school championship against Bullis Prep in Gonzaga Stadium and St. Alban's travels to Baltimore to open its season against Boys' Latin. The Gonzaga kick-off is slated for 3:15.

Thriller Expected.

If the Tech-Episcopal fray doesn't turn out to b one of the highlights of the high school season, it will be a surprise to more than one individual. Over at Alexandria they're looking back over the records trying to find when Episcopal had a more impressive looking outfit than this 1934 combination.

The Virginians opened their season by slamming a 13-to-0 defeat on Eastern last Friday after Eastern had defeated a strong Alexandria High team. This strong Alexandria High team, incidentally, beat Central, 12 to 0.

Alexandria and Western commenced their campaigns so auspiciously that their game naturally shapes up as a headliner. Western's 27 to 0 victory over St. John's Prep gave credence to reports that the Georgetowners appear to have one of their strongest teams in years.

Coach Orrel Mitchell's Gonzaga eleven, barely beaten 6 to 0 by Washington-Lee last week, is something of a favorite to defeat Bullis.

St. Alban's, its man-power depleted by graduation, is concentrating on building up a new combination and the extent of its success should be pretty well indicated by the result of its Boys' Latin test.

Frank Ormont Victor In Feature at Crete

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—Frank Ormont, the long-striding thoroughbred owned by W. F. Axton, of Louisville, Ky., easily won the Del Prado Purse at Crete this afternoon.

WHEN SLEEP WON'T COME

Try This New Drugless Way . . Doctors Everywhere Approve It

OVALTINE is a delicious pure food concentrate approved by thousands of physicians and used in 54 different countries today. When taken as a hot drink at bedtime, it usually induces sound sleep in a surprisingly short time.

By this method you avoid the use of drugs. And when you awaken in the morning you feel refreshed, clear-eyed—nerves calm and mind clear—just the way you should feel after a perfect night's sleep.

Ovaltine is remarkably easy to digest, and because of its unusual food values, it assists nature in rebuilding nerve, brain, and body tissue while you sleep; increases energy, too.

So outstanding are the results accredited to Ovaltine that, during the World War, it was used as a standard ration for invalid, nerve-shattered soldiers. Thousands of people, men and women, use it regularly to restore vitality when fatigued. And it is also highly recommended by physicians for nervous, undernourished children—and as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged.

Sullivan Rides 'Perfect Race' Astride Mid Victorian to Capture Laurel Feature

Last Boat 2d, Beaten Out By Head

Daughter of Victorian Repulses Bid to Pay $8.90 Mutuel.

By Walter Haight.

LITTLE JIMMY SULLIVAN, former Washington Post carrier boy, is moving up the jockey ladder. Two years ago, as the sun was setting on a last race at Laurel, a rather timid Jimmy Sullivan rode his first winner. Yesterday a bold and strong Jimmy Sullivan, displaying that undefinable quality known as "class," outrode the great Johnny Gilbert to win the Choptank purse. True, he might have had a shade the best mount, but, if he did, Sullivan should share in the glory for he rode as perfect a race as has been ridden hereabouts.

Mid Victorian was the winner. Representing the Warm Stable and with Sullivan wearing the scarlet and black silks of that establishment, the daughter of Victorian was straining every muscle at the finish to take a head decision from Last Boat, running for the Glenn Riddle Farms. Three lengths away came the E. R. Bradley Stable's Blossom Again, with Donny Meade in the saddle.

Second Choice.

A field of eight went to the post, including three eligibles for the rich Selima Stakes. Mid Victorian ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 4-5. She drew the bulk of the early betting and was installed the favorite five minutes before post time. However, the wagering trend swung to the Bradley entry of Blossom Again and Banish Fear, and Mid Victorian was second choice at an $8.90 mutuel.

Blossom Again was first to show in front as Starter Milton sent the field away. With Meade throwing his arms, she drew out on the way to the turn. Sullivan had Mid Victorian within striking distance, however, and on the swing for the stretch she disposed of the Bradley hope to take the lead in the early stretch run.

Anybody's Race.

In the meantime, Gilbert swung Last Boat to the outside of the field and moved up to do battle with Mid Victorian. At the quarter pole it was anybody's race. A few more strides and Last Boat appeared to overhaul the Warm Stable racer. Then came the final drive, with Sullivan and Mid Victorian having just enough left to draw out a head at the wire.

Frostburg Noses Out Ellerslie Cards, 5-4

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Mike Kasnick, right-hander who lost two 1-0 games to Potomac Edison in the interstate League this season, pitched and batted the Frostburg Demons to a 5-4 victory over the Ellerslie Cardinals, champions of the Potomac Valley League, in the third and deciding game of the series between the teams staged yesterday at Community Park, Frostburg.

The Central City, Pa., twirler kept Ellerslie's nine hits well spaced, fired the third strike by ten batsmen, including Freddie Clapper four times in succession, and drove in what proved to be the deciding run in the seventh inning by hoisting a fly to Art Miller which scored Lloyd Christner after the latter had rtipled.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FELWYN, $38.70, $18.90, $11.00; COUNTESS ANN, $20.10. $10.30; M. J. BRENNAN, $3.30.

FELWYN, away in the first flight and having nice speed early, assumed command in the opening furlong under strong urging, withstood stout contention from M. J. BRENNAN in the first five furlongs, then held on stoutly to stall off COUNTESS ANN. Latter improved her position steadily, then came with excellent courage for the final drive. M. J. BRENNAN raced stoutly until reaching the home stretch and fought it out gamely thereafter. QUEENS FLAG went within striking distance of the leaders and had no mishaps. INSCRIPTION bettered his position slowly at the end after making a wide turn into the home stretch. GOLD STANDARD broke slow. He closed fast after reaching the home stretch. INDIAN NEWS was outrun. BULL MARKET tired. HARD CHASE had early foot.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:12. Off at 2:19½. Winner, H. C. Vaughn's ch. f. (4), by Bunting—Gracenote. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $435; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $15. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 2-5.

* Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRACE BUNTING, $8.60, $5.30, $3.10; VACILLATE, $5.90, $4.40; LUNA MICA, $4.90.

GRACE BUNTING, taken back when unable to outsprint LUNA MICA during the opening furlong, was kept close to the leaders until entering the home stretch, came determinedly through the stretch drive and, finishing gamely, was up in the closing strides. VACILLATE went around LUNA MICA approaching the home stretch, gained command, but was unable to meet the winner's rush in the last 70 yards. LUNA MICA, hurried to the front, saved ground, then held on well when collared. RUSTIC CUBA could no better her position at any stage. HANDLEY closed gamely in the inside. CONVENTIONAL went evenly. JANE ELLEN could not improve her position. The others were never factors.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:49. Off at 2:53. Winner, M. Lowenstein's ch. g. (3), by Bud Lerner—Neda. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:12 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUR DAVID, $5.50, $4.10, $2.80; SPARKY, $27.70, $8.40; †WATERSET, $2.80.

OUR DAVID, in closest pursuit of WATERSET in the early racing, moved up fast to take command entering the home stretch and then held SPARKY safe in the final drive. SPARKY went forwardly placed, saved ground entering the home stretch and came with good energy approaching the finish. WATERSET, steadied in front until challenged, bore out at the stretch turn and then tired gradually. IMMUNE held a prominent position from the beginning and had no mishap. JUST CAP could not better her position at any stage. LODORUS went well throughout. LEONIE was rushed to her field, but failed to reach a forward position. HAIR TRIGGER lost ground.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:21. Off at 3:22½. Winner, Breck Long's c. f. (3), by Swift and Sure—Shenanegan. Trained by M. Smart. Value to winner, $435; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $15. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:16, 1:41 4-5, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RETRIBUTION, $4.10, $3.00, $2.50; ROCK COVENTRY, $5.20, $3.40; GLISK, $3.90.

RETRIBUTION, taken to the outside after reaching the back stretch, moved up steadily on the last five-sixteenths, wore IN INDIA down and, under strong urging, outstayed ROCK COVENTRY. Latter worked his way up gradually after being slow to get into full stride, then closed fast in the last quarter mile. GLISK went prominently and continued with good courage when placed to punishment. IN INDIA saved ground while setting the pace, but tired in the final drive. TALOMOND was taken wide in the last half mile. SMALL CHANGE suffered interference at the first turn. LACQUER LADY was done early. SELFISH GAIN stopped.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Choptank. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:52. Winner, Warm Stable's br. f. (2), by Victorian—Black Betty. Trained by W. J. Hirsh. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:00 2-5, 1:06 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MID VICTORIAN, $8.90, $7.00, $4.10; †LAST BOAT, $6.90, $4.00; †BLOSSOM AGAIN, $2.90.

MID VICTORIAN luckily found racing room on the inside to hold a forward position going to the turn gained a brief lead midway of the curve and, holding on with excellent courage thereafter, just lasted long enough. LAST BOAT, going in his best form, came determinedly after a breathing spell and fought it out gamely all during the stretch drive. BLOSSOM AGAIN had nice speed in the first three furlongs; she faltered when put to vigorous urging. MINNANT met with early interference; she closed gamely when finding racing room. GOLDEN SCEPTRE was never able to threaten the leaders. SEAWICK was outrun while losing ground. GAS BAG weakened. BANISH FEAR lacked speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:21½. Winner J. B. Black's ch. m. (5), by Blazes—Mabel A. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:51 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLAMING MAMIE, $14.70, $7.60, $6.60; TRIANGULAR, $5.70, $4.80; ALADDIN'S DREAM, $5.10.

FLAMING MAMIE, showing sudden improvement and closer to the early pace from the beginning, wore DOMINUS and MY BOSS down when reaching the home stretch, continued stoutly and outstayed TRIANGULAR. Latter, reserved for the first six furlongs, went around his company when shaken up, but could not gain during the stretch drive. ALADDIN'S DREAM dropped out of early contention, settled with his stride, then closed stoutly when coming through a narrow passage on the inside of the leaders for the final issue. DOMINUS and MY BOSS were used up setting the pace. BLACK NOSE was inclined to bear out for the entire trip.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:52. Off at 4:55½. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's ch. g. (3), by Parade—Mabel Curtis. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:40, 1:46 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIG SHOW, $8.00, $4.00, $3.00; BIOGRAPHY, $5.20, $2.90; LEGENDARY, $3.80.

BIG SHOW, taken to BIOGRAPHY when midway of the back stretch, wore the pacemaker down when reaching the home stretch and, hard ridden thereafter, came out slowly nearing the finish. BIOGRAPHY raced JUSTA TEACHER into submission in the first six furlongs, met repeated efforts from BIG SHOW for the next quarter mile, but failed to last when the real test came. LEGENDARY moved up stoutly midway of the final curve, but failed to rally when straightened into the home stretch.

Wide Open Battle Forecast for National Capital Open Golf Starting Tomorrow

83 Compete In $2,000 Classic

By Dave Herman.

EIGHTY-THREE golfers already entered, post entries expected to boost the field to well over the century mark, the $2,000 National Capital Open championship which starts tomorrow at Kenwood's course promises to be a wide-open battle.

It will be a wide-open battle, even though Paul Runyan, defending champion, is strongly favored in many quarters to walk off with the $600 first prize money. Runyan, National P. G. A. titleholder, won last year after a bitter struggle in which Walter Kozak, the Flushing (Long Island) pro, came within one shot of deadlocking the issue.

There are any number of reasons why no one individual is going to monopolize the spotlight throughout the two-day championship.

Past experiences have taught the big shots that the lead in a 54-hole tournament of this type is apt to change hands a dozen times, what with the burst of subpar scoring the boys are unleashing these days.

Locals May Crash Through.

You'll have to reckon with these local lads, notably Al Houghton, the host pro, who believes he'll crash through this season; Walter Cunningham, the stocky Burning Tree tutor, and Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam's professional who showed the golfers a thing or two in the P. G. A. qualifying trials last summer.

It would not be suprising to see Ralph Beach, of Suburban Club, Baltimore, break loose with some of that inspired sub-par golf that gave him the medal in the P. G. A. event at Kenwood.

If you know the type of golfer Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, is, you can readily understand why he is dangerous man in this National Capital Open. Cruickshank, the sturdy Scot, had the National Open at Merion in his hip pocket until he missed a couple of shots on the stretch, permitting Olin Dutra to slide into the front.

Goggin on Hand.

First of the outstanding pros to arrive for practice rounds, Willie Goggin, the San Francisco giant, who lost to Gene Sarazen in the 1933 P. G. A. finals, yesterday shot another steady round of golf. His latest was a 36-37—73 that was matched only by Walter Cunningham. Goggin looks like he will be tough to beat. Yesterday he almost knocked the breath out of a handful of spectators by anchoring a trap shot from 160 yards 2 feet from the pin on the ninth hole. And think of it—he used a jigger. Unfortunately, he missed his birdie, but made up for this weird putt by deucing the tenth hole.

Arriving midway of the afternoon after an 800-mile trip, Johnny Revolta, the bushy-haired lad, registered out of Milwaukee, went through a nine-hole workout with Alvin (Butch) Krueger, Beloit, Wis., professional ball player who plays a fine golf game. Revolta, who finished in the money last year, said that he had only four rounds of golf since he was separated from his appendix a month ago. He looks in tip-top shape, and was knocking his chips stoney.

Hitting Good Shots.

The New Jersey grenadiers, Clarence Clark, of the Forest Hill Field Club, Bloomfield, and Clarence Hackney, were out for a drill, and were hitting good shots, though neither kept a score.

Paul Runyan, Ed Dudley, Walter Kozak, Willie MacFarlane, Wiffy Cox, Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel, Johnny Golden and the rest of the sharpshooters are due for practice rounds today. If they don't show up today, they're pretty confident golfers.

Pairings and starting times released last night by the Kenwood committee showed several prominent threesomes. Diegel, Runyan and Tom Creavy, former P. G. A. champion, play together at 2:10, and MacFarlane, Cox and Farrell at 2 o'clock. Houghton is paired with Golden and Joe Turnesa.

Chandler Harper Now a Pro Golfer

Will Make His Debut Here in Capital Open.

"I have already turned pro and will play as such in the National Capital Open Saturday and Sunday," he stated in a telegram sent to The Post from his home in Portsmouth.

Harper has won three Virginia amateur crowns and one open title. The Virginian was low amateur in the National Capital Open last year.

Three Choices Are Upset at Columbia

Steward, Brawner, Weller Bow in First Round of Golf Tourney.

An orgy of upsets broke out in the first round of the Columbia Country Club golf championship yesterday and resulted in the elimination of three of the favored players.

In the most stunning reversal, Luther C. Steward, jr., perennial Congressional title holder, and District "champion of champions," was removed by Dermot Nee, brother of the more-famous Maury Nee. Nee triumphed, 4 and 3, after overcoming his opponent's 2-up lead. He needed par in for a 73 when he ended the match with a birdie 3 on the fifteenth green.

Brawner Is Beaten.

Johnny Brawner, District star in the 1932 National Amateur, bowed to Marty West, 2 and 1, and Frank Weller, one of the better-known top-flight players, was eliminated on the nineteenth hole by George N. Ferris.

Mrtin F. McCarthy, the Beaver Dam "Iron Man," medalist in the tournament, advanced to the semifinals by defeating E. L. Bono and John L. Barr, both by 2 and 1 counts. Miller B. Stevinson, five-time champion, eliminated Karl F. Kellerman on the nineteenth hole and later put out Nee by the lusty count of 7 and 6.

Other Semifinalists.

The other two semifinalists are Albert R. Mackenzie, former Middle Atlantic champion and father of the Congressional pro, and Lou Laudick. Mackenzie won from A. E. Gillette and West, and Laudick eliminated H. King Cornwell and Ferris.

McCarthy will meet Mackenzie and Stevinson will engage Laudick this morning. The finals in all flights will be played in the afternoon.

Results:

Championship Flight.

John L. Barr defeated Commander C. B. Hatch, 2 and 1; Martin F. McCarthy defeated E. L. Bono, 2 and 1; Marty R. West defeated Johnny Brawner, 2 and 1; Albert R. Mackenzie defeated A. E. Gillette, 2 and 1; Miller B. Stevinson defeated Karl F. Kellerman, 1 up, 19 holes; Dermot Nee defeated Luther C. Steward, jr., 4 and 3; George N. Ferris defeated Frank Weller, 1 up, 19 holes; Lou Laudick defeated H. King Cornwell, 1 and 2.

Second round—McCarthy defeated Barr, 2 and 1; Mackenzie defeated West, 3 and 2; Stevinson defeated Nee, 7 and 6; Laudick defeated Ferris, 1 and 2.

The Hill of Fire

By Paul Gallico.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 4 (Spl.)—A tall young man went out to the little pitching tee on Navin Field here this afternoon, 6 feet 4 inches in height, gray eyed, 22 years old, he carried the burden of the world on his shoulders, such burdens as the very young are not meant to carry. This fellow, named Lynwood Rowe and nicknamed Schoolboy, took that pitching hill as a boy, and unless I miss my guess, he walked off it a man. When he beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in the second game of the World Series, he overcame perhaps greater obstacles than any other young pitcher has ever faced in an important game.

For nine innings, he threw one of the most perfect World Series games ever pitched, allowing one hit and pitching to no more than 28 batters. Then why was the score 3 to 2? Well, you see, the game went 12 innings, and for the first three innings he still had that world balanced on the back of his neck. You try it sometime, pitching to hitthungry batters, with a big whirling globe resting across your shoulders blades. He gave six hits and two runs in those first three innings before he finally gave his troubles the heave-o and began to throw the fireball.

Man Walked Off Hill.

Yes, that was a man who walked off that chucking hill. A boy wouldn't have lasted. It was as though that little mound had been a circle of flame and he stood in the center of it and was tested and the youth burned out of him and the man of steel and iron survived. How else will you account for a nervous, worried boy who went in to pitch, pale and drawn, nervously moistening his lips before every throw, throwing wrong balls, flirting with trouble, suddenly checking all panic, and beginning with the fourth inning, pitching to but 21 consecutive batters, then yielding one hit and then retiring the next six men in order? No, there was a crucible there in that ball game and the kid walked through it. You don't feel inclined to call him Schoolboy any more.

To understand better what this grand youngster did here today, to appreciate this story that was acted out before the eyes of some 45,000 palpitating witnesses, you must know a little of the recent background of the Rowe that had to pitch to win today. In the first place it should be written HAD to pitch to win today. Yesterday the Tigers had cracked wide-open and went down to defeat, fumbling like a pack of kids in a pick-up game. Their nerves were quivering. If they lost today they would lose four straight. Yesterday, Rowe would have beaten Dean easily because Dizzy was tired and admitted it. But Cochrane held the youngster out. He sat on the bench and watched his grand team go to pieces before his eyes. In the dressing room after the game he promised his companions that he would win for them today. But he must have been wondering whether he could keep that promise, whether they would fold up under him the way they had the day before. The pressure on this youngster was well-nigh unbeatable.

Certain Social Angles.

Now, added to this were certain social difficulties which must have hung no less heavily on his right arm. The schoolboy had been through the usual devastating gauntlet through which we run every celebrity we have ever had—interviews, pictures, sobsisters, pests, autograph hunters, favor hunters, back-slappers, chiselers movies, broadcasting, indorsing, and most dangerous of all to his mental and physical condition he had drunk deeply of the heavy, sweet wine of publicity and public adulation.

Now, added to this, his gentle love affair with a pretty little Arkansas girl named Edna Skinner suddenly was made a typical public wooing, when his girl was brought on to Detroit and thrust pitilessly between the thin column rules of the newspapers. Then his mother came on and was quickly turned into headlines and pictures. Now suddenly there was a situation. Mother Rowe was not at all sure that pretty Edna was the girl for her boy. THAT didn't make the headlines. It went on behind closed doors, but truth was that a fine old family row had been transported bag and baggage to Detroit and deposited at the feet of a pleasant and naive youngster who was enjoying his first sweet taste of success.

Those were his troubles, those were his problems, and those were the burdens from which he freed himself in one glorious burst of courage and tenacity and which must tell him that from now until the day he is through that when he must, he CAN lick first himself and then anything on two legs that comes along.

In the fourth inning he pitched only three balls. In the eighth inning he had to serve up only six balls before the side was retired. In the ninth he got Frisch on a foul, the first pitch, and then struck out Medwick and Collins. In the tenth, he again retired the side with only six pitches. In the eleventh, after Pepper Martin doubled he struck out Rothrock and made Frisch hit an easy grounder. In the twelfth, it was one-two-three and a strike out of Delancy, the last man. Oh yes, Goose Goslin did win the ball game with his single in the last half of the twelfth with Gehringer and Greenberg on, but it was Rowe's ball game, his greatest trial and his greatest victory.

It will be a long time before any of us forget the picture of that tall, graceful, dominating and completely invincible figure of the boy who had found himself engaged in man's business and was tending it in that way.

base hit. Orsatti grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg. Durocher lifted a short foul that Gehringer caught behind first base on a pretty play. It was the fourth successive inning in which the Cardinals had been retired in order. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SEVENTH INNING, TIGERS—White lifted a high fly that Durocher barged in short left. Cochrane grounded out, Frisch to Collins. Gehringer walked, the fourth ball being low and outside. Greenberg fanned on a called third strike and the crowd booted. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

EIGHTH INNING, CARDINALS—Hallahan hoisted a high one to Gehringer behind second base. Martin grounded out, Rogell to Greenberg. Rothrock bounced out, Gehringer to Greenberg. As the Cardinals again were retired in rapid-fire fashion. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

EIGHTH INNING, TIGERS—Goslin grounded to Frisch, who made a fine stop in the grass and nipped the Goose by an eyelash at first. Rogell hoisted to Rothrock in right center. Owen grounded out, Frisch to Collins. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

NINTH INNING, TIGERS—Fox singled sharply to right. The crowd was in an uproar. The Cardinal infield quickly gathered around Hallahan. Rowe bunted to Hallahan and was thrown out at first. Fox running to second on the sacrifice. The Cardinals gathered around their pitcher for a conference. Gerald Walker was sent up to bat for White, as Cochrane decided on a last-moment switch. Walker popped along the first-base line and the ball fell safe as the Cardinals got their signals mixed. Collins and Delancey both hesitating and then failing to get under the ball. It bounced foul, however, and Walker was called back to the plate. Walker lined a single to center, scoring Fox with the tying run. The Cardinals again went into a huddle around the pitcher's box while Cochrane walked down to first base to confer with Walker. The crowd was in a wild uproar. Frisch decided to take Hallahan from the box. Bill Walker, another southpaw, was called into action. Cochrane up. Walker's throw trapped Gerald Walker off first and the Tiger base runner was finally tagged out by Frisch after a prolonged and furious chase up and down the base path. Cochrane fanned on a called third strike. One run, two hits, no errors, none left.

TENTH INNING, CARDINALS—Doljack in center field in place of White for the Tigers. Delancey hoisted a high one that Goslin caught in short left. Orsatti grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg. Durocher flied out to Fox, as the Cardinals went out in order for the seventh successive inning. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

TENTH INNING, TIGERS—Gehringer grounded to Frisch and was safe when the Cardinal manager fumbled and was charged with an error. Greenberg drove a long fly to Rothrock in right center. For a moment it looked as though the wallop might carry to the bleachers. Goslin flied to Rothrock just inside the foul line. Rogell walked, the fourth ball being outside. Owen flied deep to Orsatti, who made a nice running catch. No runs, no hits, one error, two left.

ELEVENTH INNING, CARDINALS—Walker fanned, swinging. Martin drove a double to left center, sliding on his stomach into the keystone bag. It was the first hit off Rowe since the third inning. Rothrock fanned, swinging at a fast ball inside. Frisch popped to Gehringer. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

ELEVENTH INNING, TIGERS—Fox raised a foul that Collins caught near the lower boxes. Rowe fanned, swinging, and was a strikeout victim for the fourth time. Doljack popped to Collins near first base. No runs no hits, no errors, none left.

TWELFTH INNING, CARDINALS—Medwick grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg. Collins flied deep to Doljack. Delancey fanned on a called third strike. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

TWELTH INNING, TIGERS—Cochrane grounded out, Durocher to Collins. Gehringer walked, the fourth ball being inside. Greenberg walked, the fourth ball being inside. The Cardinals clustered around Walker but there was no move to take him out of the box. Goslin singled through center and Gehringer scored the winning run. Orsatti's throw was wild and there was no play at the plate. One run, one hit, no errors, two left.

Martin's Mother, 67, To See Son in Series

Oklahoma City, Oct. 4 (AP).—This time, Mrs. Celia Martin is going to see for herself how her son, John (Pepper) Martin conducts himself in a World Series. Overcoming her shyness, she left today for St. Louis to see the Cardinals and the Detroit Tigers continue the World Series tomorrow.

Three years ago when Pepper's escapades against the Philadelphia Athletics were in the headlines, Mrs. Martin, now 67, confessed she was "afraid of the crowds" and listened to the games over a neighbor's radio.

Mrs. Dedicke Golf Crown Winner

Defeats Mrs. Cole, 4 and 3, for Army-Navy Title; Registers a 90.

CONTINUING the steady shooting that enabled her to win the medal Monday, Mrs. A. E. Dedicke yesterday defeated Mrs. Philip Cole, 4 and 3, to capture the Army and Navy Country Club women's golf championship.

Mrs. Dedicke scored a 47—43—90, to her opponent's 95. All square with Mrs. Cole at the turn, Mrs. Dedicke won the eleventh, twelfth, fourteenth and fifteenth, to gain her advantage. The new champion packed magic in her putter, having 9 1-putt greens and 27 for the 18 holes.

Second flight honors went to Mrs. F. G. Crisp, who defeated Mrs. J. R. Rogers, 6 and 5. Mrs. C. C MacCornack defeated Mrs W. B. Coggins, 1 up, in the third flight finals, and Mrs. H. E. Taylor defeated Mrs. W. A. Buck, 1 up, in the fourth flight.

Notices were sent out yesterday by the Maryland State Golf Association announcing the Maryland open championship, which is scheduled over the 36-hole route at Indian Spring Country Club next Thursday, October 9. A $5 entrance fee will be assessed professionals, and $3 amateurs. Entries close Monday.

Seven prizes totaling $375 will be awarded, with the winner to receive $150, the runner-up $75. The third low man will be given $50, and the next four, $25 each.

Entries for the Middle Atlantic women's golf championship scheduled October 8-12, inclusive, at Washington Golf and Country Club will close today at 2 p. m. at the club. Virtually all of Washington's better known feminine golfers and many from Virginia and Baltimore will compete. Mrs. Jean Jones, of Richmond, won the championship last year.

A field of 75 women will tee off this morning in the 18-hole handicap golf tournament sponsored by the Maryland State Golf Association at Congressional. Post entries will be accepted. Mrs. Jack Scott and Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley will play in the feature twosome.

Good Goods Wins In Hectic Finish

Jamaica Race Track, Oct. 4 (AP).—Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Good Goods, which has been racing in handicaps against topnotch opposition, was dropped into the right spot here today and won the Hillside, an allowance affair at a mile and 70 yards.

In a hectic finish, the Brookmeade colt got up on the outside to score by a nose over Red John, representing Mrs. J. D. Hertz. Andy Schuttinger's Fortification was a scant half length behind in the picture. The others were not close enough to threaten.

Good Goods and Fortification were split choices at 11 to 5. The winner's time was 1:43 2-5.

Wasps Scrimmage.

Emory, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—The Emory and Henry Wasps went through a long scrimmage session yesterday in preparation for the important William and Henry game at Williamsburg Saturday. The game will be the first Virginia conference tussle of the season for the Wasps.

Meridians to Practice.

All members and candidates for the Meridian football team are requested to report tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the Sixteenth Street Reservoir field for a scrimmage session.

Columbia League Opens.

Managers of teams in the Columbia Football League have voted to open their season October 21, it was announced last night.

By Kirksey

But for a double to left-center by Pepper Martin in the eleventh inning, Rowe would have pitched nine innings of perfect baseball—no runs, no hits, no man reach first base. The long, gangling Arkansas boy, who first saw the light of day at Waco, Tex., retired 22 men in order from the fourth inning until Martin doubled in the eleventh with one out. After Martin's hit, Rowe then set down five more men in succession. The way he was pitching, the game might have gone on until Gabriel blows his horn if the Tigers hadn't fetched him a run.

Seven Hits All Told.

Rowe allowed seven hits, six of which came in the first three innings, fanned six and walked none.

On the other hand, Hallahan, the Binghamton (N. Y.) veteran, who twice during off-days during the season beat the Tigers in exhibition games, faltered just at the wire today. Until the ninth he allowed only four hits, one of them a misjudged fly ball, and was superb in the tight places. His control faltered him several times, and errors by Martin, Frisch and himself helped get him into trouble, but he kept pitching his way out until the ninth when Manager Frisch elected to take him out with the score deadlocked, 2-2.

Cards Take Lead.

The Cardinals got away in front in the second inning. With one down, Delancey singled off Gehringer's glove. Orsatti sent a high, twising fly to left, near the foul line. Goslin raced in fast, misjudged the fly and overran it. It carried over his head for a triple and Delancey scored.

In the third the Cards increased their lead to 2-0. Martin led off with a single to center and Rothrock sacrificed him to second. Medwick slashed a single to left, scoring Martin. Collins also singled and Medwick, who had advanced to second on the throw-in, attempted to score. A great throw by Goslin nipped him at the plate. Cochrane had the ball in his mitt waiting for Medwick, who stuck up both arms and shoved Mickey down, but the Detroit manager held the ball and saved a run and what eventually proved to be the ball game.

Nullifies Bad Play.

So right then Goslin nullified his bad play on Orsatti's triple in the second and then when he got another chance he won the ball game with his wicket mace.

Another misjudged fly ball allowed the Tigers to get their first run in the fourth. With one out, Billy Rogell hit a fly to center. Orsatti misplayed the ball in the wind and then attempted to make a diving catch. Rogell raced to second. The scorer called it a double. Fox drove Rogell home with a double down the left-field foul line. The Cards argued the ball, a line drive, was foul, but they just wasted a lot of breath.

American U. Ready For Opening Game

Plays Hampden - Sydney Tomorrow Afternoon.

American University's grid squad this afternoon will put the finishing touches to its intensive training for tomorrow's game with Hampden-Sydney. A light workout is scheduled. Tomorrow the team makes its 1934 debut in Central High School Stadium at 2:30 o'clock.

With what is considered the finest football squad the Massachusetts avenue school ever has boasted, Coach Walter Young looks hopefully to this season for a revival of A. U.'s gridiron prosperity. He is confident of victory tomorrow though Hampden-Sydney last week held Virginia to 8 points.

In Staff Cassell and Ralph Winslow he believes the team boasts two of the finest ball carriers in the District.

Mercury Team Drills.

The Mercury A. C. unlimited team will practice Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock at Seventh and H streets southwest. All players are requested to report promptly. The team will enter the National City League.

Callahan Dead; Former Pilot Of Chisox

One-Time Pitcher, Manager and Outfielder Was 60 Years Old.

BOSTON, Oct. 4 (U.P.).—James J. (Comeback) Callahan, 60, who was a big league figure nearly 20 years as pitcher, outfielder and manager, died in his sleep at a Boston hotel today.

Callahan managed the Chicago White Sox in 1903, part of 1904, 1912, 1913 and 1914. He had a genius for handling disgruntled players, and his 1913 team numbered Harry Lord and Buck O'Brien, both of whom had trouble at Boston, and Hal Chase, who couldn't get along with Manager Frank Chance in New York.

As a pitcher, Callahan once struck out 22 men in a game. He turned to outfielding when his pitching arm failed.

Burnside Takes Purse At Detroit by Length

Detroit, Oct. 4 (AP).—Burnside, a 5-year-old gelding owned by A. L. Wynston, jr., picked by most of the handicappers for first place, won the $800 Wayne News Store Purse, feature event on today's Detroit Race Track card, beating Commandman and Sweeperman, which finished second and third, respectively.

Stocks Level Is Unchanged In Larger Sale

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—United States Government bonds and wheat set examples for strength in financial markets today and were instrumental in checking early liquidation in stocks.

Weakness in shares of California corporations in the forenoon served to unsettle the whole market for a time.

Later the share list stiffened as grains rallied strongly and a further advance in Treasury obligations cheered investment quarters.

Grain Market Followed.

Aside from the break in so-called "California stocks," apparently caused by nervousness over political tendencies in that State, traders were guided chiefly by the swings in the erratic grain market and the broadening advance in Government bonds.

Reports that some flight of capital from California had been observed hastened early selling in such shares as California Packing, Standard Oil of California, Safeway Stores, Union Oil of California, Pacific Lighting and Pacific Gas & Electric. Safeway Stores was off more than 4 points at one time to a new 1934 low, and at its bottom California Packing showed an equally sharp loss. They rallied to close off about 2 points each.

The net result of the day's trading was no change in the Standard Statistics Co. average of 90 stocks. It remained at 70.1. Turnover increased to 607,385 shares, compared with 410,350 yesterday.

Building Shares Gain.

Building shares made moderate gains on reports Government efforts to stimulate housing activity were meeting some success. American Radiator, Johns Manville and Congoleum finished fractionally higher. U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, J. I. Case, Montgomery Ward and International Harvester were among prominent shares gaining fractions to about 2 points as rallying tendencies took hold in late trading.

Weakness of commodity prices the past few days and an unsteady oil price structure directed attention of sellers to rubber and petroleum shares. Atlantic Refining, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Amerada were singled out for pressure, along with Standard of California and Union Oil.

Steel Demand Continues to Aid Gradual Expansion of Industry

Ingot Rate Pushed to Further Rise; Scrap Decline Is Halted; 12 Per Cent Loss in Pig Iron Output Recorded in September.

New York, Oct. 4.—Pig iron production in September totaled 898,043 tons, or 29,935 tons per day, compared with 1,054,382 tons, or 34,012 tons daily in August. The loss in terms of daily rate was 12 per cent. The downward trend, however, appears to have been halted. Steel company consumption of hot metal has been increasing moderately of late and the number of active blast furnaces as of October 1—62 stacks—was the same as one month previous.

Further recovery in output is also indicated by late reports from important steel centers. While gains are not so general as a week ago, the National ingot rate has been lifted from 23½ to 24 per cent of capacity.

Operations have risen to one point to 16 per cent at Pittsburgh, 2 points to 20 per cent in the Philadelphia district, and 5 points to 31 per cent in the Wheeling area. Production in the Cleveland-Lorain area is off 3 points to 21 per cent and Chicago output has dipped fractionally below last week's rate of 26½ per cent, while operations in other centers remain unchanged.

Sensitiveness of Market.

The divergent tendencies in different markets apparently signify nothing beyond extreme sensitiveness to fluctuations in demand at a time when forward buying is almost nonexistent.

With protection against advances during the fourth quarter, consumers see no point in making large commitments, particularly in view of the possibility that existing forms of price control may be radically modified under the reorganized NRA. And many users are cutting more deeply than usual into inventories in their determination to wait out the market.

Certain consumers of tin plate are cutting stock material to desired sizes, preferring to take scrap losses rather than to purchase new plate at present prices. Under these conditions current gains in steel booking probably do not fully measure the depletion of inventories that has taken place since the second quarter. As a result, a potential demand is being built up which may give the market substantial support at a later date.

Trends More Favorable.

Trends among consuming industries are, on the whole, more favorable. While there is apparently no immediate prospect of a broad renewal of railroad buying, construction activity under Governmental stimulus remains a sustaining market influence, and the automobile outlook has improved.

While October will probably be the lowest month of the year in car assemblies, November and December will see a marked rise in output, and as a consequence bookings of automotive steel should show a steady advance during the current month.

Among the smaller consuming groups, the farm equipment, home appliance and stove industries are expanding their operations and taking more material. In the St. Louis district a washing machine manufacturer purchased 1,500 tons of pig iron and an agricultural implement plant bought 1,000 tons. Despite the season, road machinery makers are still maintaining good shop schedules.

Structural Steel Awards.

Structural steel awards, at 15,850 tons, are more than double those of the previous week. Plate lettings of 4,600 tons include 3,000 tons for 11 tanks to be built for the Standard Oil Co. of California.

The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California will take bids October 31 on the second unit of the Colorado River aqueduct, requiring 30,000 tons of bars, 1,200 tons of shapes and 4,000 tons of plates. On October 12 the Navy Department will receive tenders on 4,400 tons of plates, shapes, bars and strip for five destroyers to be built in Government yards.

The decline in scrap prices has been halted. Advances at Chicago have offset reductions at Pittsburgh, and the Iron Age composite price for heavy melting steel remains unchanged at $9.50 a ton. Heavy exports of scrap from Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific ports continue to draw supplies away from domestic consumers.

New Commodity Prices.

A new list of commodity prices applying to forms of cold-rolled strip sold to the automobile industry has been filed with the American Iron and Steel Institute. The new classifications are supplementary to the list of extras now in effect and enable mills rolling strip in narrow widths to compete on more equal terms with sheet mills. The new commodity prices will be effective only during the fourth quarter, as the cold-rolled strip industry is preparing a new card of extras completely reclassifying its products which will probably be ready by the first of next year.

Lake ore shipments in September were 3,439,375 tons, as compared with 4,161,686 tons in the previous month and 5,504,175 tons in September, last year. Present indications are that the total movement for the season will not exceed 21,000,000 tons, or somewhat less than last year's total of 21,672,410 tons.

The Iron Age composite prices for finished steel and pig iron are unchanged at 2.124c. a pound and $17.90 a ton, respectively.

Dried Fruits Steady.

Added Strength of Federals Is Feature; Trading $11,151,000.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Further strength of United States Government securities was virtually the only feature of today's bond market.

While all listed Federal loans recorded substantial advances in more active dealings, other bonds were quiet and moderately irregular.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues closed unchanged at 83.3, the third consecutive session in which this composite has stood still. Transfers totaled $11,151,000 par value, compared with $9,015,000 yesterday. Of the aggregate Federal bonds accounted for $4,770,000, against $2,040,000 on Wednesday.

Bonds From California.

Although the corporate divisions appeared to be somewhat concerned regarding reports of the political situation in California, bonds of most companies doing business in that State were not exceptionally heavy.

The higher range of Government loans was attributed partly to growing investment demand and to the subsistence of inflationary psychology which recently caused some liquidation in this list.

The entire Federal section held gains of three thirty-seconds to sixteen thirty-seconds of a point. Hopes for the Treasury's conversion program were seen in the advance of nine-thirty-seconds in the called Liberty fourth 4¼s to 100.27.

Treasury 3¼s Up.

The Treasury 4¼s, similar to the new refunding issues, were up ten thirty-seconds, at 100.25. The guaranteed farm mortgage and home loan bonds were quite active at gains of thirteen thirty-seconds to fifteen thirty-seconds.

Loans of St. Paul and Chicago & Northwestern got up 1 to 2 or more points, and Union Pacific 4s were 1⅛ higher, at 94⅞. Union Oil of California 6s were only off ½, at 111½, and Pacific Gas 5s yielded ¾, at 102½. Changes elsewhere were generally narrow.

Some obligations of Argentina, Milan and Rome recovered a point or so. French and Belgian loans eased.

Food Index Declines.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Dun & Bradstreet's weekly food index declined 2 cents during the week ended October 2, standing at $2.41. At this time last year the index stood at $1.91.

Wheat—Values closer higher despite violent fluctuations. Winnipeg prices resisted selling pressure. All grains moved upward. December wheat sold at 96¾; May at 97¼.

Cotton—Prices rallied slightly after making new lows in the early movements. October closed at 12.06. The general market was unsettled. December sold at 12.17.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed barely steady, 2 points higher to 3 points lower. October sold at 13.80; December at 14.04.

Sugar—Raw sugar declined 5 points, to 2.95. Refined was unchanged, at 4.75.

Dollar—The United States dollar was steady on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $4.93 to the English pound; 6.64 cents to the French franc, and 40.55 cents to the German mark.

Curb's Losses Trimmed in Late Trading

Oils Lead Early Declines as Sales Rise to 115,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—The curb market yielded to further selling pressure today, although declines were pared in a late recovery. Alcohols resisted, while utilities were rather narrow. Oils sagged in sympathy with heaviness of petroleum shares on the big board.

Prices were fairly steady at the opening, but offerings appeared at the turn of the first hour. The list leveled off in the early afternoon, followed by the improvement in the last hour.

Gulf Oil got down 2½ points, while losses of around a point were recorded by South Pennsylvania Oil, Pepperell, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Technicolor and Pan-American Airways. Fractional declines appeared in Humble Oil, Swift International, Creole Petroleum, Newmont and Aluminum Co. of America. Hiram Walker, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Electric Bond & Share and American Cyanamid B ruled steadier.

Railways Earn $300,702,141 On Investments

Compilation Is Based on Reports From 148 Class I Roads.

Class I railroads of the United States for the first eight months of 1934 had a net railway operating income of $300,702,141, which was at the annual rate of return of 1.88 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics and made public today.

In the first eight months of 1933 their net railway operating income was $280,848,913, or 1.74 per cent on their property investment.

Property investment is the value of road and equipment as shown by the books of the railways, including materials, supplies and cash. The net railway operating income is what is left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals, but before interest and other fixed charges are paid.

From 148 Lines.

This compilation as to earnings for the first eight months of 1934 is based on report from 148 Class I railroads representing a total of 239,094 miles.

Gross operating revenues for the first eight months of 1934 totaled $2,188,560,046, compared with $2,006,077,467 for the same period in 1933, an increase of 9.1 per cent. Operating expenses for the first eight months of 1934 amounted to $1,632,477,088, compared with $1,466,447,454 for the same period in 1933, an increase of 11.3 per cent.

Class I railroads in the first eight months of 1934 paid $169,691,083 in taxes, compared with $177,567,141 for the same period in 1933, a decrease of 4.4 per cent. For the month of August alone, the tax bill of the Class I railroads amounted to $20,590,706, a decrease of $2,106,236, or 9.3 per cent under August, 1933.

Thirty-three Class I railroads failed to earn expenses and taxes in the first eight months of 1934, of which nine were in the Eastern, seven in the Southern, and 17 in the Western district.

Class I railroads for the month of August alone had a net railway operating income of $39,677,337, which, for that month, was at the annual rate of return of 1.39 per cent on their property investment. In August, 1933, their net railway operating income was $61,401,986, or 2.13 per cent.

Gross operating revenues for the month of August amounted to $282,679,430, compared with $297,030,894 in August, 1933, a decrease of 4.8 per cent. Operating expenses in August totaled $211,706,258, compared with $202,470,716 in the same month in 1933, an increase of 4.6 per cent.

Daily Credit of Reserve Banks Averages Four Million Lower

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended October 3, as reported by the Federal Reserve Banks, was $2,460,000,000, a decrease of $4,000,000 compared with the preceding week and an increase of $34,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On October 3 total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,455,000,000, a decrease of $8,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with decreases of $75,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $4,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and an increase of $4,000,000 in monetary gold stock, offset in part by increases of $65,000,000 in money in circulation and $7,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve Banks and a decrease of $2,000,000 in Treasury and National bank currency.

Bills discounted decreased $5,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and at all Federal Reserve Banks. There was practically no change in holdings of bills bought in open market, while increases of $2,000,000 in holding of Treasury certificates and bills and of $1,000,000 in United States bonds were offset by a decrease of $3,000,000 in holdings of United States Treasury notes.

Changes in the amount of Reserve Bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended October 3, 1934, were as follows:

Wheat Values Close Higher In Sharp Shifts

Winnipeg Market Resists Selling; All Grains Join Advance.

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—Despite violent fluctuations, wheat prices averaged higher today as compared with yesterday, notwithstanding that new low price records for the season were registered here.

A stimulating factor was stubborn resistance the Winnipeg market showed to selling pressure. It was estimated that as high as 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were bought today for shipment overseas, the largest amount ni some weeks. A tremendous domestic flour business also was reported.

Wheat closed firm, ⅛@⅞ over yesterday's finish; December, new, 96¾@97; corn, ¼@1¼ up, December, new, 74⅞@74½; oats unchanged to ⅝ higher, and provisions at 2 cents to 15 cents decline.

Firmness in the Winnipeg market following announcement by I. McFarland that his government would not unload its holdings of wheat until such time as consumer demand warranted it, brought a rush of buying into the Chicago pit. Traders were nervous, in spite of the action of the Canadian mart and a sharp rally at Liverpool, and took advantage of the rise to realize on paper profits.

Liverpool closed ⅝@⅝d higher, or ½@⅝c up in American funds. A better demand for cash wheat and strength in Buenos Aires had a bullish influence on the market.

Minneapolis reported a broader flour demand, but sales are still light.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

Leading foreign currencies were steady to slightly lower in terms of dollars yesterday. The British pound lost some ground, while gold units showed little change.

The pound dipped ⅜ of a cent in New York to $4.92⅜, while the dollar closed in London at $4.92 13-16 to the pound.

The price of gold in London declined 1½ pence to 142 shillings 1 penny a fine ounce (equivalent to $35.02). Bars valued at $2,179,060 changed hands.

Wholesalers Reduce Prices In Past Week

Index Recedes 2 Points; Commodities Down First Time in 60 Days.

For the first time in two months, wholesale commodity prices, as measured by the index of the National Fertilizer Association, declined during the week ended September 29. This index receded 2 points during that week, declining from 76.6 to 76.4.

During the preceding week the index advanced 2 points and two weeks ago it advanced 4 points. The latest index number, 76.4, compares with 75.9 a month ago, and 69.4 a year ago. (The three-year average 1926-1928 equals 100.)

During the latest week six of the 14 groups in the index were affected by price changes. Three groups advanced and three declined. Grains, feeds and live stock, textiles, and metals declined.

There was a fairly large drop in the price for grains, feeds and live stock. Foods, fats and oils, and fertilizer materials were higher.

Prices for 32 individual commodities advanced while the prices for 20 commodities declined during the latest week. A week ago there were 26 advances and 30 declines.

Wheat declined from 1 to 2 cents a bushel during the latest week; cattle from 50 to 75 cents per hundredweight, and both light and heavy hogs were also decidedly lower. Cotton declined slightly.

Other commodities that declined during the latest week were lard, ham, flour, sweet potatoes, barley, linseed meal, bran, middlings, lead, zinc, tin, cotton yarns, wool and rubber.

POTATOES—Raw was firm today following the decline of 5 points late yesterday when 21,700 bags of Cubas were sold from store at 2.95, with buyers evidently disposed to hold off and await the outcome of the Cuban sale today. However, the sharp upturn in futures would seem to indicate that sometime we had been done with Cubas from store although no sales were definitely reported. Receivers were believed ready to pay the prevailing level with nothing firmly offered below 3.00. Sweets steady; Santos 4s, 1.15@1.25. Spots steady; Cost and freight offers included Bourbon 3s and 3½ at 10.50@10.95.

G. W. Is Ready For Denver Tonight

Benefield May Start at End; Colonials Given Rousing Welcome.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—A thoroughly aroused Denver University Football Team, smarting under the sting of defeat at the hands of a fellow Rocky Mountain Conference team a week ago, is set to turn loose a vengeful gang of athletes here tomorrow night. The Colonials of George Washington University will be met in one of the week's biggest intersectional frays. More than 10,000 are expected to witness the contest.

The Pioneers, coached by Percy Locey, former mentor of the famed San Francisco Olympic Club teams, have been shaken up since that shocking 26-7 defeat handed them by Utah last Friday night, and as a result five new faces will be seen in the Crimson and Gold line-up. Locey's changes are said to have put new fire and determination into his outfit.

"Tuffy" Tavener, all-conference guard in 1932 and who was injured most of last season, will start at right guard for the first time this year. Red Ray, a 190-pound sophomore will get the call at left guard, while John Wright, another soph, will replace Dick Epting, a veteran, at right tackle. Ray Johnson, 195-pound sophomore back, also has been shoved into the new order of things, and George Schwalm, an end, will see action for the first time as replacement for the injured Orme Hering.

G. W. Has Weight Advantage.

This team will average 184 pounds, 6 pounds under the Eastern invaders, and its back field and line will average, respectively, 176 and 190. George Washington's back field and line will average 181 and 195.

Hard Net Fight Hot Springs Feature

Mary Reed Is Defeated by Miss Theodosia Smith in Three Sets.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—Mary Reed, of Chicago, Bermuda woman's champion, put up an unexpectedly hard fight in the semifinal round of the women's singles in the annual fall tennis tournament here today before losing to Miss Theodosia Smith, of Chicago and Pasadena.

Taking the first set, 7—5, Miss Reed lost the second, 3—6, and the third, 6—0, but the final set was much closer than the score indicated, with every game going to deuce and the final game going to deuce eight times.

In a men's singles semifinal match, Arthur McPherson, of Scotland, had difficulty eliminating Huntington Hartford, of New York. McPherson played Hartford's game throughout the first set and lost it, 4—6, then he got back on his game and won the next two sets, 7—5, 7—5.

In the men's doubles, Lawrence Baker, Washington, and Vernon S. Prentice, New York, defeated W. C. Dustin Grannis, Chicago, and Donald R. McClennan, jr., Chicago, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2, and William Jackson Clothier, Philadelphia, and Rowland Evans, Philadelphia, defeated Edward P. Curtis, Rochester, and Robert F. Carr, jr., Chicago, 7—5, 6—3.

Virginia Alumni Meet.

The old grads will have their fling tonight when University of Virginia Alumni gather at the Racquet Club for a smoker and get-together at 8 o'clock. Prospects for tomorrow's game between Virginia and Navy will be discussed by the coaching staff and Prof. Gerrard Glenn, of the law school, also will address the gathering.

Belle Haven Golfers Clash for Club Title

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 4 (Spl.).—Sixteen golfers at the Belle Haven Country Club have qualified to participate in the men's championship play. Play will begin Saturday afternoon.

Tom Ryan, club professional, has placed the golfers in two brackets. Upper bracket: Hauber vs. Dauke; C. E. Anderson vs. C. C. Brown; Elliott vs. Dr. S. B. Moore, and Emhardt vs. Windsor Demaine. Upper bracket: Rollins vs. Kane; Robinson vs. Marshall; Krause vs. Ross, and Bryant vs. Howell.

Marions to Practice.

The Marion A. C. will practice tonight at 7 o'clock at Seaman Gunners Field.

Trustee's sale of the valuable eight-story and basement brick and limestone apartment hotel known as "The Jefferson," located at the northwest corner of Sixteenth and M streets northwest.

Because of default in the terms and conditions of, and by virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by the Jefferson Apartments, Inc., a Delaware corporation, dated June 20, 1927, recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia in Liber 5912 at folio 401 et seq., and at the request of the holders of over twenty-five per centum in amount of the outstanding bonds secured thereby the undersigned substituted trustee, by appointment of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in Equity Cause No. 52847, will offer for sale at public auction in front of the premises on WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1934, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, all of lots numbered nineteen (19), sixty (60), sixty-one (61), sixty-two (62), sixty-three (63) and sixty-four (64) in William Redin, trustee, and others subdivision of square one hundred and eighty-two (182) as per plat recorded in Liber W. F., folio 70, of the records of the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, excepting the north part in front by depth of said lot sixty (60), together with all buildings and improvements thereon consisting of the Jefferson Apartments; and all furniture, furnishings and fixtures thereon which said trustee is authorized, by said deed of trust, to sell and convey.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash on or before the thirtieth day of November, 1934, balance in two equal installments, payable on or before one and two years from date of sale, respectively, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from day of sale, said interest payable semiannually, and to be secured by first deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. The said trustee will receive no bid from anyone offering a bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, deposit with said trustee, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a deposit of $15,000, either in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company made or indorsed payable to the undersigned trustee, or in lieu thereof bonds of the par value of $30,000, in form transferable by delivery, secured by said deed of trust, said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto. The deposit of any unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him immediately after the sale. In case any successful purchaser shall fail to complete his purchase by November 30, 1934, in accordance with the said terms of sale, said deposit may be forfeited at the option of the said trustee, or without forfeiting the deposit said trustee may avail itself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser. The said trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids and withdraw the property from sale. Adjustments with respect to taxes, assessments, insurance, rentals, income from operation of property, interest and all other adjustments shall be made as of the date of sale. The said trustee, however, will continue to manage and operate said property and collect the income therefrom from date of sale to date of transfer upon existing terms as set forth in said deed of trust. After settlement of sale said trustee will not be responsible for any bills or expenses incurred in the management or operation of said property. Terms of sale to be complied with by November 30, 1934; otherwise the said trustee reserves the right to forfeit said deposit or to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser upon the foregoing terms, after advertisement of such resale published three times per week for two successive weeks in two newspapers published in Washington, D. C.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY A Big Day By Harry J. Tuthill

IS SUPPER READY, JO? I TRIED TWICE TODAY TO CATCH YOU BY PHONE AND TELL YOU I HAVE TO BE AT THE LODGE FOR...
OH, GEORGE DARLING, I'VE HAD ENOUGH EXCITEMENT TODAY WITHOUT YOU STROLLING IN HERE SO EARLY AND TRYING TO START SOMETHING WITH ME.
LISTEN JO, AS I SAID, I TRIED TO PHONE YOU TWICE BUT I HEARD THE PHONE TOO, BUT I WAS UPSTAIRS, HELPING TO LIFT A WINDOW THAT FELL ON THAT STOUT WOMAN'S SHOULDERS WHILE SHE WAS WATCHING THE NEW TENANTS NEXT DOOR MOVE IN.
WELL, IF SHE WAS HURT IT'S TOO BAD, BUT ANYHOW TO GET BACK TO THIS LODGE THING..
SHE WASN'T REALLY HURT, BUT BY THE TIME WE MADE SURE OF THAT, ALL THE FURNITURE WAS INSIDE. ALL I SAW WAS A SORT OF PICTURE AFFAIR THAT FROM UPSTAIRS LOOKED LIKE A COAT OF ARMS.
A COAT OF ARMS, EH? WELL THAT'S INTERESTING AND. OH OH!.. I WONDER IF THIS WATCH IS FAST?
I SAW THE COUPLE DRIVE UP. THEY'RE REAL ARISTOCRATS. SHE WEARS THOSE EYE-GLASSES THAT FOLD UP. HE HAD A CANE AND LETS HER WALK THROUGH DOORS FIRST. I JUST KNOW WE'LL LIKE THOSE NICE FOLKS.

The Carpet Sweeper.

I bought a carpet-sweeper, to brush the dust away, although the price was steeper than I desired to pay. For such a weird contraption I had no use, indeed; it came beneath the caption of things I didn't need. But the old man who sold it, he talked me off my feet; he said to me, "Behold it, it's perfect and complete. Some years ago I flourished, with a roll of goodly size, and I was amply nourished with doughnuts, cakes and pies. The future seemed as pleasing as anyone could plan; my neighbors saw me breezing around, a happy man. Then came the great depression, prosperity dethroned, and in one hectic session I lost whate'er I owned. The world was full of ravings, of panic and affright, and I beheld my savings go higher than a kite. And all around me, wailing, my friends threw up their hands; their banners all were trailing and they wore mourners' bands. 'I will not join the weepers, the wailing gangs,' I said. 'I'll peddle carpet sweepers throughout the town, instead!' And so instead of bleating along the poorhouse way, you see me fat and eating my three square meals a day." "No doubt I should admire you, your fortitude was great; but now I'd like to hire you to leave my humble gate. No doubt you've borne crosses—none is from trouble free; but why sum up your losses and take it out on me? Why seek the vines and creepers of men already bored, and sell them carpet sweepers they really can't afford?"

Monday, October 8, 5:45 p. m.—Scout Swim and Life Saving, Y. M. C. A.

Monday, October 8, 7:30 p. m.—"Principles of Scoutmastership" at 1018 Vermont avenue.

Wednesday, October 10, 5:45 p. m.—Scout Swim and Life Saving at Y. M. C. A.

Wednesday, October 10, 7:30 p. m.—"Elements of Scoutmastership" at 1018 Vermont avenue.

Wednesday, October 17, 7:30 p. m. "Elements of Scoutmastership" Course.

Thursday, October 18, 7:00 p. m.—Meeting Boy Scout Press Club, 1018 Vermont avenue.

Roy F. Seymour, of Philadelphia, Regional Scout Executive, is in Washington making arrangements for the Annual Regional Meeting, which will be held at the Shoreham Hotel on October 13. Several hundred men representing Scout Councils in Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia will attend. Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, will sound the keynote challenge at the opening session at 10 a. m.

The day will be given over to conferences and discussions on various phases of Scouting, such as troop organization, finance, leadership training, cubbing, sea scouting, civic service, &c. Other speakers will include E. Urner Goodman, director of the division of program, and Roy F. Seymour, Regional Executive, Judge W. C. Coleman, of Baltimore; Clem D. Johnson, of Roanoke; Ralph Harrison of Richmond; M. Daly Walsh, of Norfolk; M. A. Smythe, of Roanoke; President Chester Wells and Eugene S. Wilson, of the District of Columbia Council.

An invitation is being sent to more than a hundred Scout leaders in Washington, D. C., to attend the various sessions in the day's program which starts at 10 a. m., and closes with a banquet at 7 p. m.

Jamboree Preparations.

That the next 12 months will be the busiest in the history of the District of Columbia Boy Scout Council is predicted by Scout officials who are already preparing for the summer of 1935, when a huge National Jamboree, the silver jubilee celebration of scouting, will bring upward of 30,000 Scouts to Washington. Capt. Chester Wells is president of the council; Paul Bartsch, Julius Garfinckel and Samuel Kauffman, vice presidents, and George Hewitt Myers, treasurer and scout commissioner. Capt. Jonas Ingram is chairman of the committee on sea scouting; Dr. Walter Merrill, chairman of the camping committee; Eugene S. Wilson, jr., chairman of the committee on cubbing; Jack Gates, chairman of troop organization; Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, chairman of leadership training; R. A. Van Orsdel, chairman of civic safety; Paul Bartsch, chairman of courts of honor, and Dr. Camp Stanley, chairman of the committee on health and safety.

Twenty new Scout Units have been organized in the council territory so far this year.

Some conception of the magnitude of the National Jamboree is conveyed by recalling the world jamborees at Birkenhead, England, 1929, or at Godollo, Hungary, 1933. At those affairs 25,000 Scouts were camping together in enormous camps, each with all the necessities for a city of such size along the lines of hospitals, police force, fire department, water works, &c. As planned, the National Jamboree, 1935, will exceed in size any of the previous world jamborees except Arrow Park. Thirty thousand Scouts and Scouters, it is expected, will gather in Washington. All foreign countries affiliated with the International Boy Scout movement will be invited to join the camps here.

The next ten months will be filled with special preparation by Scouts and Scouters of the District of Columbia Council. Special training in pathfinding, preparing to guide visiting Scouts is being planned. The Boy Scout Press Club will also prepare to aid in the newspaper work in connection with the big event.

Eagle Scout Association.

Richard Miller, president of the Eagle Scout Association, has announced that a meeting of the organization will be held soon. The purpose of the organization is to help keep alive the interest of Eagles in Scouting and to aid Scouting by organizing into patrols to be proficient in some line of Scouting and to be at the call of troops in the council to give practical demonstrations.

The Eagles will hold meetings, attend summer camp and will hold a large party about once a year.

Active membership is open to Eagle Scouts under 21. Honorary members will be men over 21 who are Eagles, to be elected in the same manner as regular members. Boys under 21 who, although unable to attend regularly, wish to remain with the organization, or former members over 21 who wish to remain with the organization, may be associate members.

The officers are Richard Miller, Troop 54, president; Fred Waite, of Troop 5, secretary; Harry Barnett, Troop 69, treasurer; Reisner Lindsay, of Troop 20, vice president. District Commissioner George C. Whitney is adviser.

Story League to Meet.

The Scout Leaders Story League of Washington, organized last spring and affiliated with the National Story League, will hold its next meeting on Saturday evening, October 27. Each member will tell a story. The officers of the league are Walter MacPeek, president; Armistead Coleman, vice president; J. W. Talley, treasurer, and John Bayless, secretary.

Scout Swims at Y. M. C. A.

Regular Scout swims on each Monday and Wednesday at 5:45 p. m. have been resumed at the Boys' Y. M. C. A., 1732 G street northwest. A special rate of 15 cents is made to Scouts who use the pool during these periods. Classes in life-saving consisting of eight lessons and tests covering the Red Cross Junior Life-Saving Award and the Scout Life-Saving Merit Badge will be conducted during these periods. The first class began Monday, October 1, and will extend through October. A new class will be formed on the first Monday or Wednesday of each month thereafter.

Courts of Honor.

Courts of honor and review from October, 1934, to June, 1935, will be held in the Langley School Building, First street at T, northeast, on the first Saturday of the month, and Powell Junior High School Building on the third Saturday evening of the month.

Pennsylvania Voters Warned to Register

The National Capital Republican Club yesterday issued an announcement that tomorrow is the last day for the registration of Pennsylvania voters. Registration must be in person, except in third-class cities.

The law permitting Federal employes, wives and husbands, to register by mail in Pittsburgh has been repealed, it was announced. The club is maintaining an information bureau for voters at its headquarters, Sixteenth street and Scott Circle.

Bethany Chapter Plans Party.

A card party, sponsored by the ways and means committee of Bethany Chapter, O. E. S., will be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Hay-Adams House. Mrs. Mabel H. Test, committee chairman, is completing arrangements.

Post Ad-Writers will be glad to assist you in preparing a good, result-producing ad when you call National 4200.

BLACKIE BEAR

Who-Who Jokes With Mr. Man.

That was a sure enough cold morning when Mr. Man killed those hogs. Yesterday when he found how cold it was getting, he went over and asked Uncle Joe and Tom to come and help him with his hog-killing, and he told them that he would give them some "fresh" to pay them for helping him. He really ought to have invited Blackie Beag, for if Blackie hadn't taken Hee-Haw away and kept him all summer Mr. Man wouldn't have worked so hard and made so much corn and peanuts and potatoes to fatten his hogs on. But you know people don't always get what they ought to have, and so Blackie didn't get an invitation to Mr. Man's hog-killing. Blackie didn't feel really slighted over it, though, for it was a good deal easier to sit out in the sunny side of his house and talk with his friends than it would have been in that cold wind around Mr. Man's barn where he was killing the hogs. "Besides," said Blackie to Dr. Coon, "what's the use of working when somebody else will do it for you and do it better? I am sure they will dress my meat for me better than I can do it."

That made Billie Possum grin. "You talk like you saw that meat coming right into your smokehouse and hanging itself up," said Billie.

"Well, I most do," said Blackie,

"for I know just how and when it is going to get in there." And then Blackie told them about the plans he had smoked out of his pipe, and so:

Once upon a time, Mr. Man loaded up his wagon with three big hogs that he had killed the day before, a lot of turkeys, apples, butter and eggs and other things and started to town to sell them. Mrs. Man had thought that she would go, but it was awfully cold and she had so much to do about making sausages and liver pudding and things that she decided to stay at home, and to get Aunt Lindy to come over and help her. So Mr. Man went off alone and he didn't take his dog or gun. Mr. Man said she needed them to keep trouble away from the house. Mr. Man went away whistling, for he had a good load of things that would get him a lot of money, and he was happy. It was so cold that he decided he would keep warmer if he walked than if he sat still on the wagon and so he walked. They moved along pretty well, and after a while they come to Cool Spring, where they stopped to get water, just as they got back in the road and started on to town, a great big owl darted down and grabbed Mr. Man's hat off of his head and flew back up the road toward Mr. Man's house. He flew for several hundred yards with the hat, and then he dropped it in the road. Mr. Man was terribly upset and frightened, but he saw the Owl drop his hat and so he started running back to get it. Before he got the hat, somebody shot a gun close behind him. He whirled around to see who shot, and he saw that "strange animal" all dressed up in Tom's clothes, with a gun in his hands and running right after him. Then Mr. Man ran some more and a shot that cut off a lot of limbs that fell on him didn't make him stop running. Jocko says it really made him run faster. Hee-Haw had stopped and was standing right in the little stream when Jocko jumped on the wagon seat and told him to head "up stream," and Hee-Haw headed.

MRS. V. ARTHUR
84-7th Ave., Carbondale, Pa.

"I am 57 years old. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was so bad I could hardly walk around and I cannot praise it enough. I have also used the Sanative Wash and got wonderful help from it."

ANGELINE G. LAROSA
1315-5th Ave., McKeesport, Pa.

"For four years I suffered with periodic pains. My left side used to feel paralyzed and I would stay in bed two days. I had no appetite, just drank about six cups of coffee a day. I was weak and nervous. I tried all kinds of medicine without results until I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They gave me strength and appetite. My nerves are much better and I am so relieved that I do not suffer as I used to. I recommend your medicine to every woman I come in contact with."
